ENGINEERS ON AIR LINE

Ramsay's Son One of Ten Men Now Surveying in the Vicinity of New Berlin.

Interest in the air line railroad between New York and Chicago has again been revived by the appearance in Union county recently of a corps of engineers, with a ton or more of baggage and paraphernalia, and work of surveying the route is now in active progress.

The engineer corps is now stationed at New Berlin where the ten men have taken quarters at the hotel, and have fitted up a large room with draughting supplies. The corps at once went to work on the line, and at present is engaged in endeavoring to shorten the line to Sellingsgrove.

The former surveys were made over Penns Creek, but the line now is being laid from Centreville over the hills, and will run south of New Berlin.

This is the same corps that had been working in Indiana county, and later at the west end of Centre county. It is the project of former President Ramsay of the Wabash system and a son of Mr. Ramsay is with the party at New Berlin.

The line enters Union county along Penns Creek at Paddy mountain tunnel, and follows the L. & T. to near Welkert, where a southern course toward New Berlin is taken.

The original surveys were made a year or more ago, and the promoters announce that it is to be an electrically operated system.

Pleasant Gap.

Andrew Swartz is very low at this writing. His many friends hope for his speedy recovery.

How the Debt Was Collected.

In the home of a certain influential family they arose one morning to find that no breakfast had been prepared, even the kitchen fire had not been lighted. Upon investigation the cook was discovered peacefully reclining in bed.

"Are you ill?" inquired the mistress. "Not at all. I feel quite well," was the surprising response, but still no persuasion would induce her to arise. After a time the doctor was sent for. He put to her his usual questions, but the girl insisted that she felt perfectly well.

"If, as you say, you are not ill," said the man of pills and potions, "then tell me in confidence why you won't get up and go to work." "Well," said the girl resolutely, "these people owe me $25, and I won't stir until they pay it."

"Do you think you'll get it quicker by staying in bed?" asked the doctor. "I most certainly do," she replied, with a gleam of the eye that expressed determination to fight it out on that line if it took all summer.

The doctor, advancing, said: "Roll over and stay there. That's the only way you'll get it. They owe me $80." —National Magazine.

Marriage in Japan.

A Japanese husband is allowed only one wife, but to marry is sometimes a much more serious matter than with us. Either the husband must be formally adopted into the family of the wife or the wife into the family of the husband, the couple being absorbed into one family and subject to its discipline. As a rule, this custom weighs more heavily on the bride than on the husband, for she must not only obey her husband, but every member of his family of an older generation than himself; hence a young woman often longs for old age, so that she may wield authority over the younger generations. To bring about a marriage in Japan an intermediary is appointed, whose duty it is to introduce the parties and to look to every arrangement of the wedding. He remains through life the guide, philosopher and friend of the married couple, who refer all matters, all misunderstandings, to his counsel. — Pearson's.

Sneezing.

The custom of saying "God bless you" after sneezing must be at least as old as the fifteenth century, as a reference to it appears in the first edition of Caxton's "Golden Legend." After describing a certain malady which broke out among the early Christians, the result apparently of their intemperate habits, Caxton proceeds: "In this manner somtyme they curred, so that when any persone was herd sneezing anon that were by said to hym, God helpe you, or Cryste helpe, and yet endureth the custome." A curious superstition with regard to sneezing still lingers in the villages of Devonshire. It has found expression in the following couplet: Sneeze on Sunday morning fasting, You'll enjoy your own true love to everlasting.

A Peg Too Low.

A tankard was made of precious metals, of pewter or of wood. Among the most ancient specimens are the "peg tankards." These are said to have been introduced by St. Dunstan as a check on the intemperance of his day. Pegs marked the tankard at intervals, beyond which the drinker was not to go, else he had more than his comrades. Put, curiously enough, this device proved the means of aggravating the evil it was intended to remedy, for as a refinement on St. Dunstan's simple plan the most abstemious drinkers were required when the tankard went round to drink precisely to a peg indicated, whether their heads could stand the amount of such "distempering draft" or not. Thence comes the phrase, "He is a peg too low." —London Spectator.

They Do Their Share.

Milton complained of his wife that she did not talk to him enough. Three hundred years have wrought a change. When Matthew Arnold visited this country a woman with more zeal than discretion asked him: "Mr. Arnold, will you tell me what is the most novel impression you have received in the United States?" "Certainly, madam," he replied, with perfect English suavity. "The women do all the talking." —Youth's Companion.

A Spec of Thread.

"Put for Napoleon," said the spool. "I like the Arc de Triomphe, would never have existed. In Napoleon's time thread was made only of silk and of wool. Napoleon to ruin the English silk thread trade destroyed the world's silk thread, which lay at Hamburg. In this crisis the Paisley spinners turned to cotton. After tremendous labor they at last made cotton thread. Cotton thread is the world's chief thread today." —Cincinnati Enquirer.

Only His Share.

"George," said the maiden aunt reprovingly, shaking her finger very solemnly at her small nephew, "there were two mince pies on the larder shelf this morning, and now they have disappeared. I didn't think it was in you." "Tisn't all in me," blabbered the wee boy. "One of 'em is in Gwendie." —Exchange.
