A Certain Cure for Croup—Used Ten Years Without a Failure.

Mr. W. C. Bott, a Star City, Ind., hardware merchant, is enthusiastic in his praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. His children have all been subject to croup and he has used this remedy for the past ten years, and though they much feared the croup, his wife and he always felt safe upon retiring when a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy was in the house. His oldest child was subject to severe attacks of croup, but this remedy never failed to effect a speedy cure. He recommended it to friends and neighbors and all who have used it say that it is unequalled for croup and whooping cough. For sale by The Star Store, Centre Hall; F. A. Carson, Potters Mills; C. W. Swartz, Tusseyville.

Snyder Law-Dodgers.

Many school boards throughout Pennsylvania are interpreting the Snyder amended minimum salary law, passed by the recent Legislature, to mean that they can pay their teachers less salary monthly than that fixed by the new law, and after the close of the present term, when the districts receive their state appropriation, pay the teachers the remainder of their salaries.

Districts which withhold the added pay from their teachers under this impression are violating the law, officials of the Department of Public Instruction say that the districts which pursue this course will not only not receive this extra appropriation, but their regular appropriation will be withheld.

At the close of the next school year the officers of the school boards must make affidavit before obtaining any appropriation that they have not only fixed the salary in accordance with the new law, but also that the salaries have been paid. This act increases the minimum salary of teachers from $35 a month to $40 and $50, according to their qualifications and term of service.

LOCALS.

Rain Sunday. It was very acceptable, and will aid the late sown wheat to make a better growth.

Monday morning the ground was frozen for the first time of any consequence this fall. Mercury stood at 24.

It is estimated that the Illinois corn crop will be 500,000,000 bushels, the largest crop ever harvested in that state.

All kinds of nuts are scarce. The small boys have not been able to gather enough chestnuts to scent their pants.

John C. Lingle, of Gregg township, an old veteran of the Civil War, has had his pension increased to $15 a month.

Last Saturday the Edwin Swann property at Rockville, Brush Valley, was sold at public sale to Frank Waite for $217.00.

Last week William Bradford, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Frank Bradford, was very seriously ill of inflammation of the bowels, but at this writing he has very much improved.

The evening service in the Presbyterian church will be omitted next Sunday that the pastor and people may attend the special services of the United Evangelical church.

Dr. and Mrs. G. W. Hosterman, Tuesday morning, went to Lancaster and will be absent until November 4th, consequently the dental office will be closed until that date.

Prof. T. J. Giest has been elected principal of the Millheim High school as successor to Prof. C. R. Neff who resigned. Mr. Giest had been in charge of the school for some weeks as supply.

Mrs. Mary J. Odenkirk is visiting the family of her son, Porter Odenkirk, in Lewisstown. The Odenkirks, and Miss Alda Sankey, who makes her home with them, expect to move from Lewisstown to Burnham.

Everybody's for November opens with a striking article by William Ward, on "Making Steel and Killing Men," which deals fairly with the problem of the safety of workers in the dangerous trade of steel-making.

Tuesday morning Capt. George M. Boal and Col. John W. Stuart, postmasters at Centre Hall and State College, respectively, started for Washington, D. C., to attend a convention of postmasters being held in the National Capitol. Before returning they will visit Jamestown and the Exposition.

Aside from the Thanksgiving atmosphere of the Circle for November, the editors desire to call special attention to two particularly virile articles along civic and industrial lines which appear in this issue. They are written by men who are confronting those conditions and problems in the ordinary course of the "day's work".

Harris township.

John Stamm and family visited in Altoona.

Miss Bess Pearson returned home on Friday, after spending a few weeks at the home of Amos Tyson, near Pine Hill.

Mrs. Glenn, wife of Dr. Glenn, and children, of Rixford, are visiting at the home of her mother, Mrs. M. A. Woods. The doctor was here for a few days during which time he shot a wild turkey.

Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Durst spent Saturday afternoon in Centre Hall.

A. E. Gingerich made a business trip to Huntingdon last week.

Joe Hunter, of near Pittsburg, is visiting in Boalsburg.

Miss Mabel Brown is staying with friends near Pine Hill for an indefinite time.

Rev. A. A. Black and Elder R. B. Harrison are this week attending the meetings of the Eastern Synod, at Lancaster.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Bedelyon, of near Colyer, visited Mrs. Sarah Gingerich.

A. J. Reesman, of Centre Hall, attended to business in Boalsburg on Monday.

Miss Mary Woods, of Spring Mills, visited a few days in Boalsburg and attended the soldiers' reunion.

A Home missionary service will be held in the Reformed church next Sunday at 10 a. m.

Mrs. J. H. Meyer and Miss Gertrude Wieland visited J. Wells Evans and family in Georges Valley. While there they attended communion services in the Salem Reformed church.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos Koch visited their daughters, Mrs. John Neese and Mrs. Bruce Rossman, near Penn Hall and were also present at the services in the Salem church.

Edwin Rupp was a visitor from Altoona recently.

Mrs. Gertrude Wagner is recovering from typhoid fever. Her little sister, Mabel Myers, is now ill with the same disease.

Morton Steece, of Millinburg, who is engaged as trimmer at the carriage works, showed his skill at needle work by making some fine awnings for the Stuart and Wieland store house.

F. W. Weber painted the Boal store building.

David Stuart, of Pittsburg, was here for the reunion.

George C. Meyer, of Lemont, was buying apples in this locality, paying 65 cents per bushel.

He Saw the Game.

The office boy had buried countless grandmothers, brothers, sisters, aunts and cousins, but he felt an enthusiasm for the baseball game that day which would not be damped.

Suddenly an idea struck him. Approaching the easy boss with an air of familiarity which had been nurtured by long usage he asked:

"May I leave at noon today, sir?"

"And why, my boy?"

"There is a fancy fair at our church and mother wants me to go this afternoon. She was so anxious that she bought me a ticket which cost a dollar, as she was sure you would allow me the few hours off. I have to assist at the refreshment stall, and it seems a pity to waste..."

"But surely you are above such things as that which take you away from your work. Why not give the ticket to one of your sisters?"

"Well, you see, sir, that wouldn't be fair, for I'm the only one of our family who can be depended upon to eat a dollar's worth, and..."

His supreme nerve won the day.—Smith's Magazine.

An English Amenity.

A striking difference between our manners and those of our English cousins was shown one day at a garden party. The hostess, an American, was speaking to one of her guests, an Englishwoman of rank.

"Dear Lady B.," she said, "here are some sandwiches which I made with my own hands, particularly for you. You know I've often told you about our American sandwiches and how good they are. Here are different sorts, lettuce and cucumbers, if you care for 'grass,' or if you like a savory better try the cream cheese ones with pimientos. I've some sweet ones, too, raisins and nuts chopped together—which will you try first?"

She held a plate in each hand, a plate filled with dainty looking sandwiches, and they were extended invitingly toward her guest, who looked at them critically, then said in the clear high pitched voice of the well bred Englishwoman:

"Oh, thank you, so kind of you, but do you know I never touch the nasty things?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Chance For a Home Run.

A clever teacher who has the power of calling out originality in her pupils says that she would have no use for text books if she took time to answer all the startling questions asked in the classroom. One day the attraction of gravitation was under discussion when one of the boys said that he didn't see any need of it, anyway.

"It seems to me," said he, "there's no particular use in having the earth attract things. Now, when the apple fell and made Newton think out the reason for it, that apple might just as well have stayed where it was until somebody gathered it."

"You play ball, don't you?" asked the teacher. "Well, suppose you knock the ball very high, what happens?"

"It falls."

"But if there were no attraction toward the earth it wouldn't fall. Don't you think that might prove inconvenient?"

"My," cried the boy, "what a bully chance for a home run!"—Chicago News.

Her Supposition.

In the Beecher family the name of Mrs. Stone was often quoted to the rising generation as one having authority. She was also quoted as nauseous. It would seem, from a story told by the Woman's Journal, on one occasion a grandchild of Mrs. Stone became very angry at a playmate and, stamping her foot, said, "I hate you, and I can't wait anything more to do with you, nor your manservant, nor your hall-servant, nor your ox, nor your ass." Her mother sternly repeated her saying.

"I'll be Mrs. Beecher promptly replied, "Repeat the Ten Commandments."

"I'll do you know who wrote them?"

"The child, looking disgusted, answered, "Godliness, yes. Aunt Harriet did, I s'pose."

The Word "Poultry."

Poultry, according to the definition given in one standard encyclopedia, includes "the whole of the domesticated birds reared by man for the sake of their flesh and their eggs." The word comes from the Latin "pullus," which could mean a young horse or donkey as well as a chick (the English "foal" is from the Latin "foetus," through the French "poulet," a foal). But it is curious that "poultry" has no French version, the nearest equivalent being "volaille," or "sauces de basse cour," birds of the low yard. German in its descriptive way lists poultry as "Federvieh," feathered stock.

An Unpleasant Ancestor.

Mr. B. is very proud of his ancient lineage and never lets slip an opportunity to brag of it. At a dinner which he had been unusually rampant on this subject a fellow guest quietly hit by remarking, "If you climb much further up your family tree you will come face to face with the monkey."—Lippincott.

A Piece Conference.

Russian Bear—I think we had better have our representatives sit in convention and do what we have long contemplated—divide up Turkey. British Lion—Yes; in other words, hold another piece conference.—Norristown (Pa.) Times.

His Big Score.

Beginner at Golf—How many have I taken, my boy? Is it fifteen or sixteen? Disgusted Caddie—Ach, I dinna ken. It's no a caddie ye need; it's a billiard marker.—People's Journal.
