Scattering	11
Total vote cast	998,444
Tener's plurality over Grim	286,216
Tener's plurality over Berry	33,484

Did you say Spring election? No, there will be none. Nothing doing in the election; line until November of 1911. It will come soon enough.

If the Democratic party is reorganized, the Philadelphia Record ought to see to it that the meeting for the reorganization is not held in New York City. The old managers of the party, according to the Record's statement, went to New York to decide who should be nominated for Governor at Allentown, and then in the winding up of the campaign wanted the Democrats to believe that the Allentown convention acted with a free hand.

LOCALS.

The farm stock belonging to James B. Strohm will be sold at public sale Friday at ten o'clock.

One of the chief money crops grown on the Huyett farm by Perry Luse is hay. This year his sales of hay will amount to about $800.

The R. A. M's, whatever that stands for, of Potters Mills, had the good luck to kill a deer; ditto the Bradford party—two deer.

Hon. S. Woods Caldwell, owner of the Irvin House, Lock Haven, has also become the landlord. The former landlord, C. Replogle, went into voluntary bankruptcy.

Mrs. Mary Dinges has been confined to bed since Saturday. She is well advanced in years, and her friends are somewhat alarmed concerning her condition.

Mrs. Margaret Bailey offers her home in State College for sale. See advertisement in this issue. The house, which is quite large, has all the modern improvements.

The second number of the Centre Hall Lecture Course will appear Wednesday evening, 30th instant. Reserved seat tickets are now on sale at the store of Kreamer & Son.

Messrs. J. D. Wagner and son, J. A. Wagner, of near Spring Mills, were callers on the Reporter Tuesday evening. The latter is one of the rural mail carriers from Spring Mills.

Remember the supper in Grange Arcadia tonight (Thursday.) Chicken, waffles, oysters, ice cream, etc., will be served. If you do so, the Grange will appreciate your patronage.

Everybody's Magazine has started with the aid of ex-Senator Frank J. Cannon, of Utah, to demonstrate that the Mormons need reforming, both as to their matrimonial and business methods.

With the view of facilitating the movement of passenger and freight trains on the Lewisburg and Tyrone railroad, a Bell telephone will be installed at Penns Cave, a flag station below Centre Hall.

A call from the Second Presbyterian church, at Wilkinsburg, has been received by Dr. J. Allison Platta, of Bellefonte. It is thought he will accept. Dr. Platta has been in Bellefonte a little less than five years.

The high price of hay and the large quantity harvested in this immediate vicinity during the past season, has induced the Dursts and the Strunks to purchase hay balers which are now ready for operation.

The murderer of Josiah C. Dale has more nerve than the negro Dalgie. It is just a little over four years since that murder was committed, and he has been able to keep the secret, while the colored man was not able to stand the strain that many weeks.

At Egg Hill, on Sunday evening, the "Story of the Pink Rose" will be given in the United Evangelical church. This service is the same that was held in Centre Hall last Sunday, evening, and pleased and instructed a large audience. No admission will be charged, but a silver offering will be lifted.

Drunks Fought Duel.

A shooting duel occurred Monday forenoon in a corn field near Lewistown Junction, the duellists being John Brownwell, of Sunbury, and Andrew Brownwell, of Lewistown Junction, both railroad employes. Andy proved himself the better marksman and after shooting nine times at John hit John on one of his legs with a load of shot. John was so badly injured that he was taken to Lewistown where the shots were removed from his leg and the wound dressed. A bottle of whiskey was found in the pocket of one of the duellists and it is thought that the two men were fighting to get possession of the whiskey. Railroad Officer Davis stopped the duel, which was waged with shot guns.

Rev. Hart's Lecture.

Rev. H. B. Hart, pastmaster of the Pennsylvania Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., in a lecture in Grange Arcadia, Tuesday evening, gave a few reasons "Why I am an Odd Fellow." He was here under the auspices of the local order of Odd Fellows. He was greeted by a full house and the best of attention.

In the course of his address Rev. Hart said: "When a man became a member of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows he did four things—the best thing in the world for himself; the best thing in the world for his wife and family; the best thing in the world for the community; the best thing in the world for the Nation."

Lancaster Tobacco Figures.

Not less than 75,000 acres, one thirty-third part of the cleared acreage of Lancaster county, were under leaf-tobacco culture this year, furnishing work for 600 hands. Estimated yield 28,000,000 lb., worth say $3,500,000. Since 1890 this crop has meant more than $100,000,000 to the farmers of Lancaster county. Tobacco is grown on 10,000 farms, the total investment in tobacco barns, sheds and equipment being $3,000,000. In the county are 476 cigar factories, employing 8000 hands.

Grenoble Farm Sold for $6,500.

The farm known for many years as the Foster farm, west of Spring Mill, along the turnpike, was sold recently by J. A. Grenoble, of Yeagertown, the present owner, to L. A. Zabler, of Spring Mills. The price paid was $6,500. Adam Neese is the present tenant on this farm, and he will continue to till it.

The Fate of the Onedia.

One of the most extraordinary catastrophes that have befallen vessels of the United States destroyed the sloop of war Onedia in 1883. She was bound homeward, with a jolly ship's company, eager to see wives and sweethearts and native land once more, when not far out of port she was struck by the British steamer Bombay coming in. The stem of the Bombay cut off the stern of the Onedia. The ship was sinking rapidly, and guns of distress were immediately fired, but the Bombay steamed on her way and left the vessel to her doom. She went down, and all but one or two of her crew were drowned. The captain of the Bombay gave no other reason for his conduct than that he had Lady Eyre, the wife of a distinguished British entrap, on board and did not wish to disturb her nerves with scenes of shipwreck. He was mobbed when he reached Yokohama, dismissed from the service, socially tabooed from that time on and died in disgrace a year or two later.

Where Hypnotism Failed.

When Daysey Mayme Appleton returned recently from a party where the influence of several minds over one had been the evening's entertainment and told her mother how six girls, with their minds bent on one thought, had made a man stand on his head, another man at their silent command had tried on a woman's hat and another man had tried to eat water with a fork, it put a suggestion into Mrs. Lysander John Appleton's brain. That evening when Lysander John came home his wife and four daughters sat in a circle with their hands covering their faces and their heads bowed. To all his inquiries they said nothing, and at last, fearing they had gone mad, he sent for the doctor. "We concentrated our minds on the thought that Lysander John must give us $5 each, and instead of that we have a doctor bill to pay," sobbed Mrs. Appleton, "and they said it would be particularly easy to work if the man's mind was a blank."—Aitchison Globe.

To Get His Money's Worth.

In a village near Edinburgh there lived an old baker and his son. Their trade was in a flourishing condition, but unfortunately in the midst of their prosperity the old man, who had once been a great drinker, turned insane. The son, who was renowned for his love of money, was forced to put him in a lunatic asylum and, according to the terms of the establishment, to pay a fee for three months in advance, amounting to £20. The old man was scarcely in a fortnight, however, when he died. The son, thinking to raise an action against the establishment for the recovery of the fee, as he termed it, unused money, inquired of an old lawyer who was a bit of a wag whether he thought it would be prudent to try to recover the money or not. The chip of the law, putting on a grave face, replied seriously, "I've no think it was best to gang and put in the rest o' the time yerse!"

He Saw a Great Light.

Wrecks on the coast of Cornwall, England, were once a source of revenue to the natives. A writer says that in the local dialect "the folks on the coast teach their children to say in their prayers night times, 'God bless father an' mother an' zent a ship ta shore vore mornin'." The Cornish folk were great smugglers too. The Rev. R. S. Hawker had in his service as man of all work old Tristram Pentire, the last of the smugglers. One day he made to the vicar this notable confession: "Well, sir, I do think when I come to look back and to consider what lives we used to live—drunk all night and idle abed all day, cursing, swearing, fighting, gambling, lying and always prepared to shoot the gauger—I do really believe, sir, we surely was in sin!"

Brought Down the House.

On one occasion, when Arthur Roberts, the English actor, was performing the part of Captain Crosstree in the burlesque of "Black Eyed Susan" at Glasgow he converted an awkward contretemps into a hit. In one of the scenes Crosstree entered supposed to be inebriated and staggered about the stage. In doing so Mr. Roberts accidentally came in contact with the scenery of the inn, bringing the whole set down. The curtain had to be lowered, and the vivacious comedian came to the front and said, "Ladies and gentlemen, you see when we come to Glasgow we always bring down the house."

The Generous Barber.

"Here, I say! Be a bit more careful with that razor. That's the second time you've cut me."
"Well, well, so it is. But there! I always deduct a ha'penny for every cut. Why, it's nothing for a man to go out of here having won fourpence off me."—London Tatler.

Might Be on One's Nose.

"Don't get down in the mouth, old man," said the optimist. "Look on the bright side of things."
"That's all very well," mournfully replied the sufferer, "but what is the bright side of a gumboll?"

Belated.

"I understand that Frallman has come to the conclusion to contest his wife's will."
"Well, what is there courageous about that? She's dead, isn't she?"

The Touch of Fortune.

"What do you think, my dear? Such luck! We leave for Paris in an hour."
"Yes; we're going to Pasteur's. My husband has just been bitten by a mad dog."—Bon Vivant.
