

DEATHS.

MRS. CATHERINE WAGNER. Mrs. Catherine Wagner, widow of Jacob D. Wagner, died suddenly at her home in Altoona, Saturday night, of paralysis.

Deceased was born in Boalsburg, August 30, 1860. She was married at that place to Jacob D. Wagner and resided there until after the death of her husband four years ago, when she and her family moved to Altoona and had since lived there.

After an illness extending over a period of three years due to dropsy, James Duck died at his home in Brush Valley, east of Penns Cave, Thursday morning of last week, aged seventy-nine years and twenty-four days.

POWER OF ONE VOTE.

A Single Ballot Has Often Decided an Important Contest. In the Continental congress of 1775 Benjamin Harrison defeated John Hancock by one vote for the presiding officer.

In 1784 the illness of one delegate from New Jersey kept slavery out of states admitted to the Union after 1800 and thus confined the civil war contestants to the south Atlantic states.

July 23, 1788, one vote ratified the constitution after the famous debate between Madison and Henry at Richmond. The next day the debate between Hamilton and Clinton ended with New York following suit.

Alexander Hamilton swung one vote to Thomas Jefferson in the electoral college of 1800, thus breaking a deadlock after thirty-six ballots and defeating Aaron Burr.

In 1808 Jesse Thomas by his own vote went to congress from the Indiana district. He succeeded in moving the northern boundary of Illinois fifty miles north, thus giving it a lake outlet.

May 26, 1838, the senate of the United States declared against the impeachment of Andrew Johnson by one vote, 35 to 19, when two-thirds were necessary to decide.

A MISNAMED EXHIBIT.

Brings Joy to the Museum Visitors and Worries the Curator. A curator at the Metropolitan Museum of Art is threatened with insanity, the cause being a small misnamed exhibit in the gallery outside his office door.

"Twenty times a day," declared the harassed man, "people discover that that china statuette out in the Franklin collection is named General Washington instead of Benjamin Franklin. Then they burst in here and announce their discovery and wonder that no one ever noticed it before.

"Of course I tell them this courteously and patiently, and you know what a strain that is when you are going over the same thing for the thousandth time! I'd latch the door, only there are too many employees seeking me all day long, so here I must sit and listen to the names of George Washington and Benjamin Franklin repeated a million times till I wish that neither of those glorious patriots had ever lived.

There's a statue out here named General Washington, but I'm sure—and the weary curator, being a southerner, rose smilingly to his task.—New York Times.

A Telegram That Talked.

At one time when George Drew Barrymore was playing in San Francisco a fabulous sum was offered her by a local theater for her services for a few weeks. The offer was exceedingly tempting, but her contract with Charles Frohman stood in the way.

Doing Double Duty.

"It was one of those sleepy, one horse, back water towns, like Squash," said a congressman, describing at a Hot Springs dinner a town that he disliked.

"Squash is the limit. A gentleman arrived there the other day and wanted a hair cut. He found the barber shop and, after shaking the barber vigorously, managed to awaken him.

"How long will it take you to cut my hair, barber?" he asked. "Not long, boss," said the barber.

"And he rose, yawned and stretched himself. Then he called upstairs to his wife: "Hey, send the kid down to the newspaper office to tell the editor I want my scissors just as soon as he's done editing the paper. There's a gent here waitin' for a hair cut."—Washington Star.

A Slight.

"Isn't McCorkie awfully thin since his return?" "Yes. Do you know what they call his valet at the club?" "No."

"They call him the valet of the shadow."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Receive no satisfaction for premeditated impertinence. Forget it and forgive it, but keep inexorably at a distance from him who offered it.—Lavater.
