The newspapers are telling of a variety of wheat being grown in the northwest that is yielding one hundred and more bushels per acre, and the grains half as large as walnuts. That would be fine, indeed, but the average farmer will be wise if he postpones the purchasing of seed until he is able to obtain a bit more definite data.

NOT "COLLEGIATED."

Col. Fortney Declares the Business at State College is Not Becoming "Col- legiated."

The letter from Col. D. F. Fortney needs no explanation, and it will go far toward correcting a false impression that the business interests at State College are being largely absorbed by College professors. The Reporter will make but one statement, and it is this: It is not the originator of the misstatement. Col. Fortney's letter, dated, Bellefonte, August 8th, follows: "In your valued paper of August 6th, at the bottom of the second column of the last page, you have a local with reference to business at State College, in which you state that it 'is be- coming very much collegiated,' and give as an illustration of this alleged fact among other things, that the water plant is being constructed to furnish the Pennsylvania State College with water, and that members of the faculty are largely interested in the venture—that the faculty or individual members of it own the State College Times, hotel, etc. As a matter of fact no member of the faculty or any one having any official con- nection or relation with the College owns a share of stock in the proposed new water company. The plant is owned exclusively and entirely by the College corporation; not a single professor or any one having any relations with the College officially or otherwise has any ownership in the College Times; but on the other hand it is owned exclusively by an outside party. There is but one professor that has any interest in the hotel, and his interest is less than one-eighth of the whole.

While this inadvertent misstatement on your part does not allege anything actually wrong or immoral, it does convey a false impression which may be used by strangers or enemies of the In- stitution to its disadvantage. I write all the more freely to you knowing that you are a good friend of the College and anxious to have its welfare promoted and that you would be only too glad to rectify an inadvertent misstatement."

Veteran Club Picnic.

At the meeting of the Centre county Veteran club in the office of W. H. Musser on Saturday, it was decided to hold the next annual picnic on Sat- urday, Sept. 12, at the Centre county fair grounds. Besides being a reunion of the old soldiers it will be a basket pic- nic. Coffee will be provided on the grounds for all the soldiers and their families—free of charge. Prominent speakers will be present to address the as- sembly and several bands will be there to enliven the occasion with their music. In the event of rainy weather the court house will be secured as a place of meeting. Every- body is invited to meet with the veter- ans on this day and enjoy the pleas- ures of the outing.

Over on the South side of Potter township they have hardy varieties of apples, and this is proven by Amos Lee, of Colper, who Saturday brought an apple of last year's growth to this office. The fruit was in almost perfect condition, and would be fit for the table of a presidential candidate.

D. W. Bradford is suffering from sciatic rheumatism and is laid up at present, the aches having settled in his hip and great toes. He has been suffering from rheumatism more or less for five weeks, but up to the latter part of last week he was able to be about the house and occasionally walk up street.

Conditions about Burnham have not improved lately. The new superin- tendent in charge has been laying off employees who have been in the ser- vice for twenty and twenty-five years with as little ceremony as the man who has been on the pay roll for only that many months. Burnham has a peculiar echo of the political full dinner pail song.

Charles Bierly, a farmer residing at Rebersburg, has lately fallen heir to an old German Bible which is highly prized as a heirloom. The book is one of the original Martin Luther translations and was brought to this country from Germany about 1750 by Nicolas Bierly. Some of the family records still remain. From Nicolas Bierly the book descended to his son A. A. hony, then to Anthony 2nd, then to his son Melchior and lastly to his son Charles.

The Reporter stands corrected. In an item in which it stated that the business in State College was becoming very collegiated, The Times was placed in the column with other ventures owned in part or wholly by the members of the college faculty. The Times states that so far as the ownership of the Times is concerned, none of the shares are owned by members of the faculty. The Reporter is very glad to know this, as every newspaper should have an absolutely free hand.

This view of the political situation is taken by the Watchman: It is time to begin to think about county poli- tics now and the thing you must think about most is the candidate for Legis- lature. While we can't see how there is anything else for a self respecting man to do than vote for Meyer it might as well be admitted right in the beginning of the fight that Taylor is a dangerous element. He is slick as a greased cat and can be depended on to work any nefarious scheme that is known to crooked politics to pull him- self through. Mr. Meyer will not re- sort to such practices, consequently it behooves all good citizens to be on their guard against a possibility of having this county misrepresented in the next Legislature.
