DEATHS.

MRS. MARY MAGDALENA MILLER

Death of Mrs. Mary Magdalena Miller, one of the oldest ladies in the valley, occurred on Thursday morning just as the clock struck three. Grandmother Miller, as she was lovingly called by a host of friends and neighbors, crossed over the river to the better world. She was the daughter of Michael Moser and his wife, Hannah Lilley, who early in 1800 settled near Penn Hall at which place the subject of this sketch was born, on March 24, 1823, making her age eighty-six years, five months and two days.

On December 28th, 1843, she was united in marriage to George Miller, who preceded her to the grave just eighteen years ago on the 29th of August. Surviving her is one brother, John L. Moser, of Orangeville, Ill.; and the following sons and daughters: John H. Miller and Mrs. Ida Williams, of Penna Furnace; Charles Miller, of Williams, Iowa; James Miller, of Lens, Ill.; Mrs. Mary Crawford and Robert Miller, of Freeport, Ill.; Howard Miller, of Rebersburg; Mrs. Sue R. Wolfe, of Woodward and Mrs. Tamme Keller, of Linden Hall, at whose home she died; also twenty-two grandchildren and nineteen great-grandchildren. One son, Cyrus, died about a year ago, and a daughter, Harriet, in childhood.

After the death of her husband, which occurred at Spring Mills, Mrs. Miller resided at Woodward for a number of years until failing health obliged her to discontinue her keeping, since which time—the past ten years—she made her home with her daughter, Linda Hall. Since childhood she was a consistent member of the Lutheran church; ever faithful in attendance at the house of God until her failing health would not permit. Being confined to her room for many years her Bible was her daily companion, and it was her comfort through all her life. She was a kind and faithful mother and the influence of her good, pure life will live in the hearts of her family and of the many who were fortunate enough to know her.

The funeral was held Saturday morning at ten o'clock, conducted by Rev. A. A. Black. A large number of friends were gathered together to pay their last respects to one whom it was a privilege to honor. Her body was born to its last resting place in the Bellefonte cemetery by six of her grandsons, namely, Harry and Ned Keller, Fred and Ray Williams, and Sumner and Blair Miller.

Mrs. Mary Lamey, widow of Michael Lamey, died at her home in Millheim, of disease incident to old age. Her age was seventy-four years, six months and one day. She leaves to survive one son, W. H. Lamey, and one daughter, Mrs. W. F. Colyer, both of Millheim; also the following brothers and sisters: D. L. Geary, of Newport; Washington and George Geary and Mrs. Lizzie Richard, of Iowa; Mrs. Lucinda Runkle, of Spring Mills, and Mrs. William Stewart, of Axe Maun.

George Beck, who was born near Hagersburg, died at Jersey Shore at the age of seventy-five years. He is survived by two sons William and Joseph both of Pittsburg, and one daughter, Mrs. Beitz, where he died. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. Jacob Stahley, of Crawford township; and five brothers, Jeremiah, of Williamsport; Daniel, of Chatham's Run; Israel, of Lamar; Charles W., of Jersey shore, and William F., of Lock Haven.

Arnold Plumber Hoover, died in Juniata. He was the son of Joseph Hoover and was born in Unionville, in 1861. He resided in St. Paul, Minnesota, and became chief claim agent for the Northern Pacific railroad, which position he resigned in 1906, and then came to Juniata to become a member of the Hoover Merchandise Company.

Mrs. Margaret H. Medlar, sister of the late of James P. Coburn, died in Allentown, after a long illness. She was born in Aaronsburg, June 6, 1843, and was a daughter of Dr. Charles Coburn, a prominent physician in this county many years ago.

Mrs. Maggie Young, mother of Frank H. and the late George C. Young, of this place, died in the Altoona hospital. She was born at Shamokin and was seventy-three years of age.

Copperhead Snake Bites Boy.

While walking through an orchard near Yeagertown, Harry Swires, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Swires, was several times bitten by a copperhead snake. The boy was accompanied home by his companion, and reached there in a fainting condition. The poison injected by the snake caused the lad to rave in delirium all night, while his body was swollen out of human semblance.

HORSES AND DONKEYS.

Early Habits That Domestication Have Not Eradicated.

A curious question in evolution was once put to a scientist prominent in the service of the government. "Why is it," some one asked, "that horses shy and donkeys do not?" The answer was to the following effect:

The ancestors of the horse were accustomed to roam over the plains, where every tuft of grass or bush might conceal an enemy waiting in ambush. In these circumstances the must have time and again saved the lives by quickly starting back or else suddenly jumping to one side without warning some strange object appeared to them. The habit must have indeed been a strong one, seeing that so many years of domestication have not eradicated it.

On the other hand, the donkey is descended from animals that lived among the hills, with the usual precipices and dangerous declivities, and from these conditions, it would appear, there resulted its slowness and sure footedness. The donkey's ancestors were not, then, so liable to sudden attacks from wild beasts and snakes. Moreover, sudden and wild starts would have been positively dangerous to the donkey's for-bears. Consequently they learned to avoid the characteristic trick of the horse. The habit of eating thistles, peculiar to the donkey, seems also to have been inherited from its ancestors. In the dry, barren localities they inhabited there was often very little food; therefore they learned to eat the hard, dry and even prickly plants and undergrowth when nothing else presented itself.—New York Tribune.

THE MONTEREY CYPRESS.

Found in Its Wild State in Only Two Spots in the World.

One of the most interesting and picturesque trees in the world, as well as one of the most ancient, is the Cupressus macrocarpa, or Monterey cypress. Its native habitat is extremely restricted, for it is found in its wild state in only two spots in the whole wide world—on the edge of a grove of conifers stretching for a few miles between the bay of Monterey and the bay of Carmel (the latter of which bears a striking resemblance in outline and color to its prototype in the Holy Land) and in a similar spot near Pescadero, a little town lying on the coast between Monterey and San Francisco. The Monterey grove consists of only a dozen or two cypresses of large size and most striking appearance. Their trunks are massive and wrinkled with hoary age, while their boughs, gnarled and twisted, grow chiefly on one side away from the stormy winds that have buffeted them for thousands of years. The noble trees are limited to the rocky wind beaten shore, on which some of them have but a precarious hold. Hemmed between the slowly encroaching ocean on one hand and a pine forest on the other, their future is exposed to great hazard. It is therefore gratifying to observe that a fair number of thrifty young cypresses are holding their own against the pines for a short distance inland.—Scientific American.

A Queen's Will.

Queen Adelaide, the wife of William IV., was a woman of great piety and exceptional humility, which was shown in the directions for her funeral. "I die in all humility," she wrote. "knowing well we are all alike before the throne of God, and I request, therefore, that my mortal remains be conveyed to the grave without any pomp or ceremony. They are to be moved to St. George's chapel, Windsor, where I request to have a quiet funeral.

"I particularly desire not to be laid out in state, and the funeral to take place by daylight; no procession, the coffin to be carried by sailors to the chapel. I die in peace and wish to be carried to the tomb in peace and free from the vanities and pomp of this world."—London Home Notes.

Ancient Egyptian Stones.

Stones were formed into the shapes of beetles by the ancient Egyptians. They regarded the beetle as an emblem of immortality, and hence it was the most popular of all forms of ornament. Counterfeit beetles of common stones were commonly buried with dead persons, and it was customary to engrave upon them the expression of wishes for future repose and happiness, dedications of the soul to God and various hieroglyphs. One of the latter was a hawk with a human head, symbolizing resurrection. Another, the vulture, meant maternity. A goose was the son of a king.

The Proper Instinct.

"Birdset seems to have the proper instincts for a married man." "You mean that he can tell a graceful lie, has developed a keen sense of cunning and has learned to conceal his real income from his wife." "Yes, and also to know that she really knows just how he is deceiving her."—New York Herald.

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

CENTRE HALL, PENN'A

FRIEND FARMER:

We wish to call your attention to the Weber and Columbia Wagons we have been offering you for the last few weeks through the columns of this paper.

In referring to the good qualities of these wagons we wish to say that nothing but the best of material enters into their construction; this combined with the best of mechanical skill, and the latest improved machinery designed especially for the construction of wagons, goes to make up these most complete and perfect wagons; not even the smallest details are overlooked.

The lumber used is selected by experienced men and is of four years' seasoning.

The axles are of the very best grade of hickory. The hubs are the very best quality of white oak. The spokes are strictly A 1 grade of oak and hickory mixed and driven in hot glue.

The felloes are oak and are thoroughly soaked in boiled oil before tires are set, and are joined with improved steel dowels, which prevents clipping at the joints.

They are exceptionally well ironed, light running and attractively painted, and in all a wagon that will give years of service.

We very cordially invite you to step in and examine these splendid wagons whether you are contemplating a purchase now or not. We want you to thoroughly understand their construction and see where they are better than the ordinary vehicle.

The important thing in buying a wagon is to know before hand what service it will give you; the important thing in selling them is to show you that, as well as we can, and then be sure that they are as good as we lead you to expect.
