It is the acceptance of flattery from Secretary Wilson by the agriculturalists that got every body to believe the farmer was becoming rich. The secretary in heralding his statements simply gave the sum totals the earth could produce, and at no time attempted to calculate the cost of production. It is natural that the total soil production is represented only in figures that stagger, but if the cost of production were deducted the balance could be represented in figures quite easily comprehended.

Under the head of "Menace of Reciprocity," on the first page of this issue, appears an article that should be read by every Reporter reader who has any interest in agriculture or investment in farm land. It is generally believed that the Democratic Congress called in extra session will not pass the Canadian reciprocity bill as it now stands, yet there is danger that the full import of the measure will not be impressed upon the congressman through letters from agriculturists. If the farmers inform themselves on the subject, and transmit their opinions to the members of congress through letters, there would be few congressmen who would favor the measure. Here arises one of the difficulties in an agricultural district being represented by one not acquainted with the needs of the great majority of his constituents. Representatives from manufacturing districts are well informed as to the needs of the manufacturer, and the result is the manufacturer gets what he wants. The farmer trusts to luck, and it is only when his whole industry and means of making a bare living for himself and family are threatened that he can be awakened to protesting by letter. The conditions confronting the American farmer today are such that every tiller of the soil and every one who has money invested in farm lands cannot afford to be silent. Write your congressman today; not tomorrow.

State College's Top Notch.

At the beginning of the second semester at the Pennsylvania State College the total attendance for the year has reached the 1800 mark and promises to be still higher with the registration of the next session of the summer school. There were less than 100 students dropped after the mid-year examinations, regardless of the fact, that the standards of teaching have been raised during the last three years.

Philadelphia county still leads in the number of students, and Allegheny, Centre, Dauphin, Luzerne and Lancaster follow in this order among the larger contributors.
