LOCALS.

Read the C. P. Long Department Store advertisement in this issue.

Charles H. Lucas, at Pottery Mills, advertises sale for Saturday, February 4th.

Cyrus Nathaniel Phillips died at his home in Madisonburg, Sunday morning, aged fifty-eight years. A further notice will appear next week.

J. E. Lindsey offers for sale his farm, at Colyer, for one thousand dollars, if purchased before April 1st. See the advertisement in this issue.

From the Orangeville (Illinois) Courier it is learned that G. Bruce Goodhart continues to grow fancy poultry. He has added a number of high scoring white Wyandotts to his pen.

Coasting on Nittany Mountain is one of the sports indulged in by many of the young people of Centre Hall. Fortunately there has never been a serious accident during the many years coasting has been practiced on the hill.

R. R. Rickert, of Tusseyville, who is on the road for William F. Rockey in quest of butter, eggs and produce in general, was among the Reporter's callers on Monday, and advanced his subscription.

George H. Emerick is contemplating the erection of a rather pretentious implement house on one of his lots in Centre Hall, which will be used to store new implements, etc. Mr. Emerick will engage in the sale of farm implements.

The Orpheans were received in Grange Arcadia on Tuesday evening by a large and enthusiastic house. Less than a half-dozen reserved seats remained unsold. The music was high-class, and rendered in a most pleasing manner. The reader and cartoonist were also fine. Every one present was pleased, and the entertainment seemed only half as long as it really was.

The State Forestry Commission purchased almost six thousand acres of mountain land in the townships Toboyn, Jackson, Sandy Hill, Saville and Tuscarora townships, Perry County. The new state forest reservation will be officially named the McClure Reservation, in honor of Col. A. K. McClure, deceased, who was born in that part of Perry county.

Harry F. Burkholder, who was so unexpectedly called to the old home scenes on account of the death of his mother, is located at Logansport, Indiana, and has registered as a signal apprentice with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. He is a graduate of the Electrical Engineering Department, Pennsylvania State College, class of '09. Two other brothers, Morris A. and Ammon R., are also with the Pennsy, the former at Bellefonte and the latter, at Phillipsburg, N. J.

A five acre apple orchard which will be planted, cultivated, pruned, and generally cared for under the supervision of the State Department, blanks for that purpose having been filed and accepted. The plot selected is immediately west of Grange Park, and can be inspected by the hundreds of farmers who attend the Grange Encampment and Fair without effort. The varieties of fruit have not yet been determined for this model orchard, but the Baldwin and Stayman Winesap are being considered.

The first to announce in the Reporter as a candidate for one of the various offices to be filled at the fall election is D. R. Foreman for the office of prothonotary. Mr. Foreman is a production of Potter township, and there can be no disputing his superior qualifications for the office to which he aspires. The office of the prothonotary is one of the most difficult of all the county offices to fill, on account of the exacting requirements during the series of court and the office work in general, and therefore a man of Mr. Foreman's training and ability is essential.

Town Properties Sold.

P. H. Meyer sold his house and lot, near the station, which he now occupies to J. H. Weber, the selling price having been $2300, according to a statement made by the former. Mr. Weber will take possession about April 1st, at which time Mr. Meyer will move into the property purchased by him, mention of which was made last week.

Another sale was that of the double house on East Church street by Henry Potter to John C. Rossmann, who made the purchase for an investment. The price is said to have been $1200. There are several other real estate deals on at the present time, but papers have not yet passed.

The Capitol Steal.

The state received almost $1,600,000 from the various firms that had a hand in the capitol building steal. Since this fund has been refunded, some thirty criminal cases have been dropped, leaving the Huston case only to be settled. This is only a small fraction of the sum actually stolen, but considering that several of the state officials are in the pen, another on the road, and the refund, the effort to punish the criminals and recover the funds has been well repaid.

Liquor License Granted.

All the liquor licenses in Centre county have been granted except three, namely, the Passmore House, Phillipsburg; Centre Hall and Spring Mills. These have been held over for further consideration.

Homan and family will quit the farm and about April 1st move to State College, where they purchased the modern dwelling house erected two years ago by Clark Herman, on Beaver Avenue. The farm stock and implements will be turned over to their son, John Homan, who will begin farming operations, the change having been made mainly for his benefit, and since this is one of the best farms in the community, the young man and his young wife have an opportunity that does not come the way of every young couple.
