To Build Large School House.

The school directors of Boggs township recently awarded the contract for erecting a large school building at Curtin to supersede the old school building at that place, the new structure to be used by two school grades, formerly requiring separate buildings.

The contract for building the new building was awarded to Newton Jones, of Milesburg, and work thereon will be rushed so that it will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of the school term in September.

Keith's Theatre.

The bill at Keith's Philadelphia theatre for this week contains six headliners. Louise Dresser, comedienne and vocalist, has new songs. A little chap who came from England unheralded and made an instant hit in all the Eastern cities, was Laddie Cliff, 16-year-old comedian and grotesque dancer, who is on the bill this week. Butler and Bassett have a mid-winter novelty for a mid-summer show, a skating rink on real ice, manufactured on the stage. They carry their own ice-making machine and freeze a surface of water sufficiently large to enable them to perform their various skatorial feats. There is a big children's act, Melville Stoltz's Little Players in "Kiddieland," a merry musical melange for children of all ages. Mile, Olympia Desval appears with her trained dogs and ponies. T. J. McGrane and Company present a one-act play, entitled "The Avenger."

There is plenty of room at the top, because so many who get there fall off.

POLICE STOP KLOPERS.

Madisonburg Fair Walk 25 Miles Only to be Caught at Lock Haven

The following dispatch dated Lock Haven, 2nd inst., appeared in the Philadelphia Press: Information was received at police headquarters last night from Madisonburg, Centre county, to be on the lookout for Miss Edna Limbert, aged 18 years, and Emery Grenoble, aged 28 years, who had eloped and were traveling in this direction.

At 1.30 o'clock this morning Patrolmen C. B. Reck and C. G. Mack saw a couple coming down Bellefonte avenue. They were promptly arrested and held to await the arrival of the runaway bride's father.

They told the police they had left home about 11 o'clock in the morning and walked all the way from Madisonburg to this city, a distance of twenty-five miles, and were going to the Pennsylvania Railroad station to take the flyer for Buffalo when the police stopped them.

The father arrived on a later train, and as the daughter agreed to return home with him he ordered the discharge of the would-be bridegroom and all returned to Madisonburg together.

State Road in Harris.

The construction of a section of state road, some seven thousand odd feet in length in Harris township, is now under way. The road begins at the bridge east of Boalsburg, and terminates at Oak Hall. This will give the town of Boalsburg a state road on its principal streets, and to its railroad station, a stretch of road very much traveled. Contractor R. B. Taylor began construction at the bridge, where a fill from three to four feet is being made. The stone for this fill is being quarried at the blue spring, west of Boalsburg.

The Harris township road is an expensive one. This is due to the necessity of reconstructing the bridge between Boalsburg and Oak Hall, and also the heavy grades on the road.

The citizens of Boalsburg and the township are taking a deep interest in the work of construction, and are quite certain that a well built road between the points mentioned will be of great benefit to them.

LOCALS

The Repaz band, of Williamsport, will be at the business men's picnic to furnish the band music. There will also be an orchestra.

M. L. Miller, father of Mrs. Charles F. Lantz, of Millinburg, died a few days ago. He was a resident of Mazepa, and was aged sixty-nine years.

Lola and Mary Fishburn are at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rowe, in Centre Hall. They are the daughters of the late Harry Fishburn, and are inmates of the Odd Fellows Orphan Home at Sunbury.

The business men of State College formed an organization for mutual protection. S. E. Kimpfort was elected president and Robert Foster secretary. Committees were appointed to draft resolutions and a constitution for the government of the organization.

Thomas B. Hayes, of Watsonstown, a well known resident, met with a very singular accident. He was walking along the Pennay railroad track in that town, when a large bolt from a passing freight train struck him on the right leg about five inches above the ankle and broke both bones.

As is her custom, Miss Tacy Kramer came to the home of her father, Merchant H. W. Kremer, in Centre Hall, to spend her annual vacation. Miss Kramer, makes her home in Johnstown with her sister, Mrs. S. H. Heckman, but finds the old home an ideal place in which to rest up for the coming busy season.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Andrews, of California, cousins of J. W. Whiteman of Centre Hall, were their guests for a few days last week. Mrs. Andrews is the daughter of John Baker, of Millinburg, and has been on the Pacific Coast for some years. Mr. Andrews is a native of California, and is making his first trip east.

The collapsing of a scaffold at the ladies' cottage, State College, was responsible for the injury of three workmen, but none was fatally injured. Ross Wallace, of Milesburg, had two ribs fractured; Brint Wallace, of Bellefonte, face and hands cut and bruised; Carl Wallace, of Bellefonte, ankle sprained and shoulder badly bruised.

The bridging over Samuel Stump's nose has not added much to his beauty, but a great deal to his comfort since falling from a wagon, the consequences of which came near being of a more serious character than a broken nose. Mr. Stump says he is improving, and is looking forward to a time in the near future when nature will have repaired all damage.

The business at State College is becoming very much collogized. A water plant is being constructed to furnish the Pennsylvania State College with water, and in this venture members of the faculty are largely interested; the faculty, or individual members of it, own the State College Times, the hotel, and various other business. The institution has a large patronage in various lines, and the collogized concerns are, of course getting their good share.

ANIMAL LEGENDS.

The Buzz of the Mosquito and the Swallow's Forked Tail.

In Palestine, where several religions exist side by side, legends have crossed and intermingled in such a way as to make a distinct folklore. A collection of stories from "Folklore in the Holy Land," by the Rev. J. E. Hanauer, contains many Bible legends in new forms and with humorous additions. One explains how the mosquito came to buzz and why the swallow's tail is forked.

After the fall of man the serpent missed the reward which the evil one had promised him—namely, the sweetest food in the world. An angel was appointed to assign to every creature his food and dwelling place. The serpent asked for human flesh. But Adam protested and pointed out shrewdly that as nobody had ever tasted human flesh it was impossible to maintain that it was the most luscious of food. Thus he gained a year's respite for the race.

Meanwhile the mosquito was sent round the world with instructions to taste and report upon the blood of every living creature. At the end of twelve months it was to report in open court the result of its researches.

Now, Adam had a friend in that sacred bird the swallow, which annually makes a pilgrimage to Mecca and all holy places. This bird shadowed the mosquito all the twelve months until the day of the decision. Then as the insect was on its way to the court the swallow met it openly and asked what flesh and blood it had found sweetest.

"Man's," replied the mosquito. "What?" asked the swallow. "Please say it again, for I am rather deaf."

On this the mosquito opened its mouth wide to shout, and the swallow darted in its bill and plucked out the insect's tongue.

They then proceeded to the court, where all living creatures were assembled to hear the decision. On being asked the outcome of its investigation the mosquito, which could now only buzz, was unable to make itself understood, and the swallow, pretending to be its spokesman, declared that the insect had said that it had found the blood of the frog the most delicious. Sentence was therefore given that frogs, not men, should be the serpent's food.

In its rage and disappointment the serpent darted forward to destroy the swallow. But the bird was too quick; the serpent succeeded only in biting some feathers out of the middle of the swallow's tail.

This is why swallows have forked tails.

EASY PHYSICAL CULTURE.

How One May Promote Good Health Without Expense.

First of all, there is the sensible use of the odd moments of the day. For example, I must get out to my work in the city; I must get up from my chair after or at intervals during my work; I must go upstairs. Here are the opportunities:

During the wash I can rub myself well all over my skin. Having used the warm water and soap and warm water again, I can dip my hands in cold water and then give my skin a capital friction with the palms of my hands. This will afford excellent exercise for the arms and shoulders and, when I stoop, for the trunk muscles. It will clean me, will help to harden and invigorate me and will make my hands and my whole body glow delightfully. It will need scarcely any extra time.

When I go out into the street, and indeed whenever I go out, I can take two extra deep and full breaths of fresh air in through the nostrils. And I can repeat this wonderfully healthy practice whenever I wait at a crossing, whenever I wait at all, and just before I go into any building from the street, and also before any important work or interview, and, of course, the first thing in the morning and the last thing at night. Here there is not one moment of extra time demanded, but there is so much effective but easy physical culture that at the end of a year the improvement in the breathing capacity, the endurance, the vigor, the complexion and even in the control of the temper may be almost beyond belief. And, best of all, the automatic habit of fuller and more rhythmic inhalations may be firmly fixed.—Eustace Miles in Metropolitan Magazine.

The Dear Old Days.

Touched by his sad story, a Harrisburg woman recently furnished a meal to a melancholy looking hobo who had applied therefor at the back door.

"Why do you stick out the middle finger of your left hand so straight while you are eating?" asked the compassionate woman. "Was it ever broken?"

"No, mum," answered the hobo, with a snuffle. "But during my halcyon days I wore a diamond ring on that finger, and old habits are hard to break, mum."—Harper's Weekly.

The Candidate's Course.

"When a candidate thinks he's right he must stick to his belief." "But supposing all his constituents think differently?"

"In that case he must show his true greatness by casting aside all personal bias and emphatically assuming that a majority cannot be wrong."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Everybody Pleased.

Deacon—Are you willing to go? Unpopular Citizen (dying)—Oh, yes; I am. Deacon—Well, I'm glad you are, for that makes it unanimous.—Judge.
