LOCALS.

There is a great deal of sickness through Penns and Nittany Valleys, which is keeping the doctors busy.

Mrs. Mehaffey, of Altoona, and Mr. and Mrs. Bremmel, of Pittsburg, last week, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick K. Carter.

R. D. Foreman is putting in bath fixtures in the new addition being built to his residence. The plumbing is being done by J. S. Rowe.

John Breen, Jr., of Altoona, is one of the many Reporter subscribers who in making a remittance had a good word to say: "We enjoy reading the Reporter very much."

The musical concert at Madisonburg, Saturday evening, under the direction of Prof. P. H. Meyer, was a success—financially and otherwise. The attendance was large, and the music altogether pleasing.

Miss Aggie Murray, the latter part of last week, went to Millersville to be with her sister, Mrs. H. F. Bitner, during the worst days of her illness. She returned home Monday. Mrs. Bitner's sickness is noted elsewhere.

The McNitt-Huyett Lumber Company recently purchased an additional one hundred and fifty acres of timber land near their present mill at Snyderstown. Other smaller tracts have also been purchased lately. This will lengthen their time of operating at that point.

In the February number of Everybody's Magazine the publishers have a production of which they may well be proud. From the cover, which represents an Oriental rug of warm color and intricate design, down to the final pages, where Thomas W. Lawson explains his reasons for giving up his long-waged war upon criminal high finance.

The Reporter subscribers are buying 8's, 9's, 10's, 11's 12's, 13's, 14's and one subscribers has a 15 on his label—1915. These "goods" are offered at a bargain—a year's subscription for one dollar—and the Reporter is anxious to place at least an 8 or 9 on the label of every patron of this paper. In fact, it must be done if the paper is to go through the mails.

From Glenville, Nebraska, Mrs. Anna Holdeman writes the Reporter: "We are having lovely weather in Nebraska. There has been no snow to speak of, and at present the roads are dry and have been that way almost all winter. The rural route postmen have been using their motor cycles and automobiles right along. How is that for the west?"

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Kline, of Watsontown, this week were guests of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Meyer, in Centre Hall. The Klines and Meyers became friends in Bellefonte when they lived neighbors. MEASLES KILLS MANY CHILDREN

Health Commissioner Dixon Sounds Warning to Mothers Who Do Not Appreciate the Serious Nature of This Disease.

MORE THAN SCARLET FEVER

Deaths From Measles Number Two and a Half Times Those From Scarlet Fever—Impaired Eyesight and Hearing Apt to Follow.

Measles killed 1,463 persons in Pennsylvania during the year 1906 according to the record kept by the Bureau of Vital Statistics of the State Department of Health. Of these, 1240 were under five years of age.

During the month of December alone of this past year, there were reported to the State Department of Health, 2307 cases of this disease which annually kills about two and one-half times more children than scarlet fever and yet continues to be regarded by so many people with comparatively little concern.

"How to make the public appreciate the really serious danger of measles and get them to observe precautions to prevent the spread of the disease is about the hardest problem in educational sanitary work that I have encountered," said State Health Commissioner Dixon recently.

"A scarlet fever case in a neighborhood seems to strike terror to every mother's heart. If quarantine regulations are broken by the members of the infected household our health officers receive immediate complaints from other parents in the vicinity who are fearful that the disease may be transmitted to their own little ones. This is natural and right, for scarlet fever is a dangerous disease, but if we could only get mothers to be equally concerned in keeping their children from the infection of measles, we might save many a home from the sorrow of an infant grave.

"If the child who has contracted measles because it has been carelessly exposed to the disease escapes death, too often a terrible affliction follows, as for instance, seriously impaired hearing, damaged eyesight or chronic respiratory affections that sadly interfere with the normal, mental and physical development. Is it not possible that mothers will wake up to these real dangers in measles before it is too late, as a life long sorrow and regret is the penalty of their carelessness."

The seven hundred and fifty township Health Officers of the State Department of Health when notified of a case of measles in their district post on the infected premises a placard stating that "all persons are notified of the presence of measles and are warned of the danger of visiting or coming in contact with the occupants of this house." The Health Officer also leaves at the house a circular containing the following instructions for managing the disease and preventing the spread of the infection.

"Measles is by no means the harmless disease it is thought to be by many people, since it is shown by the statistics of the Department of Health that in some epidemics more children die from measles than from Scarlet Fever. "For this reason it is imperative that a physician be summoned and every possible effort made to check the spread of the disease.

"The patient should be confined to one room with windows screened, which room should be well lighted and ventilated and as remote as possible from other occupied rooms, in the house.

"There should be neither carpets, curtains or upholstered furniture in the room. In order to confine the infection to this room a sheet kept constantly moist with a solution of Bichloride of Mercury should be hung over the doorway.

"To prepare this solution, dissolve eight (8) Bichloride of Mercury tablets in one gallon of hot water.

"An abundance of fresh air should be admitted to the room, but the patient should be protected from direct draughts and strong light.

"The air of the sick room cannot be disinfected during its occupancy by the patient.

"The practice of hanging up cloths saturated with carbolic acid or placing saucers of Chlorinated Lime or preparatory disinfectants in the sick room is not only annoying to the patient, but utterly useless if not injurious.

"All bed and body clothing, including handkerchiefs, towels, napkins, cloths, etc., used for the collection of discharges from the mouth and nose should be disinfected before leaving the sick room.

"For this purpose, use a solution made by dissolving one-quarter (1/4) of a pound of Chlorinated Lime (bleaching powder) in eight gallons of water, allowing such articles to remain in the solution at least three hours before being washed.

"Eating utensils should be scalded and remnants of food destroyed by burning.

"None but those actually in attendance upon the patient should be permitted to enter the sick room or come in contact with the patient.

"The nurse or attendant should wear only washable clothing with a protective gown and covering for the hair and when leaving the sick room should remove such protective garments and disinfect exposed surfaces.

"When the attending physician announces recovery, the patient should be given an antiseptic bath under the direction of the doctor, especial attention being paid to the disinfection of the hair and scalp.

"The antiseptic bath may be prepared by dissolving two Bichloride of Mercury tablets in every gallon of hot water used, this to be followed by a plain soap and water bath. After bathing the patient should be wrapped in a clean sheet handed from without and step into a clean room to dress.

"Following the recovery, death or removal of the patient—the sick room and its contents should be disinfected with formaldehyde gas. This gas may be liberated by the addition of an official (U. S. P.) solution of formaldehyde to potassium permanganate. Six and one-half (6 1/2) ounces, by weight, of commercial potassium permanganate crystals is required for each pint of the formaldehyde solution. This amount of chemicals is sufficient to disinfect a room ten feet square. In using formaldehyde gas disinfection, the air of the room should be both warm and moist. The latter may be accomplished by sprinkling the floor or by suspending wet sheets around the room.

"Place the crystals in a tin, azote or iron pail, the capacity of which is over eight times the quantity of disinfectants to be used. This is necessary to prevent over-flow of the solution due to effervescence.

"The pail containing the crystals should be placed at the centre of the room in a tub or dish pan with a non-conductor such as a stove lid or bricks under it, since considerable heat is given off on the mixing the chemicals.

"Caution—It has been recently determined that the gas so liberated is slightly inflammable. The room should be warm and moist, but, under no circumstances should the chemicals be mixed and this form of disinfection performed in the presence of fire or flame in the room. A separate container should be used for every pint of formaldehyde solution and proportionate amount of potassium permanganate required. It would be well to surround the vessel within which the fumes should be used for every pint least three feet with some absorbent material to receive any stray bubbles, thereby protecting the floor or carpet from any possibility of resulting stains.

"In the preparation of the room for such disinfection, it should be sealed with strips of gummed paper or surgeons' plaster, closing flues, ventilators, chimney places and all visible cracks and crevices about walls, doors and windows. Open up beds, stand mattresses on end, open closets, bureau drawers, trunks, etc., and spread their contents about the room.

"Fabrics, especially carpets, bed and body clothing fully unfolded, should be suspended upon chairs, clothes-lines, bedsteads, etc., exposing all to the fumes of the gas.

"When the room is properly sealed, quickly pour the formaldehyde solution upon the crystals from a wide mouthed vessel that it may be done quickly and make a hasty retreat.

"Carefully seal the door of exit, including the key-hole and crevices about the door knob and allow the room to remain closed at least six hours.

"After disinfection soak bed and body clothing, etc., in a solution made by dissolving four (4) ounces of Chlorinated Lime (chloride of lime or bleaching powder) in eight (8) gallons of water.

"After remaining in this solution for three hours they should be removed and boiled at least one hour.

"After the necessary cleaning the windows should be opened and the room thoroughly aired for two days before it is again occupied.

"As disinfectant agents are poisonous when taken internally, such drugs and solutions should always be plainly labelled and kept out of the reach of children.

"Those suffering from this disease will not be permitted to attend school prior to the receipt of a certificate of disinfection issued by the Health Officer.

"Other children in the households not contracting the disease at the end of twenty-one (21) days from the date of the first appearance of the disease in the house may return to school provided they have not been exposed to the sick room for that length of time.

"The use of the word school, wherever it occurs in the regulations of the Department shall mean, public, private, parochial, Sunday or other school."

THE MID-WINTER OUTING.

This is the time for the midwinter outing. A dash of summer in the midst of winter is an agreeable variation. It makes for health and pleasure and stimulates vitality.

For the extended trip, Southern California, the fruit and flower land of the Pacific Coast, offers unrivaled attractions.

For the fortnight's trip, Florida, the summer garden of the Northern winter, bids you come and enjoy its genial sunshine, its tropical scenes and its outdoor life.

For the ten days' outing, Pinehurst, Camden, Alken, Augusta, Southern Pines and other popular resorts in the pine belt of the Carolinas and Georgia offer many inducements.

For the short trip—the week-end outing—Atlantic City is always attractive. The same breezes that depress the thermometer in summer seem to keep it up in winter. It offers great hotels on the ocean's edge, out-of-door life on land and sea, and a climate full of snap but shorn of the winter's severity.

Before deciding on your midwinter outing consult a Pennsylvania Railroad Ticket Agent and get a Pennsylvania Railroad Winter Excursion Book. Whether you select California, Florida, the Carolinas, or Atlantic City, the Pennsylvania Railroad offers a comprehensive train service, reasonable rates and ticketing arrangements, and the best facilities that modern transportation methods can provide.
