The sickness was but temporary. If you have printing to do, patronize the home print shop.

Every one believes that local news papers should encourage patronizing home industries, but sometimes these same people forget to put their own notions into practice.

Mr. Fisher is highly pleased with his machine and so far it has never failed to do his bidding.

Centre Hall is opposed to dispensing with the annual spring election, and consequently voted against the amendments.

There are too many opportunities for the average Centre Hall voter to "even up" to permit borough and any other election to mix up.

The well was dug by Arbor Cumings, assisted by Constable Frazier. This farm relied wholly on cisterns for its water supply for many years.

While in Philadelphia, Mrs. John B. Reed, of Tacoma, Washington, received a telegram that her husband was stricken with paralysis.

LECTURE NEXT THURSDAY EVENING.

Ex-State Treasurer W. H. Berry Will appear in Grange Arcadia Thursday Evening, November 11th.

A telegram received Tuesday morning from ex-State Treasurer William H. Berry announced that he would be in Centre Hall, Thursday evening, November 11th, at which time he will lecture in Grange Arcadia, his subject being "A Discussion of Christian Citizenship."

Mr. Berry is well known as a lecturer. He is an eloquent, forceful, convincing speaker, and will have a message every one should bear.

Funds to defray the expenses of the lecturer were raised by popular subscription. The costs of the hall will be thrown open to all.

A collection will be lifted after the lecture, and the proceeds will be added to a fund already started to secure a lecturer at some future date.

Mr. Berry's lecture will be in no sense political. He will picture the highest standard of citizenship.

The school children will be assembled and sing national airs.

Hallowe'en Social.

The members of the Christian Endeavor Society connected with the Reformed church, in Centre Hall, held a Hallowe'en social in the Sunday-school room of the Reformed church, Monday evening.

Music, recitations, and tableaux formed the first part of the program. The pastor, Rev. Daniel Gress, then spoke briefly of the origin of Hallowe'en.

After this portion of the program was finished, refreshments were served. These consisted of pumpkin pie, cake, candies and nuts, all served in a manner to emphasize the particular event—Hallowe'en—and so were the decorations.

Besides the members of the Reformed church and their families, a number of others were invited, and every effort was made to make these feel that there can be real sociability at such gatherings.

The rabbit season is now open, but thus far no one in this vicinity has been overdone in carrying home the game. The rabbits seem to be plentiful, and all that remains to be done is to kill them.

Kept His Word.

A young fellow in Havana who occupied the position of a reporter fell in love with a girl, the daughter of a wealthy planter. He applied to her father in the orthodox way for his consent to the marriage.

"Presumptuous!" said the father, with eyes flashing. "You, a poverty stricken journalist, and my daughter! Sir, get out of my presence!"

The journalist was very angry. It brought forth a heated declaration of pride: "Your daughter is too good for me, you say? I will marry a princess before I die." And, with head erect, he left the irate father.

The journalist went to Spain. He wrote poems. The poems were read by the Princess Josephine. There was a meeting. The two fell in love with each other. It is said the journalist was so sincere in his affection that probably he forgot his declaration to the Havana planter.

They were both royally happy, eloped, married in Valladolid and were eventually pardoned by Queen Isabella, the one time journalist being received with all the respect due to his new and high rank.

When Ladies Wore Masks.

In the seventeenth century ladies wore masks in public, and great was the variety of face screens that were seen. Ladies who had "coralline" lips preferred short masks, as was natural.

For others who wished to hide the lower part of the face the mask was completed by a chin piece of linen, which afterward passed under the chin and over the ears.

In 1632 a new mask called the mimì, from the Italian mimics, was all the rage and threatened to usurp the place of the black one. It was even the cause of violent quarrels between the ladies who held to the latter and those who preferred the latest novelty.

Some years later it became the fashion to trim the upper part of the mask with a ruche of lace, to lengthen it with a beard of the same material and even to cover it more or less with lace to the borders of the eyeholes.

Young ladies of this period, however, frequently contented themselves with covering the face simply with a piece of black crape for coquetry's sake and to appear the fairer.

The Rack, Pace and Amble.

The rack is a gait of the horse between a trot and a gallop or canter, in which the fore feet move as in a slow gallop, while the hind feet move as in a trot or pace.

It is usually an artificial gait, but is sometimes hereditary or natural. There is much confusion of terms in respect to this gait, due to the fact that the gait itself is somewhat varied, according as the racker carries the one or the other fore foot foremost in the galloping motion of the fore feet; that many confound the rack with the pace, the words often being used synonymously, and that many have mistaken the use of the words "pace" and "amble."

There is abundant evidence that the American pace of today is the amble of Europe of the last century and earlier. The motion of the hind feet is the same in the trot, the pace and the rack. In the trot the diagonal hind and fore feet move nearly simultaneously.

In the pace or amble the hind and fore feet of the same side move nearly simultaneously.—Boston Globe.

Exploding Ice Bubbles.

The intensely cold nights of Siberia, says a writer, produce a curious phenomenon. Occasionally the silence is broken by a loud report resembling the boom of a cannon.

The noise is caused by the bursting of an ice bubble on a river. The streams coming from the hills are increased in ice six to nine inches thick, and as the water descends faster than it escapes through the river the result is a heavy hydrostatic pressure.

This first causes the ice upon the river to rise in mounds eight to eight feet high. For a time they seem to yield elastically to the pressure, but finally can withstand no more and burst with an explosive report. The water rushes out, soon freezing, however, and causing further explosions. The writer asserts that he has seen scores of these ice bubbles within a few miles.

Muskat and Perfumery.

The question is asked us whether the musk of the common muskrat is not used to make cheap perfumery. We have never heard of such use of muskrat musk, nor can we find anything definite on the subject in the books.

Application to a large manufacturer of perfumery, however, brings out the information that some years ago musk from the muskrat was tried out for perfumery purposes, but was not found available for this use.

Not a single instance of its being used now is known. The musk of commerce comes chiefly from the musk deer.—Forest and Stream.
