

FOUST MUST ISSUE LICENSES.

Food Commissioner Forced to Issue License to Philadelphia Concern that Violated Oleo Law.

Not being able to successfully check the increasing sales of colored oleomargarine, Dairy and Food Commissioner Foust refused to issue a license to the Eastern Provision Company, because the concern had violated the oleo laws, and he believed that it contemplated to continue violating them.

The opinion says that the legislature might confer upon the commissioner power to refuse licenses because of violation of the law, and an amendment to the act of 1901, conferring such power, may be introduced in the legislature.

Robert C. Dotson, president of the Eastern Provision Company, asked for the mandamus which resulted in the opinion. The plaintiff alleged that he had made application for a license in due form.

The demurrer, without admitting or denying the alleged violation of law, asserted that the commissioner had no discretion to inquire into any such violations.

"This statute," says the court, "requires the commissioner to issue licenses upon payment of the fees, when applications are made in the prescribed form and when the name and style under which the business is to be carried on are not calculated to mislead the public."

"It may be that it would greatly aid the dairy and food commissioner in the performance of his duties if he were given express authority to refuse to grant a license or permit a transfer of a license to any one who has violated any of the provisions of the statute, as authority to revoke a license immediately upon a conviction for violation; but we have not been referred to any law which thus extends his power."

"During 1910 the output of butterine increased 49,000,000 pounds over 1909, and no part of it was stored. The production of butter was normal. Notwithstanding this the holdings of butter in cold storage on January 1, 1911, were 22,896,000 pounds, 12,000,000 above normal."

The act of 1901 was passed at a time when all oleomargarine was taxed by the government at two cents per pound, and was intended to cover sales of artificially colored product. In 1902 the government passed a law taxing the artificially colored product at ten cents per pound, and that free from artificial color product at four cents per pound.

The oleomargarine laws of both the state and national government are antiquated. When passed their enforcement would have been effective, but today they are not. This law directly affects every farmer within the state. Every pound of oleo, whether colored with artificial or natural coloring matter, is an imposition upon the public and lessens the sale of butter, a product not made in imitation of anything, but is sold on its merit.

Have you a weak throat? If so, you cannot be too careful. You cannot begin treatment too early. Each cold makes you more liable to another and the last is always the harder to cure. If you will take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy at the outset you will be saved much trouble.

THE FORTUNE HUNTER.

"The Fortune Hunter," to begin a Limited Engagement Monday, February 6th, at the Garrick.

Cohan and Harris' production of Winchell Smith's splendid comedy triumph, "The Fortune Hunter," is announced to commence a limited engagement at the Garrick Theatre, Philadelphia, Monday, February 6th. This play, which is the pen product of the author who dramatized George Barr McCutcheon's celebrated novel, "Brewster's Millions," is, perhaps, the most talked about comedy that has been presented on the American stage in a generation.

"The Fortune Hunter" comes acclaimed as a classic in comedy writing by many erudite dramatic critics. It has enjoyed a two years' run at the Gaiety Theatre, New York City, and another of almost a year in length in Chicago. The original Gaiety Theatre Company, which includes John Barrymore, Mary Ryan, Forrest Robinson, Sydney Ainsworth and all the players that have assisted in its phenomenal success, will be in evidence during the Philadelphia engagement.

The preliminary sale of seats for "The Fortune Hunter" is announced to begin at the Garrick on Thursday morning, February 2nd, and our readers are advised that if they contemplate seeing this fine play, it will be well to secure their reservations well in advance.
