

The First Days of Court in New Temple of Justice Devoted to Trivial Cases.

September court convened on Monday morning at ten o'clock, and nearly the entire forenoon was taken up in hearing motions and petitions. The grand jury was called and sworn, and Albert Smeltzer, a retired farmer, of Spring township, appointed foreman, and after being charged by the court as to their rights and duties as grand jurors, they were placed in charge of two constables appointed by the court and taken to the new grand jury room on the first floor of the remodeled court house. H. K. Hoy, also a retired farmer of Spring township, was appointed assistant constable to wait upon the grand jury, which now requires two constables on account of the grand jury room being some distance from the main court room.

Several constables made their regular reports to the court, and at 11:20 court adjourned.

After the convening of the court in the afternoon, the case of W. H. Musser vs. Thomas Johnston, being an appeal, was continued on account of the illness of the defendant.

The first case taken up was that of W. H. Musser vs. Irvin Bennett, an appeal from a decision of a justice of the peace, and brought to recover balances due on three insurance policies issued by the plaintiff's agency on saw mill property. Verdict in favor of the defendant.

Simon H. Sell, district attorney of Bedford county, and Walter Welch, a member of the Clearfield county bar, were in attendance at court.

Brit. Morgan, charged with assault by W. T. Mayes, of Spring township, plead guilty.

James Finkle, of Spring Mills, charged with assault by J. J. Auman, of Penn township, was in effect commended by the grand jury for protecting a young lady against being spat on. The bill against him was ignored and the costs, except the $4.00 due the county, put on the prosecutor.

James Finley, charged with larceny, plead guilty, as did also Brinton Morgan charged with the same crime.

A verdict of not guilty was directed in the case of William McCloskey, charged with furnishing medicine to Catharine Watson, who was in delicate condition. The costs were divided.

The case against Frederick Rockey, of Zion, was continued on account of the serious illness of the defendant's sister, a witness. The young man is charged with having shot a neighbor's daughter through the arm on her way to school. Rockey claims the shooting accidental.

Com. vs. John W. Weaver, prosecutor Samuel Weaver, indicted for forcible entry and detainer. The court held that the commonwealth had not sustained its charge. The question of costs was submitted to the jury.

Horse Judging Contest for Boys.

In connection with the third annual horse show at State College, October 19th, a horse judging contest for boys between fifteen and twenty years of age, living within fifteen miles of State College, will be held. Three influential citizens have offered the following prizes to the winners:

First prize—Scholarship to Winter Course, amounting to $75.00. This includes all expenses necessary to completion of twelve weeks course.

Second prize—Scholarship to "Farmers' Week," with expenses paid, Craig's "Livestock Judging," Plumb's "Breeds of Live Stock," annual Subscription to National Stockman and Farmer" and to the "Breeder's Gazette."

Third prize—Craig's "Livestock Judging," annual subscription to the "National Stockman and Farmer," and to the "Breeder's Gazette."

Every boy living within the district should endeavor to secure this opportunity for gaining a twelve weeks course at State College free of charge. For further information write W. A. Cochel, Secretary, State College, Pennsylvania.

Death of a Child.

A New Democratic Leader.

[From the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]
It is a good sign for Democracy when New Jersey on a sound progressive platform nominates for governor a man with the character, capacity, attainments and principles of President Wilson, of Princeton University. Perhaps no other man in public life more thoroughly and conspicuously represents the antithesis of Rooseveltism or opposes more vigorously the undemocratic phases of the New Nationalism. Dr. Wilson believes in constitutional government. He believes in preserving the constitutional rights and exercising the constitutional functions of the states. He believes in a government of law. He does not believe it necessary for the control of corporations to overthrow all constitutional safeguards and set up a powerful central government with a dictator at its head. He believes that corporations as creatures of law can be controlled by law. He believes that when corporations commit crimes the men who direct them are guilty and should be punished.

Tener Must Speak Up.

[From Philadelphia Public Ledger.]
It is nearly time for Mr. Tener to get into the campaign, with something more pleasant than platitudes, if he would not be overworked in the storm and stress of current politics. In his first speech of acceptance he promised to say something at a later period. Thus far he has been repeating the same speech, which relates wholly to the proud record of the party and the excellence of Governor Stuart's administration. This is very well as far as it goes; but Governor Stuart is not the present candidate, and even the state policies which he has represented are not so complete and fixed as to make his successor's attitude upon them unimportant.

Certainly a Promising Sign.

There is another promising sign. Democratically: The country is hearing less about the Macks, the Murphys, the Taggarts and the Roger Sulivans, and more about the Gaynors the Harmons, the Marshalls, the Baldwins and the Wilsons.—Washington Herald.

Speaking of poll taxes, as Kipling would say, "Pay, Pay, Pay."

Don't waste your money buying plasters when you can get a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment for twenty-five cents. A piece of flannel dampened in this liniment is superior to any plaster for lame back, pains in the side and chest, and much cheaper. Sold by Murray and Bitner.

WANTED—Hand-picked fell and winter apples; also, drop and elder apples. Highest price paid for them.—Centre Hall Evaporating Company.

Not a minute should be lost when a child shows symptoms of croup. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, will prevent the attack. Sold by Murray and Bitner.
