LOCALS.
Corn in the shock could, no doubt, be bought at a reasonable price.
The Bradford hunting party saw a deer on Tuesday, but he was not killed.
Dr. H. S. Braucht, of Spring Mills, accompanied by his son Dean D., were in Centre Hall the latter part of last week, the former having come here to examine an applicant for life insurance.
William H. Motter, who recently made sale of his farm stock and implements in Georges Valley, and is now located in Lock Haven, was in town on Wednesday. Today (Thursday) he returned to Lock Haven.

The W. H. Bartholomew farm, west of Centre Hall, has been sold to Frank Osman, of College township. The consideration is not given to the public at this time. Mr. Osman will be in Centre Hall on Saturday, at which time the papers will be signed closing the sale in legal form.
On going to his barn on Monday morning, William Walker, a farmer west of Centre Hall, discovered one of his two horses lying dead in its stall. The horse, which was purchased some time ago for $175, was driven to Bellefonte on Saturday. He ate his feed at supper time and showed no signs of sickness that were observed by the owner.

County Superintendent of Schools D. O. Eiters was in Centre Hall Tuesday and paid his first visit to the borough schools during this term. He, of course, found everything in good working order. Generally speaking, Mr. Eiters says, the schools in Centre county are in very good standing. He paid a compliment to the younger teachers for their aggressive work.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Weibly, of Linden Hall, were in town on Friday. Mr. Weibly is track foreman on the Linden Hall section on the Lewisburg and Tyrone, and has in his force three men—John Diehl, Leonard Wilson and James L. Brown. They are now preparing to substitute eighty-five pound rails for seventy pound rails. This means some hard labor.
There is nothing so bad that it might not be worse. Marcellus Sankey, of near Millheim, will subscribe to this any day since a thief stole all the meat of a hog, except the hams and a small piece of boiling meat, killed by him recently. The meat was stored in the summer house for safe-keeping, but the doors were not proof against the thief who was after dressed pork, worth at least twelve cents per pound.

Lumber fifty years old was worked into window sashes for the dwelling house of W. J. Mitterling, in Centre Hall. The white pine was first purchased from a lumber firm in Clearfield county by James Kimport, of Linden Hall, in 1860, and transported by wagon. About eight years ago A. P. Luse & Son purchased the lot from Mr. Kimport, and when Mr. Mitterling gave his order for the sashes this lumber was used in their construction.
Emanuel P. Shook, of Spring Mills, has very much improved from the injuries received in a fall from a ladder while picking apples, and by the time this item is being read, he will be able to move around the house on crutches. While quite seriously injured, Mr. Shook's condition was never quite so bad as he was reported to be in the newspapers. The Reporter is glad to note his continuous improvement, and hopes soon to say that he is able to attend to business as he did before the mishap occurred.

Talk about boroughs having high taxes, then recall that a number of property owners to the south side of Centre Hall station have conceived the idea that it would be a good move from the viewpoint of economy to be included within the incorporated limits of this town. They are quite right in their conclusions, the advantages to be gained by these property owners by becoming borough residents is much more than the apparent tax increase in the borough over that in Potter township. Add to their present advantages these items: convenient schools, water, light, and they will have acquired much more than the tax boogabo amounts to.

APPLES AND POTATOES

Shipped from Centre Hall Aggregate Many Thousands of Bushels.

The apples and potatoes shipped from Centre Hall station this season aggregate many thousands of bushels. The price paid for apples was forty cents for the fall and fifty cents for the winter varieties. The quality of the apples was very fair, but no orchards had full crops, many bearing only about enough for family use. The Centre Hall Evaporating Company handled the larger part of the apple crop in this community, and besides the several thousand bushels used at the evaporating plant, several thousand bushels of hand-picked apples were shipped by them, most of which were marketed in barrels. There were many local lots shipped out by individuals. It is estimated that the total sales made at the local station was between five and six thousand bushels. This does not include the apples used at the evaporator, which were purchased by the hundred weight.

About fifteen car loads of potatoes were handled at the Centre Hall station, twelve cars of which were bought and shipped by the Howard Creamery Corporation, and the remainder by R. D. Foreman. These shipments represent about ten thousand bushels. There are yet many potatoes in the hands of the growers that will be put on the market later on. Most of the farmers on the south side of Potter township haul their potatoes to Mifflin county during the winter months, and those who follow this practice have not yet commenced to unload their crop.
The price paid for nearly all, if not all, the potatoes bought during the past two months was forty cents. The crop was a very good one, and the quality with reference to size was also good.

Harrison family, at a turkey dinner on Thursday, November 10th. The guests were invited to join with him in celebrating the seventy-third anniversary of his birth—his first birthday party. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eckenroth, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Williams and W. H. Murrer, of Bellefonte; Andrew Kreamer, of Hubersburg; Alfred Johnstonbaugh, of Jersey

Harrison and daughter Rhoda, all of Boalsburg.
The large frosted cake that decorated the table bore the number seventy-three, and had also that many tiny American flags waving over it. Messrs. Murrer and Williams, of Bellefonte, made impromptu speeches, relating incidents of the war in which they and their host participated. Among the guests named above, Mrs. McClintic, Mrs. Showalter and Mrs. William Bradford, are sisters, and Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Coxey are daughters. Mr. Hook is one of Boalsburg's most respected citizens, and although he has now entered upon his seventy-third year, he continues to follow his trade, which is plastering. Mr. Hook was the recipient of a large number of valuable presents, which are highly appreciated by him.

Fred Dennison, the Jenner township, Somerset county, lumberman, who had been found guilty, fined and sentenced on the charge of maintaining a nuisance in the shape of a traction engine, has been released from jail on a supersedeas obtained from the superior court. During the trial the allegation was made that his engine cut up the roads of the township. He was convicted of maintaining a nuisance, and a new trial was refused. Now comes his release through the action of the superior court, which will decide the matter of whether he shall have a new trial.

Keep in mind the Thanksgiving Day supper in Grange Arcadia. By patronizing the Grangers on this occasion will be aiding them to reduce the bonded indebtedness on the hall. Grange Arcadia is one of the best buildings in the town, and one that could not be dispensed with.

Rather Venomous.
A tenderfoot who visited the Yosemite in the old days thus related his experience: The stage driver found out that he was seriously afraid of snakes and immediately proceeded to make his hair stand on end.
"Venomous reptiles? You bet, I don't know what reptiles is, but them snakes you can just bet your life is venomous. Why, one day I was couldn' down here drivin' a wagon when I catches sight of a snake in the brush all ready for a spring. My horses starts, an' I whips 'em up fast to clear the snake, don't you see, afore he could spring. He makes one clear spring, the snake does, an' he misses the horses."
"That was lucky. But you—you—"
"Lucky? You bet your life it was lucky. He missed the horses, the snake did, but he stuck his fangs clean through the wagon."
"You don't say?"
"I do say, and maybe you don't believe it, but it's a fact. He stuck his fangs clean through that wagon, an' that wagon is swelled up so bad that we had to leave it by the wayside and take the horses home."

Now They Never Speak.
A coolness growing out of the following conversation has sprung up between Jones and Smith:
"I had a splendid time last night," said Jones. "I spent the evening at a little social gathering at the Goodman mansion."
"Are the Goodmans nice people?" queried Smith.
"Well, I should say so. They are very aristocratic. To get into their circle one must have either a great deal of money or a great deal of genius."
"You don't tell me so! And you say you were there?"
"Yes."
"You were invited, were you?"
"Of course."
"And to be invited a man has to have plenty of money or a great deal of genius?"
"Precisely."
"Well, Jones, I am very glad to hear you have become rich all of a sudden. Lend me £5."—London Answers.

Antiquity of the Water Pump.
The water pump of today is but an improvement on a Grecian invention which first came into use during the reign of Ptolemies Philadelphos and Energetes, 283 to 221 B. C. The name, which is very similar in all languages, is derived from the Greek word pempe, to send or throw. The most ancient description we have of a water pump is by Hero of Alexandria. There is no authentic account of the general use of the pump in Germany previous to the beginning of the sixteenth century. At about that time the endless chain and bucket works for raising water from mines began to be replaced by pumps. In the seventeenth century rotating pumps, like the Pappenhain engine, with two pistons, and the Prince Rupert, with one, were first used. Pumps with plunger pistons were invented by Morland, an Englishman, in 1674 and the double acting pump by De la Hire, the French academicien.

Retribution.
"Stand up, prisoner," orders the stern judge.
The trembling culprit, who has been found guilty by a jury of his delighted peers, stands.
"Prisoner at the bar," solemnly declares the judge, "you have been convicted of building house after house containing one of these confounded little boxes called 'reception rooms,' in which there is neither room to receive nor hooks to make it a wardrobe. The sentence of the court is that for the next ten years you shall be confined in one of these alleged reception rooms of your own construction and design."
Immediately the lawyers for the defendant begin work upon an appeal on the ground that a cruel and unusual punishment has been decreed.—Life.

A Big Help.
The lecturer raised his voice with emphatic confidence. "I venture to assert," he said, "that there isn't a man in this audience who has ever done anything to prevent the destruction of our forests."
A modest looking man in the back of the hall stood up.
"I—er—I've shot woodpeckers," he said.—Everybody's.

Make Some One Happy.
Charles Kingsley thus counseled a friend: "Make it a rule and pray to God to help you to keep it, never, if possible, to lie down at night without being able to say, 'I have made one human being at least a little wiser, a little happier or a little better this day.' You will find it easier than you think and pleasanter."

Ladylike.
A little girl on a train was chewing gum. Not only that, but she insisted on pulling it out in long strings and letting it fall back into her mouth again.
"Mabel," said her mother, in a horrified whisper, "don't do that. Chew your gum like a little lady."—Everybody's.

Webster Made Neat Return.
As Judge made law is now so much discussed, we may recall one of the neatest answers in history, as far, at least, as our own reading goes:
Judge (interrupting Webster's argument)—That is not law.
Webster—It was law until your honor spoke.—Collier's Weekly.

Intercollegiate.
"Not that I love Smith less, but that I love Bryn Mawr," said the junior as he invited a Philadelphia girl to the prom.—Amberst Four Leaf Clover.
