HENRY HOUTZ. Henry Houtz, one of the oldest and only five days. Thursday of last week | Harrisburg, two weeks and four days he complained of a severe pain in his previously. stomach, which grew worse. Medical aid was summoned, and everything possible was done to give relief, but he gradually grew weaker until the end. Not to speak of the constitution or the law, the following legislative rule was brazenly violated by recording absentees as voters:

"No member shall be permitted to vote on any question unless he be within the bar, and when the yeas and nays are called he be present to answer to his name."

As an excuse for recording Appropriations Chairman Plummer as voting for the Ehrhardt bill, when he was absent on committee business, Speaker

CHAMPIONS OF A FREE PRESS

Legislators Who Fought the "Muzzler" Are of the Type Wanted In the Coming Session.

Although the "Press Muzzler," enacted by the Philadelphia gangsters in the hope of perpetuating their power, has proved to be impotent, there is a general demand that among the many good things to be done by the coming legislature shall be the wiping of that obnoxious, tyrannical measure off the statute books. All of the Democratic legislators fought against it. In this, as in all other matters affecting the welfare of the commonwealth. those members who stood faithful to the people having had no black sheep among them during the last several DR. WILLIS A. ALEXANDER sessions and not many in former terms of the legislature. The voters, therefore, find strong reason to trust the Democratic candidates, this year, for a continuing of the good work.

When the ill-fated Goehring "Ifbel bill," a sort of supplement to the 'muzzler." was pending in the last regclar session, the Democratic senator from Berkk, Mr. Herbst, said:

"I can see no reason why this bill should pass. Two years ago a bill was passed by this body to re-strain the freedom of the press, or as the newspapers with one voice said, to muzzle it. This was done by methods which we who were here all know made some senators confess that their conscience worried them. Now, this act may not be so severe; it may even be a lamb compared with the wolf of two years ago, but where is there any necessity for it? Why burden our statute books with more laws when old acts are ample and sufficient? Why shall newspaper men and editors engaged in a legitimate and praiseworthy business, the liberty and freedom of which is specifically guaranteed in our fundamental law, be nagged, and fretted, and irritated, and placed at the mercy of self-styled injured mentally politicians by statute laws simply because they refuse to take orders from political bosses? I have been in the limelight of the press for twenty years refuse to take orders from political bosses? I have been in the lime-light of the press for twenty years on account of more or less politi-cal activity, and I must say that I have nothing to charge against the newspapers. My opponents and critics have had their say, which critics have had their say, which was their right, and my friends and advocates have replied. This is genuine healthy Americanism. I have found that a man as a rule in the end gets about his deserts from the newspapers.

"No honest man whose works and deeds are not dark and shady need fear the light of public criticism. I do not believe that such a man does, because he knows that the people whose good opinion is at all worth having will judge him correctly and righteously. Our newspapers may at times be a trifle extravagant and flashy in statement, and weird and uncanny in picture; but this is an electrical age and publishers like other busiage and publishers like other businessmen strive to please their patrons. We all know that the patrons. We all know that the bill of two years ago was aimed generally at a number, specially at one Philadelphia paper, and yet when I look over the senate I find more senators reading that very paper than any other. The fact is very evident, especially so since this session of the legislature has begun, that the only tribune of the people remaining in Pennsylvania is the press.
