M. M. Condo had his household goods shipped from Darragh to Centre Hall Thursday of last week, and next week he expects his family to come on from that point. They will occupy Mr. Condo's old home, immediately east of town. Mr. Condo has been away from Centre Hall for several years, but it appears the old home had such attractions for him that could only be satisfied by his moving here.

A suit of more than ordinary interest has been entered in the Court of Common Pleas of Perry county. It is an appeal taken by William Fosselman, Joseph Lesh and W. J. Hall, supervisors of Tuscarora township, from the report of the auditors of said township. The auditors refused to pass the bills of the supervisors, claiming that there is no authority in law for paying them. This will be in the nature of a test case and will decide the mooted question of whether township supervisors are entitled to pay for their services.

Almost every agricultural newspaper is filled with glowing accounts of the great successes obtained in growing alfalfa, and this will induce many farmers to sow where there is no possible prospect to grow a crop. There are spots on almost all farms in Centre county where this legume may be grown with some success, but it cannot be sown at random with any assurance of returning even the cost of seed. Study the plant, study your soil; then sow a small area, and if success follows, you can increase the acreage.

Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland Mitterling, and Miss Lena Emerick, of Centre Hall, drove to Unionville Saturday and returned Sunday evening. They visited an uncle, S. K. Emerick, and enjoyed the trip very much.

Ivy Bartges, of Spring Mills, proved his good marksmanship by killing a bald eagle while soaring at a great height. The bird was a fine specimen, and measured six and one-half feet from tip to tip of its wings.

Congressman C. F. Barclay, of this district, will have the sympathy of his many friends in the death of his wife, which occurred a few days ago at the family residence in Shinnemahoning. She had been in poor health for several years.

After almost three weeks of continuous wet weather, the clouds parted Thursday of last week, after giving out a liberal shower. Since then the weather has been fairer, and farming operations have been in progress to some extent.

You would herilly think it, but ex-Commissioner P. H. Meyer is one of the busiest men in Centre Hall. Of course, he does not spend his time cutting kindling and carrying in wood for Mrs. Meyer, but he has a number of pupils to whom he is giving weekly instructions in music. This explanation is made so that his acquaintances will not accuse the writer of this paragraph with not knowing Prof. Meyer's habits.

The Chicago Interior speaking of the St. Cloud Presbytery, Minnesota, says: A sad feature of the meeting was the news which came to Dr. Henry C. Baskerville of the tragic death of his son, Howard C., at Tabriz, Persia. Presbytery adopted fitting resolutions expressing sympathy for the family. Dr. Baskerville has a son just graduating from Princeton Seminary, and two sons attending Macalester College, one of whom expects to study for the ministry.

Large numbers of veal calves are shipped from Penns Valley to the larger cities. It is surprising the number of calves that are produced each year, and shipped to market before reaching ten weeks old. When these large shipments are considered, one wonders where the future milch cows to supply the large demand for milk and butter, and the beef cattle are to come from. And again, when one considers the great number of cows shipped from this one station it raises the subject as to where the calves, the milk and butter, and the beef cattle are to be produced. Growing cows for market is much more largely practised in Centre county than in most sections, consequently the crop of calves is correspondingly large, and permits of heavy shipments without depleting the reserve supply.
