Monday morning farmers began work in the fields in real earnest after a week's patient waiting for the clouds to part and let in the sunshine.

Mrs. Joseph Woomer, of Pine Grove Mills, was taken to the Wills Eye hospital in Philadelphia. She was there last autumn and had one eye removed and it is feared she will lose the sight of the other.

Miss Helen Bartholomew and Ed. L. Bartholomew came to Centre Hall Saturday. The latter returned to Altoona Monday, while the former will remain for a few days before going back to Tyrone.

Among the graduates of the Bellefonte High School is Miss Grace Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Crawford, formerly of Centre Hall. Her subject for exercises this (Thursday) evening, is "Class History".

Miss Jennie Foreman is ill at present at the home of her mother, Mrs. Sarah Foreman, in Centre Hall. She had been keeping house for Hon. L. Rhone, and while at the Rhone home erysipelas broke out in her face and spread to her scalp. Her condition now is some better.

Mr. McCormick is conducting an extensive undertaking establishment, and has been successful in business returns in the south.

In "fixing up" around a place, there is a tendency to trim the trees and most people, once started at it, butcher the helpless things and spoil the natural beauty they possess. There is a harmony of form which the ordinary growth of trees produce and few men have the gift to improve the view if they do more than cut away the dead limbs and the sprouts which do not belong to the system of branches.

A note from Frank Bloomster, who was one of the drillers when the test well was sunk at Centre Hall, states that he is yet in the same business and with Mr. Brown. Eighteen wells have been put down by them since leaving Centre Hall, and all ranging in depth from 2500 to 2800 feet. Mr. Brown and Mr. Bloomster contemplate a visit to Centre Hall during the Encampment and Fair in September.

The Ladies World for June is the most attractive number of this periodical that we have yet seen, and there is small wonder at its popularity when so much that is good is offered for so little. There are three notable special articles in the number, one of them describing the Bryan family life at Fairview, and another the growing up of Ethel Roosevelt, the young lady of the White House, while the third has some remarkable pictures showing the ways of a bird with its young.

Cows have been turned into pasture, and the cream hauled by the several routemen to the creamery at Centre Hall has materially increased in quantity. The butter manufactured by the Howard Creamery Corporation's plant at this place is of such a high grade that the product is in great demand at all seasons of the year. This condition enables the purchasing of cream from the farmers at a time when it is plentiful as well as when scarce—a point not to be overlooked.

SENSELESS "MAD-DOG" SCARES.

The New York World Speaks with Wisdom on the Subject—The Disease a Very Rare One.

The death of William H. Marsh, the New York manufacturer, of hydrophobia, seems likely to be the cause of many senseless panics, says the World in an editorial. Wherever a dog in play snaps at a child or in anger inflicts a wound, some foolish person is almost sure to raise the "mad-dog" cry and perhaps frighten the injured one into illness. Patients in such cases sometimes hypnotize themselves into the belief that they are stricken and simulate what they suppose to be hydrophobia symptoms. They may even die in their terror and agony.

Hydrophobia in man is an exceedingly rare disease. Even in a city so great as New York we have to go back half a century to find in the case of Ada Clare one which attracted so much attention as that of Mr. Marsh. The average citizen stands a thousand times greater chance of falling out of a window while asleep or being hit by a dislodged sign-board than he does of dying by hydrophobia. Even in cases of dog-bite the real danger is usually blood-poisoning or lockjaw, not rabies.

So in dogs themselves the disease is not very common. The unjustly accused may be a homeless and ailing cur suffering for want of water, in which case the community is served by despatching him. If a household pet is taken with fits which alarm the neighbors a homely remedy is to tie him in a cool place, with no food but plenty of water, until he recovers.

In any event the "mad-dog scare" is purely, utterly baseless except in the millionth case, and even then it adds to the danger.

CROSSING THE BAR.

Dying Words of Some of the World's Famous Men.

Nothnagel, who died alone in his room, noted his own symptoms to the last. A letter to his assistant is said to have ended as follows: "Written late on the evening of July 6 just after experiencing these severe attacks—died of calcification of the arteries." Traube also made observations on himself to the very end. Locock expressed a wish to be present at the post-mortem examination on himself, and among Cuvier's last recorded words is a remark, as his fingers twitched involuntarily: "Charles Bell is right: 'Ce sont les nerfs de la volonte qui sont malades.'" Dyer Davidson, professor at Aberdeen, died immediately after saying to his class, speaking of the next meeting, which was never to take place: "Four o'clock on Monday, gentlemen; 4 o'clock."

Several doctors have taken their leave with a blessing to those around them. Astley Cooper's last recorded words are, "God bless you, and goodby to you all!" He had previously said to his physicians, Bright and Chambers, "God's will be done; God bless you both!" adding, "You must excuse me, but I shall take no more medicine." Benjamin Brodie was heard to mutter, "After all, God is very good." The saddest of all recorded last words are probably those of Oliver Goldsmith, who, when asked by his physician if his mind was at ease, said, "No, it is not!" On the other hand, William Hunter's mind seems to have been full of bright thoughts at the moment of death, for he said, "If I could hold a pen, what a book I could write!"

Pasteur and Darwin, though not belonging to the medical profession, are venerated by it as teachers. Darwin's last words were, "I am not the least afraid to die." Pasteur was offered a cup of milk and, being unable to swallow it, murmured, "I cannot." He passed away with one hand in his wife's, the other grasping a crucifix. Lastly are mentioned the last words of Mirabeau, which are said to have been addressed to a doctor. He wrote on a slip of paper, which he gave to his physician, the philosopher Cabanis, the single word, "Dormir." Another account, which may be an expanded version of this, is that after begging for an anodyne he said reproachfully to the doctor: "Were you not my physician and my friend? Did you not promise to spare me the suffering of such a death? Must I go away carrying with me the regret of having confided in you?" This is rather a long and rhetorical speech for a dying man.—British Medical Journal.

Japanese New Year Cakes.

An annual event in Japan is the making of the New Year's cake, which every family must have fit good luck is to follow it during the ensuing year. This cake is made of a peculiar variety of rice, boiled and pounded in a great wooden mortar until it is of the consistency of dough. Although the pure white dough is often colored yellow or pink, the shape of the cake is always the same—that of the sacred mirror, one of the three sacred symbols of the Shinto faith. A piece of this cake is offered to the Shinto deities because it is of the shape of the sacred mirror which wooed the sun goddess to come out of the cave where she had hidden herself in wrath and thus saved the land from total darkness. Each member of the family takes a hand in the manufacture of the New Year's cake. Even the baby is carried out and his baby hand guided in lifting the heavy wooden mallet for a "good luck" blow. Enough is made to last nearly the whole year through, and it occupies an important place in the daily menu.—Leslie's Weekly.

Queer Fish.

At first thought the electric chair, which sends the criminal to his doom, would seem to be a refinement of invention possible only to man's genius. But the electric eel can numb a horse so that it will drop before recovering from the shock, and the fiercest fish is rendered helpless by the gentlest touch of this creature. Small wonder these eels flourish in their native waters and seldom fall to find food enough and to spare!

At any rate, the gentleman angler casting his fly upon the ripple is unique. Surely no animal can match the rod and line! Yet there is a fish with a long, slender filament drooping forward from its head, tipped with a fleshy, wormlike appendage. The fish lies quietly on the bottom and awaits a nibble. Soon a minnow makes a dash for the waving luscious morsel. The huge mouth opens, and—the funny angler has dined! A veritable Shylock this, with rod, line and bait of his own flesh and bone!—Chicago Record-Herald.

When the Nose Bleeds.

When the nose is bleeding never hold it over a basin or hold the head down in any way. This only causes further rush of blood to the broken tissues in the nose. The head should be held up and back, the flow being caught in handkerchiefs or cloths. One of the most effective and simple means of checking a nosebleed is to press on the upper lip. Near the undersurface of the lip runs the artery that supplies the interior nasal passages where the ruptures occur. If this is pressed, the flow of blood is mechanically checked, thus allowing the blood around the broken tissues to congeal and seal up the opening. If merely pressing with the finger does not succeed, place a wad of paper under the lip and fold the lip over it, holding it down tight. Again, if this does not succeed and a drug store is near get some adrenalin, saturate a piece of cotton with it and apply to the interior of the nose from where the blood flows.

Henney, the blacksmith! If it is difficult to repair, take it to him—he can mend it.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes. The kidneys are your blood purifiers, they filter out the waste or impurities in the blood. If they are sick or out of order, they fail to do their work. Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail. Home of Swamp-Root, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.
