

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Black Duck, Minn.—"About a year ago I wrote you that I was sick and could not do any of my housework. My sickness was called Retroflexion. When I would sit down I felt as if I could not get up. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and did just as you told me and now I am perfectly cured, and have a big baby boy."

Mrs. ANNA ANDERSON, Box 19, Black Duck, Minn.

Consider This Advice. No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women residing in almost every city and town in the United States bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It cures female ills, and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

Caddle—Well, sir, most of the gents here tries to do it in as few strokes as they can, but it generally takes a few more.—Scottish American.

She Probably Could. Senator La Follette, apropos of certain scandals, said at a dinner in Madison: "These things recall the legislator who remarked to his wife, with a look of disgust: 'One of those land lobbyists approached me today with another insulting proposition.' 'The wife, a young and pretty woman, clapped her hands. 'Oh, good!' she cried. 'Then I can have that sable stole, after all, can't I, dear?'"

Wrong Guess. It was exhibition day at No. 3, and as the parents of Jack Grady, the dullest pupil, were listening hopefully, the teacher tried her best to help the boy. "How did Charles I. of England die?" she asked, assigning the easiest question on her list to Jack. As he looked at her, with no indication of a coming answer, the teacher put her hand up to her neck. Jack saw the movement and understood its meaning, as he thought, "Charles I. of England died of cholera," he announced briskly.—Youth's Companion.

"GRAND OLD MAN" OF FOOTBALL

Walter Camp.

According to Walter Camp, popularly known as the "Grand Old Man" of football, there are circumstances wherein even a football player is not entitled to occupy turf room on a football field, says Detroit News. He must pull up stakes and "beat it" or be penalized. The circumstances are these:

A player is running to catch a forward pass. An opponent is directly in his path but is not aware of the whereabouts of the ball in the air. He realizes that the runner is after the ball, however, and thinks that by standing still he will make him (the runner) go out of his way in order to complete the pass. If he is successful in this, Camp avers that any referee may legitimately penalize on the grounds of interference with a bona fide attempt to catch a forward pass.

up well, with the exception of Captain Manley. He was a notable exception and his work was the most brilliant shown on the field.

Fight Game on Wane.
Outside of New Orleans, where fighting has been revived, there isn't a city of importance in this country that will tolerate a bout of 20 rounds or more just now. The California legislature will convene next winter, and as there is just a chance that no anti-fight bill will be passed the San Francisco clubs have decided to remain closed until such time as it may be deemed safe to open.

Horses to Get Records.
At a meeting of the American Association of Trotting Horse Breeders held at Lexington it was decided upon motion of Gen. C. G. Watts that the association recommend to the registry associations that "all records made by American-bred horses in foreign countries be recognized, this to refer to records made both in the past and future."

ere may legitimately penalize on the grounds of interference with a bona fide attempt to catch a forward pass. "It's up to the player to either get off the earth or be penalized," Camp says.

"What! Am I not entitled to standing room?" the indignant football player asks.

"Not in the least. You see readily that by occupying certain standing room you are interfering with another fellow's chances of completing a forward pass. Therefore it's up to you to get out. The rules may be taken as literally as this throughout. Except in a very few instances they are purporting to mean exactly what they say."

GOLFERS MEET AT CHICAGO
National Organization Will Hold Session in Windy City to Award Tournament Dates.

Announcement from Boston that the next annual meeting of the United States Golf association will be held in Chicago on January 11, has set the Boston golfing politicians talking about an eligible for the office of president of the national organization. This position has thrice been offered to Chicago and on each occasion the individual to whom it has been offered—David R. Forgan of Onwentsia—has declined on account of business pressure.

The national championship having been held in Boston this year, at the Chicago Golf club the year before, and over an eastern course the year previous, it is now fitting that the 1911 event should be assigned to an intermediate club. Buffalo and Pittsburg are both out for the event, but in recognition of the victory of Fownes in the national the consensus of opinion seems to be that the event should be awarded to the Oakmount Country club, which has already done some campaigning for the event.

Some action will be taken at the annual meeting of the P. S. G. A. in regard to the entertainment of the Australian team which will visit the United States next year.

Word was received in Chicago the other day that Michael Scott, who recently won the amateur championship of New South Wales at Sydney, Australia, will lead the team from the antipodes that will visit this country. Scott, who is a son of Lord Eldon, won the Australian open championship in 1902 and 1907, and the Australian amateur title in 1905, 1907, and 1909.

DISCREDITS A THIRD LEAGUE

George Tebeau Does Not Believe Good Players Can Be Secured for Fletcher Project.

George Tebeau, owner of the Kansas City Blues, while in Louisville the other day said that he did not think there will be a new major league. He said: "The players have prospered under organized baseball. They are getting the highest salaries in the history of the game, and the older men, whose experience dates back from ten to fifteen years, will keep the younger ones in line. Men with money are needed to promote a new league, and they want to see the value of their investment before they put up the cash."

Tebeau declares that Kansas City is the best playing city in the American association and says his team next year will be the best money can obtain. He says Danny Shay has made good, and will remain as manager. He expects Thomas M. Chivington to be re-elected association president without opposition.

McGill Owns Denver Club.
James C. McGill has become sole owner of the Denver baseball club of the Western league by purchasing the half interest held by Secretary H. C. Gunthorpe. The consideration is said to have been $15,000.

WINS BY WATCHING WAGNER

Cleveland Second Baseman of Pittsburg Pirates Gives Big Shortstop Credit for Success.

By JOHN MILLER. (Copyright, 1910, by Joseph B. Bowles.) I win by watching Wagner.

When asked to tell how I won I was going to refuse because it does sound "swelled" for a young fellow to tell such things or claim to win, until I remembered how it was.

I win because Honus Wagner taught me the game, showed me how to play it something after his own style, so in telling how I win I am only praising the teacher and the man I think is the greatest ball player of them all.

Wagner has had me under him for years. He began to show me the game when I was a kid, and took an interest in me from the first. He showed me how to make plays, told me what a fellow ought to do and what he ought not, and coached me all the time. Still I wasn't a winning player until he got me to Pittsburg where I could play alongside of him every day and watch him. I learned more about the game just watching Wagner than I ever thought there was in it. The first time they tried me I was not ready, and they sent me back. Wagner still had faith in me and kept coaching me along, and the second time I managed to stick. Whether I would have been a good ball player or a bad one but for him I cannot tell.

I watch Wagner closely all during a game, and move so as to be in the play with him. We talk back and forth and exchange signals once in awhile, but I think he does this more to help me and make certain I will not make mistakes than for anything else. I know that watching him keeps me from watching batters and runners as closely as I ought and that if he was out of it I would have to change the system, but I can tell more now by watching Honus than by watching the others. No one knows what a great ball player John Wagner is until he has played alongside of him.

I play a deep field, and it was Wagner who showed me what angles to take on different balls and how to shift for runners. He showed me how to hit without changing my natural batting position at all. In fact he seemed to know more about me than I knew of myself.

LOSE INTEREST IN FOOTBALL

Game Is Too Complicated for American Youngsters and Soccer Will Be Substituted.

Is football losing its interest for the American schoolboy? Howard Bradstreet, director of New York city's 50 public playgrounds, thinks the continued tinkering with the rules has made the game so complicated that the average boy of grammar school age would rather have a simpler game for his hours of recreation. As a result of Mr. Bradstreet's investigation of the subject, football will be turned down altogether at the New York playgrounds this year. Its place will be taken by soccer. For boys of high school age and for youths of the college Mr. Bradstreet thinks that the game still holds its fascination. The youths whom he looks after are for the most part of an age below that of first year high school pupils. Says Mr. Bradstreet:

"I find a prejudice against the game on the part of both boys and parents, and accordingly I am going to organize a soccer tournament to take the place of the American game. It will be an easy matter to cut out football, for in the first place most of the boys don't care about it. The changes in the rules mean nothing to the youngsters at the playgrounds, because they use pretty much their own rules. The principal difficulty in starting soccer will be to teach the game. When the boys learn it I am confident that they will like soccer."

A Logical Landlord.

Many a tenant will sympathize with the man in this story, from the Philadelphia Record. He was renting a small house which the landlord had refused to repair. One day the owner came to see him.

"Jones," he said, "I shall have to raise your rent."

"What for?" asked Jones, anxiously.

"Have taxes gone up?"

"No," the landlord answered, "but I see you've painted the house and put in a new range and bathtub. That, of course, makes it worth more rent."

Easy for Her.

An extremely corpulent old lady was entertaining her grandchild at lunch when she found occasion to reprimand the little girl for dropping some food on the tablecloth.

"You don't see grandma dropping anything on the table," she said.

"Of course not," replied the child; "God gave you something in front to stop it."

That Cold Room

on the side of the house where winter blasts strike hardest always has a lower temperature than the rest of the house. There are times when it is necessary to raise the temperature quickly or to keep the temperature up for a long period. That can't be done by the regular method of heating without great trouble and overheating the rest of the house. The only reliable method of heating such a room alone by other means is to use a
