

UNOFFICIAL VOTE IN CENTRE COUNTY, NOVEMBER 3, 1908.

Table showing election results for various districts in Centre County, Pennsylvania, for the year 1908. The table lists candidates for President, Congress, Assembly, Sheriff, Treasurer, Recorder, Register, and Commissioners across 65 districts, along with their respective vote counts.

THE COUNTY.

Centre county elected all Republican candidates on the ticket, except R. B. Taylor, who was defeated by J. C. Meyer, Democrat, by 298 majority.

The election of Mr. Meyer is not a party victory. His election is the result of several hundred self-respecting Republicans refusing to support a candidate wholly unfitted for the office.

DEFEATED BUT NOT CONQUERED.

The defeat—local and national—should all the more cause the Democratic voter to continue to fight for the principles of his party. The Democratic party may have been beaten to a "frazzle" but not beyond recovery.

Centre Hall has Full Vote.

The election in Centre Hall was quiet, and the full vote was cast in both leading parties. The result in detail follows:

Table showing the results of the election in Centre Hall, listing candidates for President, Superior Court, Congress, Assembly, Sheriff, Treasurer, Recorder, Register, and Commissioners, along with their respective vote counts.

The shouting even is already well over. It looks as though the majority is ruling. Was it Bert's high flowing language that did it?

Just how it was done doesn't seem to be explainable. After all that sanguine feeling was nothing more than rheumatism!

It has been settled as to office holders for from two to four years, but there are yet a few things to claim the attention of the American people.

THE ELECTION RETURNS.

Through a perfectly completed system the Bell telephone company gave to the public the election returns several hours earlier than they have ever before been received here.

Before 7:30 the bulletin issued by the New York World was posted at this office. This bulletin "conceded Taylor's election."

The following error in sending out the news from this office was that forecasting the result in the county. This was not due to any attempt to put out bogus news, but the result was based on the first twenty or more returns received from the various precincts in the county.

Communion and re-opening services on the Penns Valley charge, E. E. Haney, pastor, will be as follows: At Bethesda, Nov. 10 and 11; Madisonburg, 12; Quarterly business meeting at Rebersburg, 14 at 2:30 p. m., presiding in the evening; re-opening service at Woodward, 15, morning, afternoon and evening. Communion at all the above places.

The first session of the Northern Conference of Central Pennsylvania Lutheran Synod was held in St. Paul's church, near Salona, Wednesday evening, and will continue throughout today (Thursday). The church where the body meets is one of the appointments of Rev. J. M. Hearick. Rev. F. F. Bieler and delegate T. M. Gramley are in attendance.

John Garver and brother, Newt, made a trip to Bellefonte, Tuesday. Centre Reporter, $1.00 per year.

AGED LADY CELEBRATES.

Monday the eighty-eighth anniversary of the birth of Aunt Roseann Williams was duly observed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Roan, near Lemont. This is an annual gathering when the neighbors and friends of "Aunt Rosey," as she is called by every one, bear their good wishes and their congratulations to her.

On this occasion there were about sixty persons present, in an all day party. Some were old and some were young, and yet they were all interested in the one central figure of the gathering, seeking to bring joy and sunshine into her heart.

A favorite passage of scripture of hers from St. John's gospel was read, a prayer offered, familiar hymns were sung, and short addresses were made by Rev. A. A. Black, George Roan, Miss Mary Williams and Mrs. John Dale. Mrs. Dale was the only blood relative present on Aunt Rosey's side of the house.

The death of John Albright occurred Saturday night at his home, one mile north of Spring Mills. He was aged seventy-one years and some months. His wife and six children survive, namely: Jeremiah, Penn Hall; John, State College; Alfred, Robert and Franklin, at home; Mrs. Thomas Stover, Aaronburg.
