Deckers Will Divide Farm.

The small farm is the most profitable farm, consequently the division of the old homestead among the sons and daughters is becoming more and more common. Report has it that M. J. Decker, east of Centre Hall, is about to divide his one bundred and six'y acres into two parts of sixty and one hundred acres, the former to be improved by the erection of buildings, etc., on the north side of the road by his son James L., and the latter portion to remain with the present substantial buildings, and be tilled by Frank W.

The Decker farm is one of the most productive farms in Penns Valley. I is mostly or altogether soapstone soil, and has been under cultivation for only about twenty-five years. The senior Mr. Decker, who is one of Potter township's most esteemed citizens, will continue to make his home with his son, Frank W. Decker.

One of the first things the young in 1848 to warn him as he came to rifle shot has to learn is how to take a warn her now, said to her very seriousdeep breath, to fill the lungs with air. and then to hold the breath while the rifle is kept absolutely steady and the ly on horseback in the midst of the finger is gradually tightening on the trigger. A glance at any successful their enthusiasm and devotion." rifle shot will show you a man with a deep chest and full powers of breathing. Any form of recreation which trains the muscles of the arm and exercises the chest and lungs would seem likely to be beneficial to health, but if that is not enough there is the unequaled training which rifle shooting gives to the eye and to the hand working with the eye. The writer remembers hearing a musketry instructor boast that he had lengthened not only his own sight, but the sight of scores of boys whom he had taught how to use their eyes in aiming at a target, by two or three hundred yards, simply by continued practice at long distance shooting. It is astonishing what results can be obtained in this way by placing a rifle on a sand bag raised on a tripod and making the pupil aim as accurately as he can at any distant object. The eye can be trained, of course, equally well, though the sight will not necessarily be lengthened, by aiming at objects close at hand .- London Spectator.

CHILDREN'S CRIMES.

Arson, Theft and Train Wrecking

Common, Forgery Rare. Children's crimes are recognized by criminologists as a large and important branch of criminology. The commonest of children's crimes are arson, stealing and train wrecking, and the rarest is forgery.

Arson, in the country especially, is frequently a crime of childhood. Country children set fire to haystacks, barns and sheds in order to see the great two captive limbs, carefully keeping bright flames leap skyward. Children out of reach of the others, which were commit arson, in a word, out of a love of fireworks.

Children often wreck trains. Sometimes they do this from reading about romantic train wreckers. More often they do it out of curiosity. They pile obstructions on the track to see what one of the limbs that were free. These will happen. They have no idea that tactics were carried on till all the legs anything very serious will happen. Children, of course, steal a good deal. The best of men and women, looking back on their childhood, can recall many a theft. Stealing is natural. Children now and then murder. Their motive is always jealousy. Thus in Vienna a boy of ten, jealous of his brother and sister, who seemed to be more petted than himself, killed both of them and then took his own life .--

Often the slightest causes bring about the gravest results. The tragedy of the empire's last chance, therefore, must be sought along with the black riding skirt and corsage. By incredible ill luck they could not find it. There had been one, but it had disappeared, "doubtless stolen." Othfor some time the spider, which was about the size of the fly's head, proceeded to strengthen its hold by attaching numerous extra lines to the

Up in Smoke.

A slight fire occurred Friday noon at which time the smoke house of W. B. Mingle, Esq., took fire and was pretty nearly burned up before the fire was extinguished. The loss was the meat from two large hogs, as well as the house itself. The fire was caused by a ham falling into the fire.

Paying Children to Attend School,

Beginning with next week the Centre Reporter will contain the first installment of an article advocating that all school children be paid for attending public schools. The paper contains strong argument in favor of this method of inducing a better attendance in the school room by children whose parents do not exercise good judgment in this connection. Throughout the article is highly interesting and will convince many of its readers that paying children to attend school is not a new innovation nor an impossible proposition.

The Missing Note.

One of the leading tenors in Moscow was called upon to sing an opera in which one note was much too high for him, but he got a man in the orchestra to come in just at the right time and supply the note. In exchange the tenor was to take him to supper. The plan answered well, the applause was loud, but the tenor forgot all about the supper. Next time he sang the opera he went to the front of the stage, put his hand on his heart and opened his mouth as wide as he could. His discomfiture was great when the expectant hush was broken by a voice from the orchestra saying, "Where's my supper?"-From Iskra.

Chinese Similes.

Some of the ordinary expressions of the Chinese are pointedly sarcastic enough. A blustering, harmless fellow they call "a paper tiger." When a man values himself overmuch they compare him to "a rat falling into a scale and weighing itself." Overdoing a thing they call "a hunchback making a bow." A spendthrift they compare to "a rocket" which goes off at once. Those who expend their charity on remote objects, but neglect their familles, are said to "hang a lantern on a pole, which is seen afar, but gives no light below."

Followed His Pipe.

An old Hungarian countryman had smoked the same pipe for more than fifty years and as a natural consequence had grown to love it as a companion. One day, however, his Infant grandson smashed the pipe beyond all hope of repair. The old man was so broken hearted at his loss that he hanged himself on a peg. In his pocket was found a scrap of paper on which was scribbled, "My pipe is done for, and I must go too."
