

TWO BARNS BURNED.

Rhinesmith and Fishburn Barns Near Axe Mann Destroyed Tuesday Evening.

Two large barns, one the property of Daniel Rhinesmith and the other that of Henry Fishburn, near Axe Mann, were totally burned to the ground on Tuesday evening at about seven o'clock. All the cattle, except one calf, were taken from the barns as were also most of the implements.

The fire originated in the Rhinesmith barn, and was observed a short time after Mr. Rhinesmith had finished doing the chores.

When the flames were first seen they were leaping through the roof, which leads to the conclusion that the fire was caused by spontaneous combustion. The flames at once communicated to the Fishburn barn, which is located a few feet distant.

Mr. Rhinesmith had insurance in the Centre Hall company, D. F. Luse, agent. His insurance is as follows: Barn, $200; hay, grain, straw, $250; implements, $250; harness, $14.

The other barn was owned by Henry Fishburn, and was insured for $1200 in the Sugar Valley Company, William Smeltzer, of Zion, agent. The contents of the barn belonged to William Fishburn, and were not insured.

Among the latter's losses were the calf mentioned above, eight loads of unthreshed wheat, and a bob sled.

The barn was not used as a regular farm barn. The property was occupied by Dwight Stover.

The New Idea manure spreader has all other manure spreaders outdistanced, and the reason is it does the work without overburdening the team that hauls it. The New Idea spreads manure; no other machine spreads as evenly; it runs light, yet the machine is strong and durable. It has strength where strength is needed.—J. H. and S. E. Weber, Centre Hall and Oak Hall Station.

DEATHS.

After a short illness Mrs. G. W. Hosterman passed away at her home in Centre Hall at three o'clock Wednesday morning. Her death was due to diabetes, from which she suffered for some years. After a trip to Rebersburg the beginning of last week, Mrs. Hosterman took her bed, and from that time grew gradually worse until the end came. For the greater part of Monday and Tuesday she was unconscious, and when death came, which was most peaceful, she was surrounded by her family.

Funeral services will be held at the house on Friday at 10 a. m. Interment private.

Mrs. Hosterman before marriage was Kate A. Scholl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Scholl, both deceased. There survive the husband and three children, namely, Sumner V., of Lancaster; John S., of Montrose, and Helen S., wife of Prof. C. F. Shaw, of State College. One daughter, Elsie, died when a child. Mrs. Hosterman was aged fifty-five years and was the last of two children of the Scholl family.

Dr. and Mrs. Hosterman located in Centre Hall early in their married life, beginning housekeeping here, and have lived here continuously. She was a woman much attached to her home and little family. She was interested in church work, having been a member of the Reformed church from her youth, and was also engaged in W. C. T. U. and Hospital work.

A Lottery Romance.

A few years ago, as the date for the drawing of the annual Christmas lottery at Madrid was approaching, a poor mechanic of Corunna was awakened three consecutive nights by the number 125,989, apparently spoken in his ear. So impressed was he by the repetition of the incident that he wrote down the number and jocularly said to his wife, "That number will win the first prize in the great lottery." "Then why don't you buy the ticket?" his wife answered jokingly as she looked at the figures. "Why, see, if you add them together they just come to my age. I shall be thirty-one on Christmas day." The ticket, after much trouble, was found (it had been rejected a few minutes earlier by a wealthy citizen of Corunna) and bought, and before many days had passed the mechanic and his wife were made jubilant by the news that the ticket had won the first prize of £200,000.—London Globe.

The Red Shirt.

The origin of the "red shirt"—worn as a blouse by English women in the sixties, when Garibaldi was a popular idol throughout Great Britain—is sufficiently curious. When the celebrated filibuster was warring in the South American republics he was anxious to obtain a distinctive and, above all, economical uniform for his followers. He learned that a local dry goods store had an immense "job lot" of these garments, worn by the "salanderos," or cattle slaughterers, of the great South American cities. The "bargain sale" appealed eloquently to the leader's purse, and he led his men to victory in the butchers' shirts, which are now the accepted emblem of the "risorgimento" of United Italy.—London Globe.

A Little Temperance Tragedy.

"Don't drink any more, John. You've got too much already."
"No, I haven't."
"Yes, you have, and you'll be drunk again."
"Aw, what do you want to worry about that for? It's me that has the headache next morning."
"I know, John, but it's me that has the headache all the time."—New York Times.

The Price of Love.

Says an advertisement in the London Express: "Mary—waited three hours at appointed spot until questioned by suspicious policeman. If this is the price of love it is too heavy a one for me to pay. Farewell. Potts."

Time and Patience.

No road is too long for him who advances slowly and does not hurry, and no attainment is beyond his reach who equips himself with patience to achieve it.—La Bruyere.

It plows the same depth the whole day long; sticks to the ground in stormy soil; can be well handled on rocky hillsides. It leaves no dead furrows to wash; will throw the soil up hill better than any other plow made; it is strong enough to do its work, yet not clumsy. It is made for two or three horses.

Stability should be the primary thought in the mind of every man who contemplates the purchase of life insurance.

Don't trust to chance and run the risk of leaving your beneficiary a law suit instead of a legacy.

The State of Iowa stands back of every policy issued by the Royal Union Mutual Life Insurance Company. This fact conveys a sense of security to all Royal Union policy holders that is very comforting.
