James H. Sharp, a well known citi-Pennsylvania railroad freight train at pleased. the Vesper street crossing in Lock Haven Saturday afternoon. Mr. Sharp Samuel Vanetta, and was within a block of the house, walking on the tracks when he was struck by the train and killed.

Deceased was aged about seventyfour years and was well known throughout this section of the state, having traveled about for many years giving his show in school houses and halls in towns and villages. There are very few people in this section who have not seen him play the " Babes in the Wood," "Peter Hontz," and " Punch and Judy." Mr. Sharp, or, as he was known in his show days, "Peter Hontz," was renowned as a former and drew large crowds of young folks wherever he produced his show. He is survived by his wife and several children.

An Important Matter.

Young men who voted on age last fall must be Registered or they can County tax within two years may be able to swear in their votes, if they are not upon the Registry, but the voter join his wife and child. who cast his first ballot in 1907 has no possible chance to do this. He is not upon any duplicate, has no tax assessed against him, and consequently can not qualify to having paid a tax, as is pecessary where voters are left off the Registry. By failing to register he practically and effectually disfranchises himself. There is no way by which he can vote, and Democrats should remember and see that every young Democrat who voted on age in 1907, is upon the polling list of 1908 And this must be seen to before the evening of September 2nd. Don't forget this Story of the Man Who Wanted to Open a Small Account.

A WALL STREET EXPERIENCE. list.

The Would Be Depositor of Modest Means Found Himself In a Place For Millionaires-An Official's Courteous Explanation and Advice.

"When," said the man who writes pieces for magazines and things, "by some strange and unprecedented chance, I had got hold of a matter of $350 all at one and the same time it looked big to me. By an even more curious chance there wasn't anything that I really needed to do with the money, so I decided that I'd bank it.

"Now, I knew in a general way that in order to put money in a bank you've got to be known and give your pedigree and look respectable, and all that, and I hated to approach a bank without any sort of credentials. Therefore I went to the business manager of a certain magazine which occasionally prints pieces that I write and asked him what I'd better do.

"'Simplest thing in the world,' said he. 'I'll give you a note to our bank.' "That sounded fine to me. He wrote ne the note, and I started for the bank good deal tickled over how easy the little depositing proceeding had been State College and Pleasant Gap. made.

"The bank to which I had the note is in Wall street. I asked the uniformed man who was standing around where I'd find the receiving teller's window, and he pointed that window out to me. I got into line and watched the teller take in money.

to note the great size of some of the deposits he was receiving. Why, fellows were giving the money to him by the satchelful. But I had my note in my pocket, and I remained complacent enough with that consciousness.

"When I reached the receiving teller I passed in my note, and the receiving teller, a deckledly civil young man, pened it and read it. Then he looked at me, after which be read the note gain, this time with a sort of puzzled opression on his countenance. I didn't ce why the receiving teller should be sazzled over such a simple matter, but unxled he seemed. He rang a bell, and the uniformed man who'd directed ne to that window appeared.

"'Show this gentleman to the office of the cashier,' said the receiving teller to the uniformed man, at the same time regarding me with a pleasant smile, and the uniformed man led me down the passageway and took me behind a railing where there was a hamisome gray baired gentle ting at a desk

"The handsome gray haired gentleman received me cordially and invited me to be seated. I handed him my note, which the receiving teller had returned to me, and he leaned back in his chair and read it carefully. Then he, too, looked puzzled after be'd read the note a second time. Then he looked at me pleasantly over the tops of his spectacles,

"'Ahem' said the handsome gray haired gentleman, not disagreeably, but in a pice, banker-like way. 'Might Ir singuise, Mr. Penphist, without ceming to be unduly inquisitive, as o how or large a-er-balance you would usually be carrying?

"Well that was a civil enough quesion, nothing inquisitive about it. "Allo, sir.' I said to the handsome ray believed contleman, 'I am opening the a count with a matter of some $350. or i shall be doubt make some addibess to that within the next two ant'es a d probably I shall carry a date of sell, say, $500 or $600 right

"The kindly cashler with the gray nair fairly beamed upon me.

" I'r just so, just so,' said he, twiddiling his thumbs. 'We feel complimented, Mr Penphist, we really do, that you should have come to us. And it is unfortunate-er-really unforturate, that we are so utterly lacking in fa linies for taking care of accounts dia ha character."

Can see Mr. Penphist, our institu-Lua is of-er-a sort of special character It is used as a depository bywell, perhaps I should put it in a clearer manner. I say it to you quite in on Sence, you understand, Mr. Penpick f, but we have only 1,000 depositors on our books, and these 1,600 deportlans' agentate balances amount all the time to a matter of $110,000,000."

"Well, that was about enough. I aw the light then. I'd drifted Into a millionaires' bank on the careless creleutlah of a Lusiness manager who'd written me that note no doubt in a mag'itless mood.

'The gray inited cashler acted bully a sout it. He recommended a fine bank to the 'one that combines perfect reponsibility with the necessary facilitles for har fling accounts like-eryours, Mr. I enphist,' he added.

"For all of the cashler's niceness I walked out of there into the cold gray light of Wali street feeling like a good deal of a beman caterpillar.

"I didn't go to the bank recommended to me by the cashier; didn't have the nerve to visit any more banks. I've got $62 left now of the $350, but I'm going to use that as a nest egg. and maybe some day even yet I'll have a bank account."-New York Sun.
