Some of these signers have indicated by letter and otherwise to the Court that they would like to have withdrawn their names, but we do not countenance such practice unless it is shown that their signatures were obtained by fraud or tre Hall. Mr. Hennigh says : deceit. We therefore assume both from the number of signatures and the contents of the petition itself that there is a strong public feeling in Centre Hall in favor of local option. The petition does not allege any specific reasons why the license to Mr. Runkle should be refused, but relies upon the broad moral grounds that the petitioners do- not want a license to be granted to any one in their borough. We might have treated this petition somewhat cavalierly but we ourselves have entire respect for the motives back of the petition, for the character of the petitioners themselves, and have some sympathy with their purposes, and in view of such a large and respectable remonstrance we have required the petitioner to show affirmatively that his application comes within the requirements of the law, namely, that he himself is a fit applicant, his house a fit building for a hotel, and that eggs. Centre Hall needs a hotel for the traveling public. Ten witnesses have been produced in favor of the petition, all to the effect that the applicant meets these three requirements of the law. There is no evidence to the contrary. We are therefore bound to find in favor of the petitioner on all three points.

The powers of the Court of Quarter Sessions in granting or refusing license and the judicial discretion that may be exercised by this Court have been so carefully deliminated that there remains no question as to what we are bound to do in this particular case. Our discretion in granting and refusing licenses is a judicial one. We must refuse or grant be glad to have some news from central Illinois I decided to write a few lines. I am located in the county of Champaign, where the state university is situated. We have nothing to complain of, notwithstanding the dry season and the short oats and corn crops. Our principal crops are corn and oats. Some wheat, rye and broom corn are also grown, and lots of timothy and clover hay. The soil is a rich black loam. I have been in the same locality for forty years and this last year the crops were the shortest in my recollection

Prices are good : Corn, 602; oats, 45c. We raise horses, cattle, hogs, sheep and a few mules and shetland ponies ; also all kinds of fowls. Poultry is well taken care of and it pays, as there is nothing like strictly fresh

Poor Air and Poor Living.

When Jim Bridger, the one time famous scout of the plains, grew old he thought he would like to retire from the somewhat arduous life of a plainsman and settle down to the ease of "the east," which to him meant Missourl. So he used his best endeavor to find a competent man to fill his place and went back to Missouri.

A year or two passed, and one day Captain Russell, the commandant of the post which Bridger had left, was surprised to see the old scout heave in sight. When he came in the captain asked:

"Well, Bridger, what brings you back here?"

"Captain," said Bridger, "I want to go back to scouting again." "Indeed? Why, I thought you had licenses for the sale of liquors upon legal grounds. The law as it is at present does not recognize the power of the Centre Hall, by Mrs. Laura Lee : Bedroom Court to refuse an application either because a Court itself is in favor of local option or prohibition or the sentiment of the community is because of moral reasons against the same, but only because the application fails in any one of the three respects that are considered essentially prerequisite by our Supreme Court.

Should the present Legislature pass a local option act of in any way grant greater discretion to the license courts, the question might present itself in an entirely different way than it does at present. As it is we feel bound to grant the license.

In view of the very strong anti-license feeling held by large numbers of the very best people of the community, we think it advisable to call the attention advise him that the circumstances surrounding his application require unusual care on his part to observe the requirements of the law, to manage and conduct his house in such a manner as not only to satisfy such legal requirements and the needs of the traveling public, but also not to affront the moral sense of the community in which he is conducting his business.

The First Cookbook.

To the Romans belong the honor of having produced the first European cookery book, and, though the authorship is uncertain, it is generally attributed to Caellus Apicus, who lived under Trajan, 114 A. D. Here are two recipes from this ancient collection:

"First, for a sauce to be eaten with bolled fowl, put the following ingredients into a mortar: Aniseed, dried mint and lazer root. Cover them with vinegar, add dates and pour in liquamen (a distilled liquor made from large fish which were salted and allowed to turn putrid in the sun), oil and a small quantity of mustard seeds. Reduce all to a proper thickness with sweet wine warmed, and then pour this same over your chicken, which should previously be bolled in aniseed water."

The second recipe shows the same queer mixture of ingredients: "Take a wheelbarrow of rose leaves and pound in a mortar; add to it brains of two pigs and two thrushes bolled and mixed with the chopped up yoke of egg, oil, vinegar, pepper and wine. Mix and pour these together and stew them steadily and slowly till the perfume is developed."-Chambers' Journal.

Which Foot Walks Faster? You may think this a very silly question to ask, but it isn't. It is a simple, demonstrable fact, which you can prove to your own satisfaction in a very few minutes. If you will take a pavement that is clear, so that there will be no interference, and walk briskly in the center, you will find that before you have gone fifty yards you have veered very much to one side. You must not make any effort, of course, to keep in the center, but if you will think of something and endeavor to walk naturally you cannot keep a direct line. The explanation of this lies in the propensity of one foot to walk faster than the other, or one leg takes a longer stride than the other, causing one to walk to one side. You can try an experiment in this way by placing two sticks about eight feet apart, then stand off about sixty feet, blindfold yourself and endeavor to walk between them. You will find it almost impo
