Stories of Famous Hymns.

From week to week the Reporter will publish the stories of a few of the most popular hymns. These stories are based on facts, and will be interesting to the average reader.

"STAND UP, STAND UP FOR JESUS!" This hymn, the story of which is a very tragic one, also grew out of the warm friendship of two men, Rev. Dr. George Duffield and Dudley A. Tyng. The story as told by a recent publication, is as follows:

"Dr. Duffield, the author of the hymn, thought Mr. Tyng 'the manliest, bravest man' he had ever known. One Sunday the latter preached to a great throng of men assembled in a large hall, and it is thought that not less than a thousand men were there converted to Christ. On the following Wednesday, leaving his study for a few minutes, he went out to the barn, where a mule was at work on a horse-power machine shelling corn. As he patted the animal on the back, the sleeve of his silk study gown caught in the cogs of the wheel, and his arm was torn off. His death occurred in a few hours. When dying he sent a message to his friends who had charge of the Monday meeting, 'Tell them to stand up for Jesus!' adding, 'Now let us sing a hymn.'

"With his feelings deeply stirred by his friend's tragic death, Dr. Duffield wrought this last message into the verses of the hymn and used them as a concluding exhortation to the sermon he preached the following Sunday. The superintendent of the Sunday-school had them printed on a fly leaf; and being widely copied by the religious papers and then into the hymn books, the hymn, with its second and fifth stanzas omitted in most cases, was before long all over the world."

"Dr. Duffield to the end of his life kept an ear of corn from that thrashing floor hanging on the wall of his study in remembrance of Mr. Tyng. The hymn itself seems an echo of his voice: 'Stand up for Jesus! Now let us sing a hymn.'"

The Grange Encampment and Fair.

It is only a little more than two weeks until the opening of the Grange Encampment and Fair, at Centre Hall. Detailed arrangements are well under way, and there are the most promising prospects for the largest and best exhibition had in a number of years. Almost every one of the two hundred tents have been leased for the week; the exhibits of machinery, etc., will be larger than for years; the display of agriculture and horticulture will also be elaborate.

Wednesday and Thursday will be political days, Wednesday having been reserved by the Republican local managers and Thursday by the Democrats. The speakers have not yet been announced, but men of national reputation will speak on both days.

The Encampment and Fair opens Saturday, September 12th, and closes Friday, 18th.

ENCAMPMENT AND EXHIBITION.

Of the Patrons of Husbandry of Central Pennsylvania at Centre Hall, September 12th to 18th inclusive.

The 35th Annual Encampment and Exhibition of the Patrons of Husbandry, will be held at Grange Park, Centre Hall, September 12th to 18th, inclusive. Twenty-eight acres are devoted to camping and exhibition purposes, affording manufacturers and dealers in agricultural implements and live stock the best possible opportunity for establishing agencies, advertising and selling their wares, as here they come in direct contact with the farmers who use agricultural implements and machinery. The greater part of the exhibits are sold annually to consumers who go there to look up meritorious implements.

Terms for privileges are made satisfactory to exhibitors. Those shipping exhibits from the North and East, should ship by way of Montandon, over the Pennsylvania R. R. system, those from the West should ship by way of Tyrone and Bellefonte over the same system. Rates of freight will be one fare, returned free if unsold, by securing a certificate from the Association that the articles were on exhibition. Ample stabling for live stock and a special building for poultry with numerous exhibition buildings for other purposes.

The State College annually makes a large exhibit, which is entertaining and instructive.

Special amusements are provided for every day and evening.

The committee will erect one hundred and fifty tents which will be for rent to camping parties and private families. The size of the tents is 12x12 feet with 4 foot walls. Rental, $3.00 for term of the picnic. Every tent will be floored and equipped with suitable furniture, such as cots, tables, lawn seats, etc. Parties must provide their own bed ticks, blankets, lamps, etc. Straw for ticks can be procured on the ground.

Several hundred farmers' families camp every year. There are numerous exhibitors of implements, live stock, etc., the attendance aggregating thousands daily.

Boarding can be had by regular boarders at twenty-five cents a meal—dinner thirty-five cents—or parties preferring can board themselves. Numerous stoves will be provided for the free use of camping parties. Where parties desire to camp in groups, if notified in time, an effort will be made to accommodate them.

The committee earnestly invite and urge everybody to bring at least a few meritorious articles for exhibition to assist in making the exhibition valuable. Grains and seeds should be placed in quart or pint glass jars. Fruits should be packed so as not to bruise in transit.

A PREMIUM FOR EVERY ARTICLE. There are no competitive premiums or prizes, but a premium is given for every meritorious article. A premium of five cents in cash will be paid for every meritorious article placed on exhibition in the Agricultural and Horticultural Departments. This will assure a premium to every exhibitor. The premium will be paid on the day the article is placed on exhibition. The large and commodious exhibition building for the accommodation of exhibits of Agricultural and Horticultural products, will make this department far superior to any similar exhibition in the state.

A MUSEUM OF ANTIQUES. A special department of antiques and relics has been established and will be greatly enlarged this year. A premium of five cents will be paid for every article placed on exhibition in this department, and it is desired that every one should interest themselves to help bring out the antiques locked in wardrobes and attics so that people may see them.

DEPARTMENT OF POULTRY. The poultry building has been remodeled so as to make it an attractive feature at the Grange Fair. Poultry may be brought in boxes; coops are provided for the accommodation of exhibitors by the Encampment Committee. A premium of five cents in cash will be paid for every bird placed on exhibition.

AN EXHIBIT OF FARM STOCK. Farmers should bring horses, cattle, sheep and swine for exhibition. No charge made for exhibition privileges for agricultural products or farm stock.

THE HELP OF EVERY ONE NEEDED. The prospects for the Grange Fair were never more promising than they are at this writing. More tents are engaged and more exhibits offered than there had been in any one year for ten years.

It only remains for every farmer, every Grange, every member, and every citizen to feel it a duty to help the Agricultural Fair as it is managed by farmers for the benefit of farmers.

EXCURSION RAILROAD RATES. Railroad excursion rates over all roads in Pennsylvania, from September 11th to 18th, good any day going and good to return until September 21st. Free sale of tickets to the public during the Encampment without card orders. Special trains over the Lewisburg and Tyrone Railroad during the Encampment.

BATTLEFIELD PANICS.

Odd Events That at Times Demoralize Veterans.

HORRORS INCIDENT TO WAR.

Two Terrifying Episodes That Occurred During the Franco-Prussian Campaign—Madness May Seize Even the Most Hardened Troops.

It is a peculiar circumstance that hardened and trained troops will go through a long fight surrounded by all the horrors that are inseparable from war without flinching and with the utmost apparent callousness and the same men will be struck terrified by a single trifling incident.

Every war of any importance, particularly wars between civilized nations, is prolific in incidents of trivial character in themselves, but so unusual and unnatural that they appeal to the natural instinctive horror of men more suddenly and intensely than perhaps the main terrors of days of carnage. Such an incident is the one, for example, which occurred at the battle of Worth, in the early days of the Franco-Prussian war.

In the heat of the great battle a wing of the Prussian army was charged by the regiments of French cuirassiers in the hope of turning the wing and facilitating the falling back of the French infantry. But the cuirassiers were driven back by the unflinching Prussians. Again the cuirassiers charged, and again they were driven back by the withering fire.

For a third time they came down again, and as the enemy waited for them to draw nearer a horrible, blood freezing terror seized the Prussians, and for the moment it looked as if they would turn and fly or be cut down without defending themselves. But in a moment they had pulled themselves together and beaten back for the third and last time the gallant cuirassiers.

The sight that terrified the Prussians appears nothing very much in black and white. It was a regiment of cuirassiers led at a dashing rate toward them by a headless officer sitting upright in his saddle and apparently encouraging his men. It was no less a person than Fitzum de Lascarre of the Third regiment of cuirassiers, whose head had been carried completely off his shoulders as the troop broke into the third desperate charge by a cannon ball, which also took off another officer's hand and cut the bugler in two.

It is remarkable and singular that at the battle of Forbach, which took place the same day as Worth, a very similar incident occurred and did more to shake the nerves of the Germans than hours of roaring cannon and fighting had done.

While a regiment of Prussian infantry were standing in reserve watching the fight as well as they could from their position of shelter a charger belonging to a French dragoon regiment, one which was practically destroyed in the battle, galloped right into the midst of the men, who rushed to arrest it and immediately fell back in alarm, for swinging to the bridle was the whole left arm of the charger's rider, the fingers of the hand firmly grasping the reins. The arm appeared to have been severed a few inches below the shoulder and was certainly that of an officer, but who the officer was has never been satisfactorily established.

So moved were the hardened men of battle at the horrible sight that no one would touch the horse, and the animal was allowed to gallop off to be killed a few minutes later in crossing before some Prussian guns. Thrilling as the incident was, many of the brave fellows who witnessed it declared that their first, almost irresistible, impulse was to throw down their arms and belt. It was with the help of just such men that General von Goben routed the French that memorable day in August, 1870.

It is a well known fact that the finest and bravest troops the world can produce have no immunity from that strange and mysterious madness known to military history as "war panic." A heavy war, frequent sanguinary engagements, night marches and surprises sometimes play havoc with soldiers' nervous systems and render them more like high spirited colts than men who have taken the field prepared to suffer immeasurable horrors and take death cheerfully.

During the peninsular war two British regiments, the very pick of the army and seasoned veterans, were marching along in good order when a rumor ran down the lines that the enemy was at hand. The next moment the line of orderly soldiers was changed into an elongated mob of armed men throwing away arms, baggage and all they carried, running away in every direction. Blind terror in their hearts, their faces blanched and their ears deaf to the thundered commands of their officers.

For the moment they knew but one sentiment, one emotion, a sudden, passionate, blind terror, and they fled without thinking whether they were running into the arms of the thing they dreaded or not. It was a terror that was madness, and only its madness redeems it from dishonor. If anything were necessary to demonstrate the unnaturalness of the panic it would be done by the grand fact that the enemy was really at hand the men instantly fell in and showed the most eagerness to attack.

Such war panics are mysteries. Even the most experienced military officer cannot satisfactorily explain them.

Even the high flyer must come down to earth once in a while.
