The Man Hunt Abandoned.

Frustrated at every turn to capture the man who held up the express train in Lewistown Narrows and subsequently, it is believed, robbed Robert F. Little, of Lewistown, while passing along the mountain road near Doe Trough Hollow, the large force of railroad and Adams Express detectives have abandoned the search in the mountains in which the robberies occurred.

Falling to discover any tangible clue to the bandit the army of one hundred men hired in Lewistown and the two or three hundred railroad trackmen and other employes who have been guarding the mountains between Millin and McVeytown were given their pay Friday evening and discharged from further duty in the man hunt.
