

DEER SEASON CLOSED.

Brief Summary of Success by the Various Hunting Clubs and Individuals.

The deer season closed Wednesday. The success had by the many hunting parties located in Seven Mountains was fair.

The reports from the various camps are noted below in brief: The Bradford party killed two deer, the lucky members of the party being George W. Bradford, who is the senior of the Bradfords, and Maynard Meeker, who, by the way, is a skilled hunter.

The R. A. M's, one, killed by Lloyd Smith.

The Lucas party, one, killed by Rev. W. W. Rhoads.

Rossman-Neff party, one, killed by William Rossman.

The Wingard party are said to have captured the largest deer killed this season; they also killed two bears.

The Millheim party also killed two bears and a deer.

F. M. Ackerman, a lone hunter from Georges Valley, one deer.

The Horners killed two bears, in Poe Valley.

The Rebersburg party, two deer and quite a lot of small game.

The Newport Fish and Gun Club, one deer, killed in Stone Valley.

The Huntingdon Rod and Gun club, one bear and one deer.

The Port Royal hunting club, two deer, killed in Bear Meadows.

Altoona railroad men, two deer, killed in Bear Meadows.

The Riley party, two; Homan, one; the Modocs, two, killed by J. P. Wagner and William Leech; Roosevelt club, two, killed by Joe Meyer and Hood Barr; State College Gun club, one, killed by W. L. Foster; Coatsville party, one; Martha Furnace party, three.

Perry Krise and a few others had the good luck to kill a deer near Mr. Krise's farm buildings. He had been visiting the R. A. M's, and on his return home came across the buck that risked too near the experienced hunter.

The R. A. M's, of Potters Mills, sometimes called "Regulars," broke up their hunting camp at Garrity's on Saturday. Their killing consisted of a large buck shot by Lloyd Smith. The hunting party consisted of John Wilkinson, captain, James Reish, Thomas Decker, B. Frank Reish, Jacob Auman, Michael Coyle, Harry Wilkinson, Lloyd Smith, Lewis Faust Jonas Boal, David Bariges, Frank McCoy, J. R. Loupe, Amer Mowery, J. L. Foust, Ralph Smetzer, the latter cook.

The first Sunday of the season this camp was visited by forty-five persons.

C. R. Neff, Adam Smith, Richard Brooks, John R. Eckley, Clair Eckley, Earl Brown, Charles Coldren, William Rossman, Harry Reish and Edward Bailey made up a party who for a day scoured Tussey Mountain to find a buck with visible horns, but failed to do so. They did see a doe and a fawn, both of which were declared to be fine movers.

This indicates that the Seven Mountains furnish the best field for hunting in Central Pennsylvania.

Sermon to Hunters.

"Nimrod was a mighty hunter before the Lord," was the text from which the most unique sermon in the history of Central Pennsylvania was preached Sunday. The minister was Rev. Harold McAfee Robinson, of Bear Lake, Minn., late pastor of the Milroy Presbyterian church at Milroy, now taking a post graduate course at Princeton. He spoke of Esau, a mighty hunter, who in the fear of death when he returned from the chase, sold his birthright. The church was the Harry Reed camp, located at Bear Spring on the rim of the Big Kettle, eleven miles from civilization and in the very heart of the Seven Mountains. The congregation, one hundred and two men, dressed in the rough costumes of the mountain hunter and carrying rifles, as did the pioneers of old, representing thirteen hunting camps.

65,000 Pounds Evaporated Apples.

But one of the plants of the Centre Hall Evaporating Company was operated last season, yet the product was sixty-five thousand pounds. This little industry gives a market for a grade of apples hard to dispose of when the fruit is plentiful, the only expense the grower has is the picking and hauling. The plant at Coburn was not opened this year owing to the fact that there was but little fruit in the territory convenient to buy from.

LOCALS.

Rabbits and bears are the only game that may now be legally killed.

Ammon Burkholder, who is rail-roading in New Jersey, was home for a few days last week.

Miss Flora Love expects to leave the Bellefonte hospital today (Thursday.) She has been a patient there for about ten days.

Mrs. Myra Kerr, of Omaha, Nebraska, who was east last summer, is now among friends in Orangeville, Illinois.

If the label on your paper is marked "dec 09," please bear in mind that we are obliged to ask that your subscription is paid during the present month.

Misses Elizabeth Schuyler and Velma Simpkins, beginning of this week, went to Philadelphia. The latter will resume her studies in an art school in Philadelphia.

Prothonotary Arthur Kimpfort has been ill during the past week. He is suffering from pleurisy, and although much better may not be able to get back to the office for a week or more.

The pallbearers who bore the remains of Jacob Jordan to their last resting place were Messrs. Foster, Frazier, Hugh Runkle, Charles Miller, J. H. Zerby, H. A. McClellan and D. S. Glasgow.

Dr. McCluney Radcliffe, of Philadelphia, made his first trip to Centre Hall on Saturday since returning from his second European tour in company with Mrs. Radcliffe and daughter, Miss Sarah.

Mrs. Catharine Atchey, of Pine Grove Mills, who some time ago went to Philadelphia to visit her daughter, fell and broke her left leg. She is eighty-six years of age, and her recovery is doubtful.

Willis V. B. Coplin, twice elected register and recorder on a Democratic ticket in Millin county, died in Philadelphia on Saturday. His age was almost seventy-four years. Interment was made at Lewistown.

Mrs. Samuel Resner and daughter Irene, of Reading, stopped with Mrs. Rebecca Floray, in Centre Hall, for a day last week. They were called here on account of the death of Mrs. Resner's brother, Tillman Kilnefelter.

Daniel Callihan will move from the Gregg farm, at Pine Stamp, to the farm of Henry Potter, Elmer A. Harabarger, now tenant on the Potter farm, is thinking of buying a property, but as yet has not determined where he will locate.

Human Life for December shows that the varied and alluring programme of changes and new features for the coming year has already taken shape, and that the magazine is bound to fill more entertainingly and efficiently than ever its special field as "The Magazine About People."

While trimming a tree in front of the residence of D. K. Geiss in Centre Hall, one day last week, E. E. Gentszell cut the artery on the top of his foot. It was a small cut, but the blood fairly gushed from the severed artery. Dr. G. W. Hoersterman happened on the scene, and bandaged the leg to check the flow of blood until Dr. J. V. Foster properly dressed the wound. Mr. Gentszell is tenant on the Geiss farm.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Heckman, of Johnstown, came to Centre Hall last week, and until Tuesday were guests of Mrs. Heckman's father, Merchaut W. H. Kremer. Mr. Heckman is general manager of the large department store conducted by the Penn Traffic Company. When entering the company's employment, he was in the hardware department, but his services there were of such a character that he was soon advanced, until now he holds the responsible position named.

Hon. Robert S. Conklin, State Commissioner of Forestry, and S. T. Moore, chief surveyor of the Forestry Department, were the guests of Hon. Leonard Rhone on Tuesday, and together with him and his daughter, Miss Florence Rhone, they drove over the state lands on Nittany Mountain. The property sheltering the local foster, Howard Wells, on Nittany Mountain, has been much improved, and has been made a comfortable home, although isolated. Mr. Conklin and Mr. Moore were very much pleased with the conditions of affairs on State lands as found by them. From here they went to Milroy, crossing the Seven Mountains.

DEATHS.

Mrs. Catharine Shook, widow of the late Philip Shook, died at her home at Spring Mills, Wednesday evening of last week. Mrs. Shook had been in delicate health for some years, owing to her advanced age, and was also afflicted with heart trouble. Had she lived until the thirtieth of this month, she would have been seventy-nine years old. Interment was made on Saturday morning, in the Heckman cemetery, Rev. J. M. Rearick, of Salona, officiating.

The deceased was the mother of six sons. John W. and Ephraim are deceased. The living are George F., Andrew J., Emanuel P. and Daniel H., all of Spring Mills. One sister, Mrs. Sarah Beahm, of Coburn, and three brothers, John Harter, of Coburn; Jacob Harter, of Penns Cave, and George Harter, of Red Mill, also survive. Mrs. Shook was the daughter of Andrew Harter, of Penn township, who later located in Gregg township.

Mr. Shook, the husband of the deceased, died a little over twenty-one years ago, and during all this time she and her son Emanuel kept house at Spring Mills.

The Elephant's Revenge.

The autobiography of Mr. Lindley Murray a passage occurs from which it appears that one of the clearest heads that ever engaged in the business of analysis, was well nigh cracked by a simple affair for a small offense. In the year 1771 he visited the elephants at the queen's palace and, from whatever motive, ventured to withdraw a portion of the hay which one of them had been collecting with his proboscis on the floor. The little affront offended the sagacious animal highly. The keeper remarked that he would never forget, and it was obvious from the rapid convulsions of his trunk that he only wanted an opportunity to avenge the misappropriation of his property on the spot. The grandman, however, kept out of his way, probably thinking no more of the matter, until he chanced to revisit the same place after an interval of several weeks. On this occasion a number of other persons were present, but of the whole the elephant singled out his enemy and aimed a desperate blow at his head, which, fortunately, neither proved fatal nor took effect.

Made His Ideas Flow.

I used to write for a medical periodical. On returning home one day after a very heavy day's work at the hospital and feeling completely exhausted I found a note from the editor. "Please let me have an article on such and such a subject tonight." I sat down with pen and paper before me, but not a word could I write. Then I lay back lazily and began to speculate as to the cause of my want of ideas. I thought: "The brain is the same as it was yesterday, but yesterday I was not tired. Perhaps it is the feeble circulation that prevents the brain from acting. If the blood does not go up to the brain I may bring the brain down to the blood." I therefore placed my head flat on the table, looking sideways at the paper, and began to write easily. On raising my head again every idea fled, so I placed my head again down on the table and finished the article with my head in that position.—Sir T. Lauder Brunton in Practitioner.

Work of the Earthworm.

When we behold a wide, turf covered expanse we should remember that its smoothness, on which so much of its beauty depends, is mainly due to all the inequalities having been slowly leveled by worms. It is a marvelous reflection that the whole of the superficial mold over any such expanse has passed and will pass again every few years through the bodies of worms. The plow is one of the most ancient and most valuable of man's inventions, but long before he existed the land was, in fact, regularly plowed by earthworms. It may be doubted whether there are many other animals which have played so important a part in the history of the world as have these lowly organized creatures. Some other animals, however, still more lowly organized—namely, corals—have done far more conspicuous work in having constructed innumerable reefs and islands in the great oceans, but these are almost confined to the tropical zones.

Net Literary.

"The late Frederick Burton was the world's foremost authority on the American Indian," said a Yale ethnologist. "Burton was almost alone in his field. There are, you know, so few students of Indian lore." "He said to me once, with a vexed laugh, that he found it quite as impossible to discuss the Indian with people as a Boston critic found it to discuss poetry with the girl he took down to dinner."

"The girl was very pretty. Leaving her dimpled elbows on the table, she said to the critic: "And what is your lecture to be about, professor?" "I shall lecture on Keats," he replied. "Oh, professor," she gushed, "what are Keats?"—Washington Star.

Tarring and Feathering.

The first recorded instance of tarring and feathering a human being was in 1180, during the time of the crusades. In that year, the first of the reign of Richard I, a law was passed that "any robber voyaging with the crusaders shall be first shaven, then but pitch shall be poured upon him and a cushion of feathers shook over him." After this the criminal was to be put ashore at the first landing place the ship reached.

What Might Have Been.

"That man Rifin lacks courage and energy." "Yes, confound him?" "Why do you say that?" "Because he was courting my wife long before I met her. If he had had a little more courage and energy—But what's the use of talking about it now?"

Well He Knew.

Emperor Francis of Austria and his empire once attended the performance of a play which abounded in political allusions. On leaving the theater he remarked good naturedly, "We may congratulate ourselves on having seen the piece at all, for I am sure that it will be speedily forbidden."

His Time Wasn't.

"Time is money." "Cut that the out!" "Why do you call it a?" "Say, I've just done ten years in the penitentiary and come out busted!"—Cleveland Leader.
