Weekly Review of Trade and Market Reports.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: No one can now question the substantial character of the revival in the iron and steel trade, which is rapidly rising to high-water mark levels. The output of the principal producer has already reached within a moderate percentage of full capacity, and railroads, as well as builders in leading branches of construction work, are in the market with their orders. This wonderful change, in a short period, in the activity of the greatest manufacturing industry of the country: the bright outlook for the crops, that of corn giving promise of an unpre-cedented yield; the cheapness of money, and the fact that the tariff bill has been passed by the Senate -these are the conspicious features of the business situation. Naturally they serve to strengthen the newborn confidence and to encourage new enterprises. The maintenance of trade revival is all the more remarkable because this is the usual

Bradstreet's says: Future trade continues good, confidence is unimpaired, buyers are arciving in the larger markets; cereal crop reports, despite rains in some winter wheat and corn-growing sections, are encouraging; country trade promises to be heavy once supplies are marketed; industrial lines are becoming more active, calls for harvest hands absorb a large part of the floating supply of labor and the long drawn-out discussion re garding tariff matters promises to be soon ended season of crop uncertainty and mid-

Certain older greatest on record. institutions in the East have such social prestige that they attract from the wealthler class young men and women who seek a college degree more for the social advantages to be won in obtaining it than for the educational benefits it represents. No such complaint is heard in the West. Higher education in the West probably has been hampered more by a lack of equipment and facilities and money with which to retain competent educators than by false standards and methods.

It is a big question that these educational leaders have raised, for it affects the future citizenship of the country.
