TREMORS CONTINUE FORTY-EIGHT HOURS.

Vibrations The Most Universal Ever Recorded At Georgetown University Observatory-First Felt At 3.26 Friday Morning - Disturbance Estimated At Over 2,000 Miles From Baltimore-Hopkins University Instrument Shows A Severe Shock.

Washington, D. C. (Special).-An earthquake, causing tremors lasting 48 minutes, was recorded by the instruments at Georgetown University Observatory, at the Weather Bureau and at the Coast and Geodetic Survey Magnetic Observatory Cheltenham, Md. The tremors of the seismograph were accompanied by Georgetown Observatory. Francis Torndorf, who recorded the vibrations of the instrument, said that the tremors were the most unusual ever noted at the observatory on account of their alternating directions. As the motion was principally east and west, it is believed that the disturbance occurred somewhere in the West, probably along the Pacific Coast.

The tremors of the instrument began at 3.26 o'clock A. M. The electromagnetic instrument recorded the first shock just two minutes after the preliminary movement began. At 3.36 the second shock came, lasting four minutes. The third shock was at 3.45 and lasted two minutes. The first shock was by far the heaviest. It is not believed, however, that the earthquake could have been se-

This was due to a misunderstanding regarding the arrival of the special train. The Roosevelts drove to the American embassy, and shortly afterward Colonel Romevelt kept an appointment with Professor Fraenkel, a throat specialist, who made a careful examination.

At Potsdam the Emperor and Empress treated their American guests with great cordiality, engaging them in prolonged conversation in the small drawing-room, with other members of the royal family, before lunch. The Emperor, after the other guests had gone, showed Colonel Roosevelt and his family through the Sanssouci Palace himself.

Without making any definite statement regarding the condition in which he found Colonel Roosevelt's throat the physician explained that laryngitis often follows a long residence in the tropics, and that in his opinion the hoarseness in this case is not due to the strain of speaking. Colonel Roosevelt, he thinks, should be entirely recovered within a week.
