Several weeks ago John E. Rishel, east of Centre Hall, sold a bay team of horses at a fabulous price, and last week he purchased three young horses from D. A. Grove which he expects to develop into a high-priced team. Mr. Rishel is a good horseman and knows how to grow them.

Miss Esther J. Nolan, of Des Moines, Iowa, is contemplating going to the south western part of the United States in the hope of finding a climate more favorable to her physical condition. She has not given up her office work, but fears remaining in Iowa will oblige her to do so. Miss Nolan when a child made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Daup, near Pottery Mills.

It's an ill wind that puts on airs. The popular songs contain many notes that go to protest. A fool and his money keeps lots of people from being honest. A public office is a public trust, and this an age of trust investigations. The teacher of arithmetic in a kindergarten believes in making the little things count. Flattery is the ability to pay compliments instead of bills. If a girl can't marry her ideal she feels that the next best thing is to marry some other girl's. The man who refuses water with his whisky evidently doesn't believe in dampening the spirits.

The quick relief from pain afforded by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm makes it a favorite with sufferers from rheumatism, sciatica, lame back, lumbago, and deep seated and muscular pains. Interment will be made at Centre Hall Saturday forenoon, services at the house being scheduled for ten o'clock. Rev. G. W. McInay, pastor of the deceased, will officiate.

Mr. Lawyers was a most kindly disposed man, and was consistent in all things. In business, in the home, in the church he was the same conscientious man. LIGHTHOUSE REPAIR SHOP.

Little Building Where Delicate Machinery is Made.

In the reservation of the lighthouse department at St. George, Staten Island, there is an ugly three story building of brick that is the "department store" of the lighthouse service in this country and its foreign possessions. Practically everything in the nature of a mechanical device used in the service, from the biggest lantern to the smallest order of light, and including the apparatus for blowing fog signals and making the lights flash on gas buoys, is turned out in this place, and not only sent to all the stations in this district, which includes Porto Rico, but also as far away as Alaska, and even to the Philippines.

The mechanics employed are all men of the highest grade, for the objects they are at work on are too delicate, as a rule, to allow of much machine labor, and in addition to this the government has never seen fit to spend sufficient money on the plant to fit it out with such machinery. In a stroll through the workrooms one can see men turning out the delicate brasswork that keeps the flashlights on a gas buoy going for three months at a time, the curious brass cylinders that make the wailing cry of a fog siren, tiny floating stops that serve to keep the oil from overflowing in the lamps after the manner of a student lamp, and the clockwork that keeps revolving lights turning around hour after hour through the long nights.

The only thing they don't make in this department store are the lenses, which are imported from Paris or London. These are "assembled" in these shops, however, and one can see lanterns of all sizes in the course of preparation, from the smallest size used in the service to ones of the power sufficient to go in lighthouses of the first order. Of course the department has to be ready for emergencies in the way of breakdowns of lights, as well as of flashlights, and so they not only keep two light vessels at the wharf always ready for instant service, but they also have in this storehouse an emergency light that can be put up anywhere and fitted to take the place of any light of any description, whether it be fixed or revolving, red and white or all red.—New York Press.

Is This Man's Way?

Man wants to be comfortable as a cat on a warm hearth rug, to feel no prick of conscience, to see nothing unpleasant, such as tears or a wan face. It exasperates him to madness when he is obliged to see his wife sad, but it never occurs to him to try to prevent her sadness.—Spinster in London M. A. P.

A Good Wife.

"Thank you, doctor, for prescribing a trip to the Spa for me. Now, will you please ask my husband to give up smoking and drinking beer, and then my trip will be easily paid for?"—Meg-gendorfer Blatter.

It's the unexpected that happens, but we generally bring it on ourselves.—Republie Monitor.

THE WILD BALSAM APPLE.

Its Seed Holders Are Suggestive of Lance Purse.

In the brooks of autumn in certain places many little lacelike bags may be seen drifting along with the current or stranded by the shore. They are the inner coats or bodies of the wild balsam apples (Echinocystis lobata) which have dropped from the vines overhanging the stream and now float lightly away with their large seeds.

The green prickly bag of the balsam apple itself began to form in late summer, and by autumn it has withered and faded to a pale straw color. We may see the trailing vines with their shrunken pods decorating the brookside bushes far into the winter. The outer coat of the pod gradually rots away, and the inner bag or seed carrier is now released and exposed as a delicate, webby network of tough fibers. A thin skin or membrane fills up the space between these meshes, but that also falls away through the action of water and the winter storms until only the ball-like tissue of the "purse" is left. These little purses, being extremely light and buoyant, float far and wide over the submerged swamp lands in late autumn, carrying the seeds with them and so planting the vine in new situations. If, however, we take these seeds home with us and plant them there, Mother Earth will suitably reward us in the following year with vines of our own. They will spring up and spread rapidly until all the stone walls and garden fences are decorated with the tracery of their stems and star shaped leaves.—St. Nicholas.

GOLD AND THE SEA.

Why the Metal is Shipped in Bars Rather Than in Coin.

"When the banks ship gold across the Atlantic," said a banker, "they prefer to ship it in bars rather than in coin. It loses less that way."

"It loses less?" "Yes, sir. If $1,000,000 in gold coins is shipped across the sea it is only $500,000 on its arrival. It loses from twelve to fifteen ounces, about $200, through abrasion, through knocking about with the motion of the waves. The sea makes gold lose weight, you see, the same as it does human beings. Gold bars lose less. In fine weather they will only lose about $100 to each million. In the ugliest weather they don't lose over $150, whereas in like conditions gold coins have been known to lose $300. As gold shipments of $10,000,000 often occur, to make these shipments in gold bars instead of gold coin is a saving of $1,000 or more. It is odd to think when you cross in one of those gold laden ships that every wave that hits the boat clips off 10 to 15 cents from its golden cargo."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Cruel, but Necessary.

The Eskimos dread the winter and take early precautions to provide against famine. As the season approaches the great herds of reindeer migrate southward, and the walrus or the seal are all that remain for food. When an in wind is blowing the walrus is easily found on the outer edge of the ice packs. When it is blowing off the shore, however, the ice packs sail out to sea with the walrus on them. The natives then class their numbers in a list from the strongest to the weakest. The food that is in store is divided up, the weakest having the smallest quantity, the strongest the largest. Thus the mightiest hunters have strength to provide for the others. It is a cruel system, but nevertheless a necessary one. If all were weak, all would die; if some are strong, they will save many of the weak.

The Largest Pipe.

What is described as the largest pipe in the world is valued at $8,000 and is counted as one of the most remarkable pieces of carving in existence. The pipe is made of one solid piece of meerschaum and represents the landing of Columbus. There are twenty-four figures in the scene, each one four inches high. The carver who executed this masterpiece is dead, and as the demand for this sort of work has nearly died out, it is practically impossible to find a man to duplicate it.—London Telegraph.

Mouth Ulcers.

Little ulcers that appear in the month from time to time are exceedingly annoying and painful. An old fashioned household remedy is alum, the powder or crystals being applied to the yellow center. But this is a bitter, nasty dose. A physician has prescribed the use of a saturated solution of potassium chlorate, applied every two hours. "Saturated solution" means as much potassium chlorate as can be dissolved in a certain amount of water.

Lepers and the Law.

The Norman-English laws enacted that a leper had neither power to sue in any court nor to inherit property. During his lifetime he was permitted to enjoy the usufruct of any property in his possession at the time he was "found guilty," so to speak, of leprosy, but all rights of disposition over it he lost.

Autobiography of a Family Man.

I was born in New York and went to Boston to be born again. For the first twenty-one years of my life I was known as the son of my mother, for the next thirty as the husband of my wife and for the last ten years as the father of my daughter. I claim, therefore, to be a family man.—Independent.

'Tis not the size or grandeur of the structure, but the contentment that abides within, that insures a happy home.—Henry Sutphin.

Mrs. Alfred Durst, whose serious illness was noted in these columns from time to time, has recovered sufficiently to be about the house again and in time is expected to fully regain her health. This condition permitted her daughter, Mrs. S. M. Goodhart, to return to Altoona.

The local fire company held a meeting Tuesday evening. The time for the regular meetings was changed from the first to the second Tuesday of each month. Under that arrangement a meeting will be held next Tuesday evening, at which time a full attendance is desired.

Miller feed governors are being sought after by millers. A recent order was received by H. G. Miller, the inventor, at Linden Hall, for one hundred by a Philadelphia jobber. In a conversation with Mr. Miller, Tuesday evening, he stated that he had another important invention well under way.

Saturday's Philipsburg Ledger contained the following: John S. Hosterman, principal of the Philipsburg High School, who is the possessor of an exceedingly good and well trained voice has consented to sing at the morning service in the Presbyterian church. Mr. Hosterman's singing was highly praised at Bellefonte, where he taught school before coming here, and we feel sure the attendance at the Presbyterian church will enjoy a musical treat.
