MR. CARSON'S PROBE.

A thorough investigation of the profligate expenditures on the new Capitol cannot be avoided. The election is over and the question is no longer a campaign issue. But the scandal lives and burns and blisters, and the probe is all the more certain because it is now free from any immediate political complication.

There are interests which will object to turning on the light and which will seek to smother and defeat a real inquiry. But their effort will be vain. Too many pledges are out. Too many forces are in earnest. If the majority in the new Legislature should be dis posed to cover up, the minority is strong enough to compel an investigation. The Governor-elect has given his word and his good name is committed. Without waiting for the new administration or Legislature the present responsible state authorities owe it to themselves to push the probe. The State Treasurer will press it, public opinion will demand it, and evasion will be difficult.

The second letter of Attorney General Carson to Contractor Sanderson does not look like trying to evade. It is all that could be asked. It is a searching and penetrating call which pierces to the marrow of the deception and fraud. The case admitted of nothing less from a self-respecting public officer. The answer of Mr. Attorney General was trifling. It was Grove, marking the lines of the wild worse than evasive-it was truculent and almost contemptuous. Not only did it fail to give any real information, but it plainly had the spirit of not intending to give any.

For example, the Attorney General had asked what was the basis of the bid " per foot " and how the contractor measured furniture in that way. The answer is that he made "surface measurements." But that tells nothing. What surface? Linear or cubic? Substance or air? Following the sinuosities or squaring the object? The answer furnishes no enlightenment and the only thing we know is that on this bidding "per foot" the times its real value.

This is only a sample of the triviality and obscurity of the answers. It General and Mr. Carson shows in the ter of his second letter that he resents it. In this rejoinder he frames nation. He has not been in good his questions with a particularity and health for some time, being troubled explicitness that will hardly admit of with a throat affection. evasion. They will put Mr. Sanderson to the test, and the answers will so in- moved from the Kerlin house to volve those who gave the orders that Church street. Wm. B. The result of the late election is making other changes. heralded by the gang as a great victory, and an endorsment of the Ilnay, on Sunday next, Rev. J. M. big Capitol Steal. Thousands of Boal, D. D., of Centre Hall, will honest voters in the state were influenced to vote with them by their shallow promises of reform, and false alarm to stand by the President. It is certainly encouraging to know that bounds of the charge. thousands of christian men discarded party and voted for civic righteousness and clean politics and while they did not win, they are not dismayed. The time is near when the party lash will fail to drive the honest voter to endorse their corrupt methods, and we may see the day when they will with their own hands remove the heads of Iowa. "I often wonder how I got Capitol doors.

While it is to be deplored by all good citizens that the fusion ticket did not win, there is much to rejoice over. Thousands upon thousands of good christian men dropped partisanship and voted for civic righteousness, and thousands more would have done the same had they not been fooled by false alarms and whipped into line by the party lash. Stand by the President was one of their strong appeals. With a falling off in two years of over four hundred thousand majority is not an encouraging endorsement.

Really, now, was Berry's talk all campaign bosh?

Fatal Hunting Accident.

A fatal hunting accident occurred this place. near Alfarata, Decatur township, Mifflin county, Thursday of last week. John Rauch and Charlie Stettler, employes at Burnham, went to their former home in Decatur township to hunt rabbits, and after a short time they holed a rabbit underneath a log. Stettler was in a stooping position over the log and Rauch was behind him with his gun in his hand. During the excitement the gun was accidentally discharged and the entire charge of heavy shot entered Stettler's back, is complete and includes all the most exclusive and select patterns for which the House of Kuppenheimer is celebrated and which are so much in demand with good dressers.

Kuppenheimer Clothes are unquestionably superior in quality of material, workmanship and style. There are very few clothing institutions anywhere in the world that have the facilitie for producing the highest type of men's clothes, such as The House of Kuppenheimer has. Fewer still that adhere closely to their high standard of production.

There is that quality about Kuppenheimer Clothes, due to the expert workmanship entering into their manufacture, which stamps the wearer "a welldressed man" from the day he puts the garment on until he is ready to lay it aside. Only the sixty-and-seventy-fivedollar-custom-tailor can equal them.
