Juniors Lose Again.

By the score of 3 to 2 Spring Mills again defeated the local junior team on Grange Park Saturday afternoon. The game was a good one, and was always in doubt. The visitors scored the winning run in the ninth inning, and Centre Hall made a bold effort to tie the game, when, with two out, Wm. Bradford hit for two bases; Allison tried hard to bring home the tying run but Hagan made a good catch of his attempt.

The score:

Penns Cave Undergoing Repairs.

Extensive repairs and improvements are being made at the Penns Cave house by the new owners of Penns Cave. The hotel is being repainted on the exterior and interior, and the rooms are being repaired and furnished on the three floors.

A water system has also been installed, the water being pumped from a well by a gasoline engine to the attic, and from there is run by gravity to the various parts of the building. Bath and toilet rooms have been installed on the three floors, and everything is being made to afford comfort and convenience to the guests who go there for health and recreation.

The owners also have in contemplation the beautifying of the grounds, and the placing of a new and larger boat to carry passengers into the most wonderful cavern. An acetylene search light of many hundred candle power is now in use, and the cave for the first time is being seen in detail. The most curious objects of limestone formation have been discovered, and the sighter is obliged to keep continually craning his neck to see the many heretofore unobserved objects of admiration.

The chef is capable of serving the most fastidious, and can and will do so on short notice.

Head for Hawaiian College.

Prof. John W. Gilmore will leave Pennsylvania State College, about August 1st, to accept the presidency of the Hawaiian College, an institution organized under an act of Congress, and which receives a Federal grant of $30,000. The Hawaiian legislature also appropriates $25,000 annually for maintenance. The faculty for this new institution, which will consist of 20 members, will be selected by President Gilmore.

Millheim Journal.

The board of health of Millheim, as newly organized, consists of the following members: Dr. G. S. Frank, George Ulrich, F. E. Gutelius, H. N. Meyer and A. A. Frank. Secretary, P. H. Musser.

Mrs. Lydia A. Musser will leave this (Thursday) morning for a long visit at West Union, Iowa, and other places in the west. Mrs. Musser is 83 years of age and this is her tenth trip to the western states. She will travel alone and will stop enroute at Lafayette, Ind., to spend a week with her granddaughter, Mrs. P. B. Breneman, who is a resident of that place.

On Wednesday of last week while Charles Orndorf, of Woodward, with his team was assisting several lumbermen in making logs in the woods near that place a tree that was being cut down was twisted off the stump by the high wind that prevailed and blown onto his team that was standing nearby. One of the horses escaped injury, but the other had a rib broken and received severe bruises.

There are quite a lot of building operations going on in Millheim this summer. A Kessler is building a large addition to his dwelling on North street. Alfred Kreamer will make improvements on his residence on Penn street, and J. C. Hosterman has the lumber on the ground to build an extension to his house on Main street. A number of other minor improvements are projected with work sufficient to keep all the carpenters in town busy all summer.

Democratic Watchman.

Will Carson has been over from Penns Valley this week attending court and says he is still in love with his new home so that it looks like a permanent move for William.

What is known as the back farm belonging to the Hunter estate in Buffalo Run Valley, was not sold at public sale on Tuesday, as the highest bid offered was only $28 50 per acre. The heirs refusing to accept this the sale was continued.

H. S. Moore, of this place, has completed arrangements for the structural steel plant in the old chain works buildings between Bellefonte and Milesburg. While the plant will be started on a small scale it will be equipped to turn out all kinds of steel structural work for buildings, bridges, tipples, etc.

Rebersburg.

The wet weather has greatly retarded the farmers in this vicinity with their spring work, hence there is a great deal of corn still to be planted.

C. C. Long is building an addition to his dwelling house, which improves his home very much.

The new landlord, Mr. Faxon, recently built a fine porch along the entire front of the hotel. He will make other improvements on the building.

Supervisor Wm. Bair is crushing stones and placing them on the public roads. Mr. Bair understands his business as supervisor of roads, and the public roads will be greatly improved under his direction.

Saturday the Rebersburg base ball team crossed bats with the Avis team at Tylersville. The score was 7 to 8, in favor of Rebersburg.

Floyd Gramley, a student at Penn's State College, spent Sunday under the parental roof.

The dwelling house which C. M. Gramley is erecting at the extreme eastern part of town is nearing completion, and will be occupied by Mervin Kunes and family.

Rev. E. E. Haney preached an excellent memorial sermon Sunday forenoon, in the Evangelical church.

singing, "God be with you till we meet again," and benediction by Rev. A. M. Schmidt.

Notwithstanding the very unfavorable weather, and the reduction by one-half of the number of delegates allowed each school, the attendance was large. The general verdict was a good and profitable meeting.

SNOW BLINDNESS.

The Way This Terrible Affliction Affects Its Victims.

Snow blindness is an affliction little known through description, though not very difficult to describe, for here the strongest adjectives need few qualifications. The pain does not follow immediately upon the straining which seems to be its cause. After a long day of haze the traveler finds when he gets into camp that his eyes are a little itchy and that they water if he comes too near a fire or any source of heat. Later they feel as if there were a trace of smoke in the tent, then as if a grain or two of sand had got under the eyelids and finally as if the eye sockets were lined with sandpaper. Every movement of the eye causes pain, and then the pains begin to come without a provoking roll of the eyeball. At first there is a dull ache, growing gradually sharper until toward morning of a sleepless night it throbs through the eyes every few seconds, with twinges comparable to, but not equaled by, the shooting pains of toothache. It is the only affliction with the pain of which the ordinary Eskimo cries out. The severity of the attack diminishes toward the end of the first twenty-four hours. For the larger part of that time the sufferer usually keeps his tent, moaning and occasionally crying out sharply, lying on his face, with both hands covering his closed eyes to keep out the faintest possible light. On the second or perhaps third day he is able to travel, but is very nearsighted and sees everything double. In a week or so, if the weather is hazy or he has on goggles, the same individual may have another attack, but the first attack of the year is the most severe apparently. Every attack weakens the eyes and predisposes to further attacks, which—so at least the Eskimos believe—finally lead to total blindness, an affliction rather common among the Eskimos.

Keeping the eyes from strain and, if possible, focusing them continually on some dark object, such as a black dog in one's team, is believed by the natives to be the chief safeguard. The same view is held by many of the royal northwest mounted police, whose duties within the arctic and on the plains of the northwest frequently expose them to snow blindness. Nothing perhaps could more clearly bring out the trying nature of the affliction than the fact that one or more suicides among the policemen on spring duty in the northwest are attributed to inability to bear the pain of snow blindness. Occasionally the police employ the amusing but apparently rather effective device of painting the nose black and trying to focus the eyes upon it. The type of nose may have something to do with the effectiveness of this scheme. —V. Stefansson in Harper's Magazine.

Why We Sleep.

The well known explanation that the stiffness of the atmosphere in a church is the cause of sleepiness in members of the congregation is, according to the Revue Scientifique (Paris), "insufficient." If this hypothesis were tenable, argues our authority, it is manifest that the congregation, or those members of it who react readily to a soporific agent, would go to sleep before the sermon began. Now, it is notorious that the sleeping is done during the sermon. The true explanation is that the auditor unconsciously hypnotizes himself or herself by concentrating the gaze for a long period on a single object, whether the countenance of the preacher or the pulpit or what not. The more desperate the effort to heed the sermon the surer this effect of self hypnotization. Those who sleep during the sermon are consequently the very members of a congregation who are entitled to the highest praise for their conscientious effort to follow the words of the preacher.—Current Literature.

One System That Won.

"He who breaks the bank today will be broken by the bank tomorrow," was a favorite saying of M. Blanc, founder of the casino at Monte Carlo. There have been many systems that were called infallible invented for the purpose of breaking the bank from the D'Alembert to the Rosslyn and Labouchere, but only one of them all has ever given the keepers of the bank a moment's real anxiety. This was the discovery of a keen eyed old lady who observed that if the croupier spun with certain numbers opposite him certain other numbers inevitably won. As a matter of fact, it was all very simple. The roulette wheel had become warped and was not quite round and thus invariably stuck at easily ascertainable figures. This little discovery put 300,000 francs into the pockets of the old lady and her accomplices before M. Blanc bought the secret for 70,000 francs.—Westminster Gazette.

Some German Composers.

In answer to a correspondent "Mentel" gives a list showing the "creativity" of some German composers. Franz Abt, according to the figures published, "created" 2,610 compositions, of which 1,079 were choruses, 106 duets and 1,134 songs. Johann Sebastian Bach is credited with 1,102 compositions, of which 225 were for the organ and 611 were choruses. Beethoven's compositions are placed at 439; Brahms, 538; Handel, 807; Haydn, 575; Liszt, 955; Mozart, when he was thirty-five years old, had written 620 compositions; Raff, 610; Rubinstein, 550; Schubert, thirty-one years old, 791; Schumann, forty-six years old, 671. When we except Caerny and Diabelli, who wrote for pedagogical purposes, Mozart and Schubert rank highest for prolific work. The statistician did not consider in his list the compositions intended for the stage.

MUST PROTECT PUBLIC HEALTH

Owner of Mill From Which Sewage Flowed Into the Schuylkill River Is Held Guilty.

Judge Swartz, of the Montgomery county court, in delivering his opinion said: "The act of the legislature is a police regulation for the protection of the public health. This is a highly beneficial act; it is doing much to promote public health." Judge Porter, of the superior court, in his opinion said: "The statute was passed in the exercise of the police power of the state. That power undoubtedly extends to all regulations affecting the health, good order, morals, peace and safety of society. All sorts of restrictions and burdens are imposed under this power, and when these are not in conflict with any constitutional prohibition, or fundamental principle, they cannot be successfully assailed in a judicial tribunal. That the preservation of the waters of the state from pollution, involving danger to health, is a proper subject for the exercise of the police power cannot be seriously questioned."

Of widespread importance is the recent decision of the supreme court of Pennsylvania upholding the constitutionality of the act of April 22, 1905, known as the "Purity of Water Law," under which the commissioner of health is given power to protect the streams of the state from pollution. The case in question was the "Commonwealth of Pennsylvania against Edward Emmers," and had been carried by the defendant from the Norristown county courts to the superior court and then to the supreme court, the decision in each instance convicting the party violating the Purity of Water Law by polluting a stream with sewage.

The defendant is the owner and operator of the hosiery mill situated on or near the banks of the Schuylkill river, in Montgomery county, where he employs a large number of operators. Nine water closets for the use of these employees, sewage from all of which closets was discharged by a single pipe into the Schuylkill river, were declared by the commissioner of health to be a menace to public health, and the defendant was given notice that this discharge of sewage must be discontinued under the provisions of the Purity of Water Law. Failing to comply with the law, the mill owner was prosecuted.
