Mrs. Lide Leech and daughter, Miss Nannie, spent Saturday in Bellefonte. Leslie Mechtley, of Altoona, is spending the winter with Solomon Lohr.

John Shuey, of Lemont, made a business trip to Boalsburg Friday afternoon.

Miss Sara McCleahan, of Centre Hall, is staying with friends in Boalsburg for a few weeks.

Miss Annie Myers is spending part of the winter with her brother John, at Millheim.

Mrs. Amanda Walker is staying for some time at the home of Harry Shawley, at State College.

All are invited to the Boal hall on Friday evening, to join in a festive time. Refreshments will be served.

Cyrus Gearhart moved from Shingleton to State College. The Breon family will occupy the house vacated by him.

A series of evening services were held in the Presbyterian church last week, closing with the Holy Supper on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Kimpfort and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lohr attended the funeral of David Osman, at Pine Hill, Saturday afternoon.

L. Mothersbaugh transacted business at the county seat, and visited Ephraim Keller, the latter part of last week.

Henry Frederick gladdened the hearts of a crowd of little folks by giving them a sled ride on Saturday afternoon.

Edwin Rupp, of Altoona, attended the funeral of David Osman, Saturday, and spent Sunday with his parents in Boalsburg.

Miss Lucia Ross entertained a number of her friends on Thursday evening. The guest of honor was her cousin, Mr. Schriest, of Lebanon county.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Glenn, of the Branch; Miss Amanda Mothersbaugh and Miss Green, of Berwick hospital, were guests at the Hillside farm, Tuesday of last week.

Col. J. L. Spangler with his wife and daughter enjoyed a sleigh ride from their home in Bellefonte to Boalsburg Tuesday, and took supper at the hotel.

Mrs. Eunice Campbell returned to her home at Pittsburgh Thursday, after spending several weeks with her mother, Mrs. Hannah Woomer, who is ill from ailments of a complicated nature.

Rev. A. A. Black, Frank McFarlane, Mrs. William Goheen and son Matthew, Mr. and Mrs. John Kimpfort attended the farmers institute at Pine Grove Mills, last week, and greatly enjoyed the exercises.

Mrs. Elsie Geiss, for a few days last week, visited at the home of her brother, D. W. Geiss, in Bellefonte.

Miss Blanche Tressler, of Pennsylvania Furnace, was the guest of Miss Elsie Moore for several days last week.

If everybody had as easy a way of increasing their income as the members of the national and state legislative bodies, wouldn't we all be in it!

Solomon Lingle is one of the busy farmers these days. Since last fall he and his sons hauled five or six thousand bushels of lime from the Old Fort landing to the Brockerhoff farm. The lime is shipped from Bellefonte.

Wednesday morning, of last week, Dr. Melvin J. Locke, Dr. David Dale, and Dr. J. Y. Dale, of Lemont, performed an operation on little Frances McSuley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McSuley, of Bellefonte. They found that an abscess had formed at the base of the brain. The operation was a success.

Arthur Stringer, whose work in recent years has grown in strength and importance, is the author of the novel which opens the March number of The Smart Set. It is a love story of absorbing interest, entitled "Creeping Rails," depicting the passion of a wealthy woman for a musician, who, in the end, proves worthy of her love.

George Miller, of Elwood, Illinois, who came east several weeks ago on account of the illness of his son who subsequently died, returned to his home again, leaving Centre Hall Tuesday morning. He was accompanied to Illinois by John Stump, who expects to remain in that state during the next summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm D. Fleming, of Wheeling, West Virginia, were arrivals in Centre Hall the latter part of last week, and while here were the guests of Miss Kate Fleisher, aunt of the former. Mr. Fleming has charge of one of the various tailoring establishments of M. C. Stont & Co. On his way here he stopped in Pittsburgh with his father, and before returning home will spend several days with his brother, Dr. Earl Fleming, in New York. Mr. and Mrs. Fleming will also go to Washington and Baltimore before returning home, they having lived at both places prior to going to Wheeling.

FORGAVE MRS. SIDDONS.

She had not. According to her father, she was a very good actor.

Mrs. LIDE SIDONS, was born in 1827, at the family of Hutton Inn, Boalsburg, south of Centre. Her father, Roger Kemble, being a strolling manager. The child Sarah was reared in a theatrical atmosphere, and at ten she was playing Ariel.

As she grew up she became very beautiful and had many admirers, among whom was Henry Siddons, a young actor in her father's company, who had little difficulty in winning the girl's heart. Mr. and Mrs. Kemble had married with the theatre, her father, Roger Kemble, being a strolling manager. The child Sarah was reared in a theatrical atmosphere, and at ten she was playing Ariel.

During this time the lovers carried on a lively correspondence and finally, gaining the reluctant consent of the Kembles, were married at Trinity church, Coventry, in 1873, when Sarah was eighteen.

It is said that Mr. Kemble told her if she ever married an actor it would make him discard her forever. After her marriage he said, "I may forgive you without breaking my word, for you have certainly not married 'an actor,' whatever the gentleman himself may think is his vocation." This is on authority of Lady Eleanor Butler, who knew the persons.

JAPANESE SAINTS.

The One Most Beloved by the People is Binnuru.

Among the many Buddhist-Shinto saints, whose quaint effigies set up in every conceivable nook and corner of Japan make it a "country of graven images," one of the most impressive and interesting is the pathetic person called Binnuru. He was once upon a time a member of that strange company of Buddhist disciples known as the "Sixteen Kakkan." But one day he fell from grace by remarking upon the attractions of a woman, and he was expelled from the society of chaste brethren. The great Buddha gave him, in return for all that his worldliness had cost him, power to heal human ills and to grant the prayers of ill-fated women who longed for motherhood. But he was put outside the temples. He must henceforth sit without, in the midst of the passing throng, and submit himself to personal contact with all that was unclean and unhealthy. The simple hearted people love him, I think, above all saints. His wooden images in the temple porches are the strangest objects in all Japan. They give him soft cushions to sit upon, and he is always clothed in quaint little cotton stuff collars and muffs in all sorts of soiled looking colors, and on his head his devotees usually keep a curious little cotton cap.—Eleanor Franklin in Leslie's Weekly.

The Young Member.

Grantley Berkeley tells in his "Life and Recollections" how a member for Ludlow in the last parliament of William IV, "tried to make a maiden speech, and, rising in his place, with a very bald head, known, too, as he was to everybody as one of the oldest stagers in all the ways of the world, he began, with great affectation of inexperience and with an exceedingly mild voice, 'Mr. Speaker, I am but a young member.' On hearing this assertion from so well known and crafty a man, possessing so venerable a pate, the entire house roared with laughter. Twice he stopped, and three times he commenced with these words, but it was useless. The house would not listen, and he never to my knowledge essayed to speak again, or if he did the sight of his bald head set his audience in a roar."

A Stupid Lady Bountiful.

I once showed an old lady much given to good works of the Lady Bountiful order how some proteges of hers who were constantly on the verge of starvation might be placed in possession of a small but regular and sufficient income. "My dear," she said, "I don't think it is a good plan. They would get too independent. I like them to come to me when they are in difficulties and ask for what they want."—"Rich and Poor," by Mrs. Bosanquet.

Tennyson Embarrassed.

Great crises affect people differently. With some the hair turns white; with others emotion expresses itself in in-consequent speech. Tennyson, when he first met Frederick Robertson, whom he much admired and who, he knew, admired his poems, was so nervous that he could talk to the "much beloved priest" of nothing but—"beer!"

The Good Out of It.

Landlady—I believe in letting coffee boll thirty minutes. That's the only way to get the goodness out of it. New Boarder (tasting his and leaving it)—You succeeded admirably, ma'am.

Where His Went.

Bacon—They say a man's first $100 is the hardest to get. Egbert—Well, I don't know about that. I know a fellow got mine easy enough.—Yonkers Statesman.

Uncharitable.

"Is she a charitable woman, willing to give relief?" "No. She's the kind that never gives even a sign of relief."—New York Times.

FISHERMEN.

There Are Two Classes, the Genuine and the Pretenders.

It has sometimes been said that fishermen cannot be manufactured. This is true to the extent that nothing can supply the lack of certain inherent, constitutional and inborn qualities or traits which are absolutely necessary to a fisherman's makeup. Of course there are many who call themselves fishermen and who insist upon their membership in the fraternity who have not in their veins a drop of legitimate fisherman blood. Their self asserted relationship is nevertheless sometimes seized upon by malicious or ignorant critics as permitting the assumption that the weaknesses and sins of these pretenders are the weaknesses and sins of genuine fishermen. But in truth these pretenders are only interlopers who have learned a little fish language, who love to fish only "when they bite," who whine at bad luck, who betray incredulity when they hear a rousing fish story and who do or leave undone many other things fatal to good and regular standing. They are like certain whites called squamen who hang about Indian reservations and gain certain advantages in the tribes by marrying full blooded Indian women. Surely no just person would for a moment suppose that genuine Indians could be treated fairly by measuring them according to a squaw man standard. Neither can genuine fishermen be fairly treated by judging them according to the standards presented by squaw fishermen.—From "Fishing and Shooting Sketches," by Grover Cleveland.

FORCE OF WATER.

The Great Power That Is Exerted by a Six Inch Stream.

The effect of the hydraulic motor, which is now used for the purpose of removing masses of earth, well nigh passes belief. A stream of water issuing from a pipe six inches in diameter, with a fall behind it of 375 feet, will carry away a solid rock weighing a ton or more to a distance of fifty or a hundred feet. The velocity of the stream is terrific, and the column of water projected is so solid that if a crowbar or other heavy object be thrust against it the impinging object will be hurled a considerable distance. By this stream of water a man would be instantly killed if he came in contact with it even at a distance of a couple of hundred feet. At 200 feet from the nozzle a six inch stream, with a 375 foot fall, projected momentarily against the trunk of a tree will in a second denude it of the heaviest bark as cleanly as if it had been cut with an ax. Whenever such a stream is turned against a bank it cuts and burrows it in every direction, hollowing out great caves and causing tons of earth to melt and fall and be washed away in the sluices.

The Eye of a Child.

Who can explain or fathom the wondrous instinct of the child? Lying in the arms of its nurse, in its carriage or elsewhere, its large, round, wondering eyes roam over a sea of faces till suddenly its features break into a sweet smile, a baby laugh dances in its eyes, perhaps the tiny hands are extended, and the little body gives a bound as though it would throw itself through space. What has happened? It has recognized a friend, nothing more and no less. It makes no mistake. Wiser, perchance, in that moment of inexperienced helplessness than it will be years afterward, when the world and its inmates have been studied in the light of instruction and experience, its love offering is seldom if ever mistakenly presented. By what power is this child love directed? By what subtle influence does it see and know what in after years it may strive in vain to discern?

Carlyle and the Ax.

Carlyle as a schoolmaster was a terror to quilldoers. Even the biggest and boldest boys wilted when he growled out "dunce" or "blockhead." He did not thrash often, as his scowl was enough to hush a whole school, but when he did thrash he meant business. One day a joiner passing along the road heard the most piteous howls and cries for mercy and help coming from the schoolhouse. Rushing in and handing his ax to Carlyle, he exclaimed: "Jist doot' ootricht, mon, and no mince matters."

Ingratitude.

"Were you ever really glad to hang a man?" "Only once," answered the sheriff. "I had prepared him a hearty breakfast of steak, eggs, potatoes, waffles and coffee." "Yes?" "And the infernal ingrate demanded stewed oats instead."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Bad Society.

What you learn from bad habits in bad society you will never forget, and it will be a lasting pang to you. I tell you in all sincerity, not as in the excitement of speech, but as I would confess and have confessed before God, I would give my right hand if I could forget that which I have learned in bad society.—John B. Gough.

Didn't Need to Tell.

"Bobbie, I hope you didn't tell your mother that you saw me kissing sister last night." "Nope. I didn't have to. Sis waked us all up at midnight when you went home and told it herself."—Minneapolis Journal.

Neglected Colds Threaten Life.

"Don't trifle with a cold," is good advice for prudent men and women. It may be vital in the case of a child. Proper food, good ventilation, and dry, warm clothing are the proper safeguards against colds. If they are maintained through the changeable weather of autumn, winter and spring, the chances of a surprise from ordinary colds will be slight. But the ordinary light cold will become severe if neglected, and a well established ripe cold is to the germs of diphtheria what honey is to the bee. The greatest menace to child life at this season of the year is the neglected cold." Whether it is a child or adult, the cold slight or severe, the very best treatment that can be adopted is to give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is safe and sure. The great popularity and immense sale of this preparation has been attained by its remarkable cures of this ailment. A cold never results in pneumonia when it is given. For sale by The Star Store, Centre Hall; F. A. Carson, Potters Mills; C. W. Swartz, Tusseyville.
