WILSON WINS IN NEW JERSEY

Democrat Gubernatorial Candidate Elected by 20,000.

U. S. SENATOR IN DOUBT

But Republicans May Keep Control of the Legislature — Lewis Loses in Southern Part of State.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 9.—Woodrow Wilson, Democrat, was elected governor of New Jersey, defeating Vivian M. Lewis, Republican, by a plurality of 20,000. This may be greatly increased when complete returns have been received.

Whether the Democratic landslide for the head of the ticket will carry with it control of the legislature and the election of a Democratic United States senator is in doubt.

The early indications were that the Republicans would remain in control of both the senate and assembly. They surely will control the senate.

The earliest returns were from the few voting machines scattered throughout the state, but these showed figures so pronouncedly for Wilson that there was little question as to what would be the result when fuller returns were received.

Lewis had expected the large commuter vote in North Jersey to go heavily against him, but believed he would more than make up these losses in the Republican strongholds of South Jersey, especially in Camden and Atlantic counties.

When the Camden county voting machine returns showed that Lewis was running far behind Fort and figures from several of the other usually very strong Republican counties were likewise discouraging to the Republicans, they saw it was only a matter of how great would be Wilson's plurality.

Not even the most sanguine of the election prophets in Democratic ranks had predicted returns so favorable to Wilson, and the Republican leaders at the headquarters here attributed the overthrow of their candidate as largely due to the great feeling of unrest and the Democratic landslide that had been threatening for some time to sweep the country.

What is considered by some as a master stroke on the part of the Wilson campaign managers came to light when it was noted that the packages of Wilson "stickers" for use on Republican ballots bore the "union label" trademark. Most of the Lewis stickers likewise bore the label, but in Wilson's case it was especially significant by reason of the question that arose during the campaign as to whether the Democratic nominee was a friend of organized labor.

CONNECTICUT DEMOCRATIC

Democratic Candidate, Who Was Scored by Roosevelt, Elected Governor. New Haven, Conn., Nov. 9.—Judge Simeon E. Baldwin, Democrat, was elected governor of Connecticut by a plurality of 6000.

The Republicans admit that the congressional seat in the Second district, so long held by N. D. Sperry, dean of the house, is in danger of going to Thomas L. Reilly, Democrat.

The Republicans have so many local fights on their hands that indications point to a gain of from 60 to 70 seats in the general assembly for the Democrats. The use of the Australian ballot for the first time at a general election and the expected closeness of the vote for governor have raised speculation as to the possibility of the election being thrown into the courts over protested ballots thrown out by local moderators.

LOCALS.

Miss Libbie Davis, of near Linden Hall, has been ill for some time.

W. Thomas Boal, of Centre Hall, advertises that he is ready to receive calls as an auctioneer.

An exhibition of the Pitner inverted light was given in Centre Hall, Monday evening. A small lamp, built especially for the home, was set up in the residence of W. H. Meyer, and a larger one in the Reporter office, by C. M. Gramley, of Rebersburg. Both lamps gave out splendid light, lighting the interior and shedding a strong light over the street. The fixtures to the Pitner light are very simple, and can be put into position in less than fifteen minutes. The generator can be set on a shelf, floor, or located in some out of way corner, a single hollow wire being all that is required to connect it with the lamp. The cheapest grades of gasoline may be used, thus cheapening the cost of operating. If you have any notion of improving your lighting system, call on Mr. Gramley before you contract for the same.

BERRY MAY WIN.

At 5 o'clock Wednesday evening the North American sent a message to the Reporter saying the result in Pennsylvania was in the balance, no one knowing who was elected governor.

Tener's majority at that time was 12,000, but the returns were constantly reducing these figures.

Berry has a chance to
