VERY FINE BIRDS.

His Wife's Comment on the Result of His Hunting Trip.

As he was returning home one evening after an all day bunting trip it occurred to him that the usual accompaniment of an empty game bag was not in accordance with his oft boasted skill as a hunter and that his wife would again have the joke on him, so he went to the market and purchased two brace of partridges.

As he entered the house he threw them on the table with great eclat and exclaimed, "Well, you dear old doubt er, you see that I am handler with the gun than you give me credit for being, after all; now don't you?"

Milady picked up the birds and examined them very carefully. As she looked up after the examination he

EATING AN APPLE.

What You Take Into Your System With the Fruit.

"Do you know what you're eating?" said the doctor to the girl. "An apple, of course."

"You are eating," said the doctor, "albumen, sugar, gum, malic acid, gailic acid, fiber, water and phosphorus." "I hope those things are good. They sound alarming." "Nothing could be better. You ate, I observed, rather too much meat at dinner. The malic acid of apples neutralizes the excess of chalky matter caused by too much meat and thereby helps to keep you young. Apples are good for your complexion. Their acids drive out the poxious matters which cause skin eruptions. They are good for your brain, which those same noxious matters if retained render stug gish. Moreover, the acids of the apple diminish the acidity of the stomach that comes with some forms of indigestion. The phosphorus, of which apples contain a larger percentage than any other fruit or vegetable, renews the essential nervous matter of the brain and spinal column. Oh, the auclents were not wrong when they esfeemed the apple the food of the gods -the magic renewer of youth to which the gods resorted when they felt them-I'll have an apple," concluded the doctor."-New York Tribune.

Strange Lapse of Memory. Cases of forgetfulness on matters of interest are on record. While Dr. Priestly was preparing his work entitled "Harmony of the Gospels" be had taken great pains to inform him-self on a subject which had been under discussion relative to the Jewish Passover He wrote out the result of his researches and laid the paper away. His attention and time being taken with something else, some little time elapsed before the subject occurred to his mind again. Then the same time and pains were given to the subject that had been given to it before, and the results were again put on paper and laid aside. So completely had he forgotten that he had copied the same paragraphs and reflections before that it was only when he had found the papers on which be had transcribed them that it was recalled to his recoffection. This same author had frequently read his own published writings and did not recognize them,

A Question For the King. Divinity doth not always hedge a king. There have been many rulers who could take as well as give in the joking line The most striking instance of this kind is seen in the case of Charles II., that good natured Stuart, who once asked his chaplain, Dr. Stillingfleet:

THE GUARD WAS ANGRY.

But the Pretty Girl Didn't Need His Protection.

Passengers on a subway car bound from Brooklyn to New York on Sunday afternoon had an experience that first caused frowns and then a laugh. The car was crowded, but all the women had seats. "That will about do for you," said the big, rawboned guard. "Go home to your wife."

This didn't seem to worry the apparently respectable man, and, catching in the Methodist church, Sunday a glint from the girl's eyes, he threw another kiss. She turned her face to study "carefully a pretty bat across the car.

At the Manhattan end of the bridge the girl rose to leave the car. The man who was trying to flirt with her also faced the sliding door. By that time all eyes were on the pair, the guard was mad all through, and a couple of passengers edged dangerously close.

The girl in old rose took the arm of the apparently respectable man and
