GRANGE ENCAMPMENT AND FAIR.

Was a Great Success in Every Department. Large Attendance, Extensive Exhibits, Good Entertainments, Good Speaking.

The thirty-sixth annual Grange Encampment and Fair was a grand success. It was a success in all its departments. The camp opened under the most auspicious conditions. The management was sanguine that this Exhibition and Fair would be better than any heretofore held, and the result was not disappointing. Mr. Rhone, the chairman of the committee, devoted months in preparation that the thousands of farmers might enjoy a week on Grange Park with pleasure and profit. His aim was accomplished.

The tenting list was unusually large, and every tent on the park was occupied by one or more families, many of whom moved into their white palaces on Saturday and remained until the next Saturday. The weather conditions during the entire time were ideal for camp life, and those who availed themselves of this opportunity for an outing enjoyed it thoroughly.

The exhibits of all kinds were extensive, and covered a much larger range than at any previous time. A full list of these will appear in a future issue.

The exhibitors, especially those who have local agents, took orders for machinery, etc., that will repay them handsomely for their efforts. The orders taken direct are only a portion of the good results from being represented at this fair; future orders are sure to follow.

THE AUDITORIUM.

The first speaker on Wednesday was Hon. W. T. Creasy, Master of Pennsylvania State Grange, whose address was listened to with rapt attention. His sterling integrity and unflinching devotion to the cause of agriculture is known throughout the entire state. He made a forcible appeal to the farmers to organize and stand by the Grange, which is the greatest farmers' organization in this country.

Hon. James Foust, State Dairy and Food Commissioner, followed Mr. Creasy with a statement of the scope of the work of the Dairy and Food Division of the Agricultural Department. He pointed out the defects in the National Oleomargarine law and that amendments had been prepared to make the law more effective; that violators of the pure food laws were being prosecuted in a way that deterred counterfeiters from forcing their products on the market as pure butter. Commissioner Foust has many friends among the members of the Grange and was heartily applauded.

The next speaker was Dr. B. H. Warren, former Dairy and Food Commissioner, who for years has been foremost in the fight against the sale of oleomargarine for butter. Dr. Warren has had large experience in fighting the oleo combine. He was listened to with close attention.

Thursday was Grange field day, and United States Senator George P. Oliver, of Pittsburg, and Hon. Mortimore Whitehead, of New Jersey, were the principal speakers and each attracted a large audience. This was Senator Oliver's first visit to this Fair, and his presence here was much appreciated, which appreciation was manifested by the cordial greetings by the hundreds of Central Pennsylvania farmers who shook his hand. His address was brief and pointed. He spoke of the extensive field occupied by the agriculturalists and of their undeniable right to organize for their individual benefit. The Senator's coming here in the same spirit that he goes to gatherings of other classes won for him the admiration and friendship of a large number of farmers.

Hon. Mortimore Whitehead, of New Jersey, the veteran Patron, was the next speaker. For many years he was Lecturer of the National Grange, and perhaps addressed more gatherings of farmers than any other man in the United States. He had been in Centre county on frequent occasion in the past and his coming here was looked forward to with eager expectation. He is one of the ablest and most fluent speakers in the Order. Mr. Whitehead is making a tour through Pennsylvania, and will then attend the National Grange at Des Moines, Iowa, and from there will go to California to spend the winter.

Other speakers on the platform were J. Frank Chandler, Charles Dildine, William Armstrong, members of the executive committee of the Pennsylvania State Grange, and Hon. Robert Conklin, Commissioner of Forestry.

110-lb. Calf at Birth.

A remarkably large calf was born at Potters Mills, a short time ago, as reported by T. F. Royer, its owner. The calf, before it took nourishment from the dam, was weighed and tipped the scales to one hundred and ten pounds. The depth of the wither was fourteen inches.

THE TENTERS.

List of Tenters on Grange Park During the Encampment and Fair.

Tenting is one of the most enjoyable features of the Grange Encampment and Fair. The hundreds of farmers who tent each year live in the most comfortable homes, and for a week live in ease, throwing aside all care and responsibility of farm life. Appended are the names of the heads of families and their children who spent the week in the canvas city. There were many hundred visitors who were entertained for a day or more, but the Reporter was obliged to confine the list to those who occupied the tents for the week.

Mule and Cow Sales.

The Misco mules offered for sale by D. A. Grove, of Lemont, on Grange Park, were all sold. The highest price paid for a team was $347. The animals were two and three years old.

The western cows were a choice lot and were offered by George W. Bradford. The highest price paid was $80. Although the bids seemed to be high, Mr. Bradford was obliged to discontinue the sales, because he was not getting enough money to cover expenses over and above cost of the cattle. Several cows were sold later at private sale.

State S. S. Convention.

The State Sunday-school Convention will hold its fifty-fifth annual session in Harrisburg, October 13th to 15th. Centre county is entitled to thirty-seven delegates and it is desired that as many schools as possible elect and send their delegates to this convention.

Delegates, officers or teachers who may wish to attend the convention, should send their names to L. W. Nuttall, county secretary, Phillipsburg, who will forward credentials and information as to accommodations at Harrisburg.

Knogard-Royer.

Thursday of last week Charles A. Engard, of Penns Cave, and Miss Ella E. Royer, of Potters Mills, were united in marriage at the Lutheran parsonage, Centre Hall, by Rev. F. F. Bieber. The groom is a well known young man in the community in which he lives and for several years was in the threshing business. The Reporter wishes the young people success and happiness all through their married life.

TOWN AND COUNTY NEWS.

HAPPENINGS OF LOCAL INTEREST FROM ALL PARTS.

Newton Boob, of Bellevue, Ohio, was married recently. He is a son of Nathaniel B. Bob, of Millheim.
Clarence Heim, a brakeman on the local branch of the Pennsy, has moved from Lewisburg to Bellefonte.

W. T. Boal, of near Spring Mills, will be willing to auctioneer sales, and those in need of a crier can address him for that purpose.

The regular fall meeting of the Huntingdon Presbytery will be held in the Presbyterian church, Phillipsburg, on Monday and Tuesday, October 4th and 5th.
John Messmer, who lives on the mountain north of Penn Hall, is picking ripe strawberries. They are a new variety and yield two crops during the season.

The Oak Hall flouring mills have been remodeled at a great cost to their owner, Clayton Ethers, who has had twenty-five years experience in the milling business.

Hon. W. M. Allison, is having his flouring mill at Spring Mills fitted up with the Sprout-Waldron system, which machinery is said to be the latest improved on the market.

The Centre county Veteran Club has decided to furnish a room in the new part of the Bellefonte hospital to be known as the G. A. R. room. General Beaver is chairman of a committee to carry out the plan.

Both the Bellefonte iron furnaces are to be put in operation within six weeks or two months. The news is very acceptable to Bellefonte business men, from banker down, as well as laborers and mechanics.

Merchant Emory does not believe in making his place of business a rendezvous for the rum filled and when they do not retire on a polite invitation, a tap on the nose puts enough emphasis on the request to cause it to be heeded.

Harry A. McClellan, of near Tusseyville, has decided to hold a stock sale some time during the month of October, at which time he will sell a number of head of horses, cattle, hogs and sheep. The definite time of the sale will be announced later.

The fee for the registration of mail will be increased from eight to ten cents after November 1, 1909, according to an order signed by Postmaster General Hitchcock. The maximum indemnity allowed for the loss of a registered article has also been increased from $25 to $50 by the order.

Merchant John W. Rankle, of Middleburg, accompanied by his son Kemer were here during the Encampment, guests at the Centre Hall hotel. The corn crop in Snyder county, according to Mr. Rankle's judgment, will be much below the average and some farmers will be obliged to buy corn to feed their stock.

Mrs. Margaret Dikeman, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. Elmira Yarnell Longenecker, of Waterstreet, Huntingdon county, were in town last week, and while here were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Swab. The ladies are descendants of the late Peter Durst, and were here looking after their interests in his estate as well as to again renew their acquaintance with old friends.

While attending the Grange Encampment and Fair, Mrs. S. R. Kamp, of Lock Haven, took sick, and for two days was confined to her bed in the Marcellus Sankey tent. Later she was removed to the home of Hon. Leonard Rhone, and Saturday morning was able to go to her home. She was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Edna, who assisted in caring for her.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Rishel, of Montgomery, and Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rishel, of New York, were on the Park for a day last week, having autoed it from Montgomery to this place in the former's machine. The latter Mr. Rishel made his first visit here in a number of years and was a stranger to many. He is engaged in stock broking and has met with success. If the Reporter devoted a special page to social affairs, it would say in it that Mrs. Rishel is an exceptionally handsome woman.

A horse driven by an agent fell in the road near Centre Hill and broke one of its front legs. The animal belonged to the Palace Livery, Bellefonte, and its owner made a claim of $160 from the township for the loss. The township authorities claim the loss was occasioned through a pure accident and that there was no obstruction in the road and refused to assume responsibility. The supervisors and the Palace liverymen met on the grounds of the accident. A cup-shaped rock, extending through the road bed less than two inches was pointed out as the stone on which the animal fell.
