Letter W. H. Bartholomew. Centre Hall, Pa.

Dear Sir: Here's honesty for you! North Dakota has a pure paint law. Prof. Ladd, the state chemist, analyzes a certain paint labeled " contains only lead and zinc and is strictly pure," and flods in it no lead at all, a resinous oil, and benzine. It is, however, full measure and contains no water.

That's like the man on trial for killing his grandmother; proved that he didn't set fire to the house.

Fatherly Discipline.

She came into his study gently. "I not come home yet-and-it is the second time this week he has stayed out. boy of seventeen"-

She faltered. He was looking at her with a strange, fixed expression. "I understand. Leave him to me. I shall wait up until he comes in."

"Don't be harsh with him," she said pleadingly. "Oh, I am so sorry I told you! Remember, he has always been such a good boy"-

"My dear, you have nothing further not to interfere. You had better go so. I want him to find me here when he sees fit to return to his home."

She retired, with her mother heart anxiously beating, and waited until the click of a latchkey sounded in the street door. She listened, trembling, ready to rush out, a penitent peacemaker. She heard:

"Dick, is that you?" "Yes, sir."

Characteristic Songs.

"It may or may not be the case that a race's temperament can be judged from its folk songs," said a traveler on a transatlantic liner the other day, "but it is interesting to note the difference of subject matter in the songs of various peoples.

"The Irishman, for instance, seems to sing for the most part about his ladylove. Hardly any of his songs are not addressed to his 'Somebody Mavourneen.

"The Scot, on the other hand, sings about his country and its history, as a rule. 'Scots Wha Hae,' 'Ye Banks and Braes o' Bonnie Doon,' 'Loch Lomond, and so on, might be taken as examples.

"The Englishman, it is interesting to note, sings about himself all the time. His songs are about his own glory, his ships, his men, his power. He refers occasionally to old England, but only as a place he made famous by his own prowess. Unlike the Irish and the Scotch, he sings little of his women and his country's beauties."-New York Times.

Tricks of the Trade.

"This watch," said the apprentice, runs too fast. I'll regulate it." "Do nothing of the kind," said the jeweler.

"Why not?" the apprentice asked in surprise. "Because," the other explained, "the owner teaches music." "But hanged if I see"- began the puzzled apprentice. "Listen," the jeweler interrupted. When watches are left here never regulate them unless there is a special order to do so. Some people-music teachers, for instance - want their watches to run a little fast. So do cabbies. So do fencing masters. Other people want their watches to run slow. Builders like slow running watches, Rev. W. H. Warburton, the newly and so do ministers, and so do men appointed pastor of the United Evan- who play billiards by the hour."-Ex-

The Forehead.

A receding brow, like a receding chin, shows a lack of will power and of a firm and quick intelligence. The high, prominent, bulging brow does not contribute to the beauty of the face, but it shows both the absentmindedness and the keen intellect of the scholar. It is the forehead that looks straight, but which in reality slopes back a very little, with the eyebrows projecting and firmly marked,

Willing to Help Along. The cranky old bachelor was irritable. Calling the landlady, he said:

"Mrs. Hashley, who is it that keeps singing 'I Would Not Live Alway?' " "That is the lady in the room across the hall, sir," answered the landlady. "Well," continued the C. O. B., "kindly give her my compliments and tell her if she keeps that up much longer she can rest assured she won't."-Chicago News.

When One Is Choking.

"Raising the left arm as high as you hate to disturb you, dear." He looked can will relieve choking much more "It is after 11, and Dick has rapidly than being thumped on the back," said one of the resident physiclans of a local hospital. "This should I did not wish to speak to you-but-a be more generally known, for often a person gets choked while eating when there is no one near to thump him or her. Very frequently at meals and when they are at play children get choked while eating, and the customary manner of relieving them is to slap them sharply on the back. The effect of this is to set the obstruction free, so that it can be swallowed. The same thing can be brought about by to do with this. I must deal with my raising the left hand of the child as son in my own way. I request you high as possible, and the relief comes much more rapidly. In happenings of quietly to your room. I ask you to do this kind there should be no alarm, for if a child sees that older persons or parents get excited it is very liable to become so also. The best thing is to tell the child to raise its left arm, and immediately the obstruction passes down the throat."-Philadelphia Rec-

Humors of Translation, Victor Hugo always translated the Firth of Forth as "the First of the Fourth" and swore that he was right, too, while Disraell noted with amusement "woebegone" as "douleur vat'en." An early translator of Scott's "Bride of Lammermoor" had it as "La Bride de Lammermoor," the second word meaning "bridle," and the same man rendered "Welsh rabbit" by "Lapin du Pays de Galles." The case of "La Derniere Chemise de l'Amour" for "Love's Last Shift" is classic, and when the farce "Hit or Miss" was done into French it almost was billed as "Frappe on Mademoiselle." That delightful piece in which Toole was at his funniest, "Walker, London," was referred to in a French newspaper as "Londres qui se Promene." The best

The principle of choice should in general follow the taste or need of the friend for whom you are selecting a book. Yet it is also well now and then to open a new channel of interest by giving a volume outside of you friend's habitual line. We are often thankful to a friend who has drawn us out of our mental sheep tracks. There are a few writers that stand as permanent figures in the modern literary world-writers who have given out seminal ideas that seed and beautify the field of thought. Chief among these men are Shakespeare, Carlyle, Ruskin, Emerson and Victor Hugo. Until a library possesses at least the best writings of these five men it is sadly deficient, You are doing kingly service when you make these men known to any thoughtful mind.-Edwin Markham in Success.

Met His Match. Rev. Matthew Wilkes, a celebrated London preacher, was caught in a shower in the famous Billingsgate market, where the profanity of the women who sell fish there is proverbial. As he stopped under a shed among them he felt called upon to at least give his testimony against their wickedness.

"Don't you think," said he, speaking with the greatest deliberation and solemnity, "I shall appear as a swift witness against you in the day of judgment?" "I presume so," said one, "for the biggest rogue always turns state's Wood at 88 a Pound.

"French walnut is the finest wood we have," said the cabinetmaker. " "It comes from Persia, but it is prepared in France. I have seen French walnut worth $8 a pound, and it is a common thing to pay $2 a pound for it. Of course it is used principally for veneering. Only millionaires could have chairs and tables of solid French walnut. Mahogany, wonderful as it is, rarely fetches such high prices. From $2 to $3 is a very good price per pound for this wood. Ebony, if it is a particularly large piece, so that it will cut well, will often bring $5 a pound in the wood market."

There is no better rule for good health than that the bowels should move every day at the same hour if possible. Regularity can be acquired by making a habit of this. Foolish people neglect this and when chroate constipation effects them they take pills every few days to force the bowels to perform their natural function. As years go on they require more and more pills. This should be stopped.
