Wanted: 50 Men and Women.

J. D. Murray, the enterprising druggist, is advertising today for fifty men and women to take advantage of the special half-price offer he is making on Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, and get a fifty cent package at half-price, 25 cents.

So positive is he of the remarkable power of this specific to cure these diseases, as well as sick headaches and liver troubles, that he agrees to refund the money to any customer whom this medicine does not quickly relieve and cure.

With Dr. Howard's specific at hand, you can eat what you want and have no fear of ill consequences. It strengthens the stomach, gives perfect digestion, regulates the bowels, creates an appetite, and makes life worth the living.

This is an unusual opportunity to obtain 60 doses of the best medicine ever made for half its regular price, with the personal guarantee of a well known business man to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

J. D. Murray has been able to secure only a limited supply of the specific, so great is the demand, and you should not delay taking advantage of the liberal offer he is making this week.

LOCALS.

A new summer house is being erected by Henry Homan, east of Centre Hall.

In another column of this issue Col. D. F. Fortney clearly explains the intent of the new law bearing on the ventilation of school rooms.

Miss Annie M. Lohr, who for the past few months has been making her home with S. E. Weber and sister, Miss Anna, in Boalsburg, was in town Monday evening.

The Beaver Springs (Snyder county) Weekly Herald is now edited by Clymer Romig, and owned by M. W. S. Benfer, who purchased the plant at the bankruptcy sale.

Three-fourths of an inch of water fell during a half hour's rain Monday afternoon. The ground is thoroughly soaked, and vegetation is smilingly rising from the earth.

The new Reformed church building at Tylersville was dedicated on Sunday. The pastor, Rev. F. Wetzel, was assisted by Revs. I. R. Brown, M. N. George and H. I. Crow.

There is no end of information about newspapers in the American Newspaper Annual (published by N. W. Ayer & Son, Philadelphia, 85,000 net), the 1907 edition of which is just out.

Millheim lodge, I. O. O. F., will hold memorial services Saturday as follows: Aaronsburg at 2.30 p. m. and at Millheim at 6 p. m. Rev. Black will deliver an address at both places.

Messrs. John Carper and Henry Gingerich, of Linden Hall, were in town Monday. They are both Harris township farmers, and the former is the treasurer of the township school board.

C. W. Smith, a retired farmer, who has been spending much of his time at Colorado Springs, Colorado, returned to his home in Howard for a short time. He expects to return to the popular resort again in the near future.

One of the new residents of Potter township is William H. Baird, and he is highly pleased with his home south of Centre Hall. He has been doing considerable improving to the buildings, etc., and in time will have a most delightful country home.

There are few country school houses that will not need changing to comply with the law requiring that all school rooms be ventilated otherwise than by opening doors and windows. Since this is not a matter of choice, directors should attend to the fulfillment of the law at once.

The Jamestown Exposition prompts Eugene Wood to do a little muck-raking in the past. In "Three Hundred Years Ago," in the July issue of Everybody's Magazine, he attacks the fame of the first Virginia settlers, and finds that Captain John Smith alone was deserving of the honor of the present celebration.

"Mr. Dooley" tells about the Presidential candidates in the July American Magazine. The cartoons are by McCutcheon, Roosevelt, Taft, Fairbanks, Foraker, Root, Beveridge and others are "mentioned." "A fine lot of ivy men" an skelly fine list of him to reject from."

The Hagens, with their force of seven or eight mechanics, are doing a great deal of work in various parts of the county. They just completed a large store house and dwelling at Spring Mills for John H. Rishel; remodeled a farm house for David Vonada, at Farmers Mills; also did the wood-work on the Grove house, Centre Hall, and innumerable repair work, etc., in all parts of the valley.

As a surprise to their mother, Miss Leila Huyett, and her little sister Miriam, arranged a birthday party for Saturday evening, in which a score or more of ladies participated. Every detail of the affair was arranged by the elder daughter, and so elegant and elaborate was the menu and the delicate taste everywhere displayed that the whole reflected great credit. Mrs. Huyett is a very much at home woman, but Saturday she was induced to take a drive across the valley in order that her daughter and helpers might have an opportunity to prepare for the occasion. The surprise was complete.

Every Man His Own Doctor.

The average man cannot afford to employ a physician for every ailment or slight injury that may occur in his family, nor can he afford to neglect them, as so slight an injury as the scratch of a pin has been known to cause the loss of a limb. Hence every man must from necessity be his own doctor for this class of ailments. Success often depends upon prompt treatment, which can only be kept at hand. Chamberlain's Remedies have been in the market for many years and enjoy a good reputation.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm (an anti-septic liniment) for cuts, bruises, burns, sprains, swellings, lame back and rheumatic pains.

Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets for constipation, biliousness and stomach troubles.

Chamberlain's Salve for diseases of the skin.

One bottle of each of these preparations costs but $1.25. For sale by The Star Store, Centre Hall; F. A. Carson, Potters Mills; C. W. Swartz, Tusseyville.

BLONDIN AT NIAGARA.

His Famous Walk on a Slack Rope Over the Cataract.

WITH A MAN UPON HIS BACK.

The Sensations of Henry M. Colcord, Who Was Perched on the Acrobat's Body, as Described by Himself—The Severed Guy Rope Incident.

Charles Blondin, the French rope-walker, though he died in bed at a ripe old age in 1897, performed feats that no other man has ever dared emulate. There are few things in the way of daring that some one will not repeat, but Blondin was the cleverest as well as the most venturesome of his profession. His feats were tasks too great for the skill as well as the courage of his imitators.

Blondin's great trip over Niagara falls in 1859 was the most startling sensation of that time, a thing talked of for a generation afterward. It was witnessed by a crowd of thousands. The present king of England, then Prince of Wales, saw Blondin while on his tour through the United States. He once declared that the sight of Blondin crossing the falls on a swaying rope made a greater impression upon him than any incident of his journey.

Though Blondin crossed on the rope several times, his greatest exploit was when he carried over on his back another man. To the spectators, unused to the acrobat's feats, it seemed impossible for him to keep his swaying footing with the burden on his back. Large sums were laid that he would fall. Blondin's own feeling, however, was one of complete confidence.

But the feelings of the man on his back! That man had never walked a slack rope, had never been suspended in such a dreadful position before, and he had to depend for his safety absolutely on the movements of another. Many years afterward this man, Henry M. Colcord of Chicago, gave an account of his experience to a newspaper.

"You ask what it feels like to be twelve hundred feet in midair over a raging torrent," he said. "I cannot describe it better than by saying that the first sensation was an overwhelming one, in which it was hard to separate awe from fear. Then there came what may best be termed an absolute cessation of all feeling. Before starting from the shore Blondin gave me that injunction which almost every mother has given to the boy at her knee when giving him his first lesson in life.

"Look up, Harry!" he said. "My arms were about his neck, while my legs were slung in hooks at his waist. Out we went over that horrible gulf. I heard the roar of the water below and the hum which ran through the crowd of 100,000 spectators. As we cleared the brink the hum ceased. There was not one person perhaps in that vast throng who did not feel a greater strain than was ours.

"Unable to resist, I stole one glance down at the black waters. It seemed for an instant as if I were poised above the entire universe. There was a feeling of immensity such as I had never felt before and have never felt since. Then I looked up.

"Blondin walked on steadily, pausing for one brief moment at each point where the guy ropes joined the main cable. The line was a trifle steeper at those places and gave him a chance to assure himself of his balance. There was a wide space in the middle of the rope to which it had not been possible to attach guy lines.

"At the last resting place before we reached this slender, swaying span Blondin said to me:

"Harry, you are no longer Colcord; you are Blondin. Until I clear this place be a part of me, mind, body and soul. If I sway, sway with me. Do not attempt to do any balancing yourself. If you do, we shall both go down to our death."

"I had dismounted while he was talking to me and stood with one foot on the line and both hands on his shoulders. I climbed back into my perch, and Blondin started across the unstable part of the line. I had cleared my mind of all feeling save one. I tried to think that instead of being poised in midair, with nothing but a manila rope between me and destruction, I was shut up with Blondin in a confined space where the thought of a fall was farcical.

"Blondin swung to the right and then to the left. Each time I went with him as though we were molded into one piece with immovable parts.

"I knew afterward that the line beneath his feet was swaying horribly and that to the people on the shore it seemed that time and again our bodies were parallel to the rushing Niagara rapids below. Blondin's marvelous skill, however, and the precision with which he manipulated his pole brought us each time to the upright.

"The unprotected center was passed, all but a few feet. Blondin was now running just as a boy runs in order the better to keep his balance when walking a railroad track. We were nearing the point where the joining place of the first guy line from the opposite shore offered us a moment's breathing space. Blondin's foot was planted on the knot which joined the lines.

"My breath came naturally again. At that instant the rope was jerked from beneath his feet. How he caught it again and saved us I never knew. Before I could realize much of anything he was running again. Some gambler interested peculiarly in our deaths had cut the guy rope, hoping to hurl us to the river.

Lots of us will not listen to advice unless we are giving it.

"He did not dare repeat the attempt, and when the second point of connection was reached we rested safely. Blondin stood there like a man of marble, though the agony in his mind had brought great beads of sweat to his brow.

"We reached the shore finally, but before we were well there we could see the people in the crowd, even at a distance from the edge of the gulf, begin to stretch out their arms as if they would draw us in from the peril.

"What the feeling of men was may be shown by the action of the then president of the New York Central railroad. He presented me with a check for $1,000 for crossing with Blondin and then offered me a like amount if I would promise never to do it again."

WAITERS' OUTFITS.

And Other Outfits Designed For Men of Various Occupations.

The man who dined nights in the same restaurant might suppose that the jackets worn by the waiters there were the same as those worn everywhere, that waiters' jackets were all alike, but as a matter of fact such jackets, with other equipment for waiters, are made in great variety for use in different places and seasons, and there are concerns that devote themselves solely to the manufacture of waiters' outfits, together with outfits for cooks, butchers, barkeepers, soda dispensers, barbers, dentists and surgeons.

One such establishment that issues an illustrated catalogue of its productions announces that its name is known in every public dining room and kitchen in this country and that it receives orders from Alaska, Canada, Cuba, the Hawaiian Islands and Mexico and that the United States government has adopted its jackets and aprons for government mess rooms.

Waiters' jackets and coats are made not only in many styles, but of various materials, and vary as to manner of finish and are lined and unlined. They range from a simple white duck jacket to the full dress coat and include coats and jackets appropriate for all engaged in the work, from head waiters and captains down, and are suitable for all sorts of places and occasions.

Of course there are provided waiters' neckwear in variety for various uses and other necessary items of personal equipment, as collars, and so on, and thus it is possible for any waiter to supply himself at one place with a complete outfit.

There are half a dozen styles of cooks' caps and as many varieties of cooks' jackets, including jackets single breasted and double breasted, and there are trousers made for cooks' use, and for cooks and for waiters there are made aprons in many styles and sizes and of various materials.

For barkeepers' use there are made coats in various styles of drill or of duck, some of these being made with loop buttons, and there are made barkeepers' waistcoats in various styles, some without and some with sleeves.

Of butchers' gowns and coats and aprons there are made various styles in a variety of materials. There is a variety of styles of coats designed for barbers, and there are coats specially designed for druggists, and coats for dentists, and specially designed gowns and suits made for the use of surgeons. The manufacture of all these special garments for the various trades and professions enumerated constitutes a business by itself.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

What Squirrels Eat.

Squirrels do not entirely subsist on nuts, as most people suppose. They are largely fruit eaters and occasionally work big havoc in the orchards in the fall of the year. They are not above stealing partridge eggs and on this account are not beloved by the sportsman. Even poultry, when they stray, as they often will, and lay eggs beyond the confines of the poultry yard, suffer from attacks of squirrels when the mother bird is away. In pine tree districts these little climbers are fond of splitting the pine cones and eating the seeds thereof. But above all things squirrels are fond of fungus. They will not have anything to do with the common or garden mushroom, but confidently devour the most yellow and poisonous looking toadstools that grow in damp woods and fields. They never store these, for they know well that fungi will not keep. They devour them greedily as they come to light and revisit the spot as soon as fresh spaw renews the fungus. There are, however, many kinds of toadstools that squirrels know to be poisonous, and these they will not touch.

Unscientific Good Health.

Both the medical officer and the surveyor of the Tarvin (Cheshire) rural district council condemned a cottage at Caldecott Green, near Farndon, for demolition as insanitary. But the tenant, an old man, appeared before the council and told a remarkable story "in stay of execution." He stated that he was seventy-three years of age and lived in the cottage with his wife and three children. For sixty years there had not been a case of illness in his family. His father and mother lived in the cottage before him; his father died at the age of ninety-six and the mother at eighty-nine. He did not think that there could be much wrong with the cottage in face of these facts. In reply to the clerk the old fellow said that personally he had never had a doctor, and the only time a medical man had been in his cottage was when his little son scalded his leg. Under the exceptional circumstances the council decided to adjourn the matter for further inquiries to be made.—London Globe.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER. LIVER TROUBLE.

A dull, sluggish liver always brings a dull, sluggish feeling to the entire body. When the liver works properly the blood courses through the body in a bright red stream. When the liver is inactive the blood becomes dull and muddy, and it is full of poisonous matter. A great many people try to get a fine, clear, pink and white complexion by rubbing things on their faces. They might rub a life time and the same yellow complexion would remain—for the liver causes it. Only bright, red blood brings fine complexions. Blood loaded with impurities from the liver sends the impurities out through the pores of the skin and turns the skin a brownish yellow.

To get rid of the dull, heavy feeling and muddy, yellow complexion get the liver to working again. Two bottles of Cooper's New Discovery will do this nine times out of ten though sometimes it takes four or five bottles.

Here's what a man who tried it says: "My health had been poorly for several years. My face was yellow and covered with pimples, I was bothered constantly with chronic constipation, had little or no appetite and could not sleep well at night. I became weak and lost all ambition. I tried many different medicines but nothing seemed to help me until I began taking Cooper's New Discovery. It seemed to help me at once. Now, after I have taken several bottles I feel entirely well. My face is clear, I sleep well, have a good appetite and am quite myself again." "I am deeply grateful for my restored health." Michael Silk, 24 Kentucky Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.
