

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Fiftieth Marriage Anniversary of Prof. and Mrs. W. A. Krise Celebrated on Monday Evening.

One of the recent most delightful social events in Centre Hall was the celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of Prof. and Mrs. William A. Krise, on Monday evening, five o'clock.

It was at the Union House, in Lewisburg, January 28th, 1862, that Mr. Krise married Miss Nannie E. Hunt, of Cannonsburg, Washington county. After closing his service of enlistment in the U. S. Marine, Mr. and Mrs. Krise set up housekeeping in Johnstown, and in 1875 they moved to Centre Hall, and was the second teacher in the local school to teach the languages and higher mathematics.

As is indicated above Prof. Krise is a school teacher by profession and taught thirty-eight full terms of public school, in addition to the private schools and parts of terms of public school. Fifteen terms were taught in Cambria county and the remainder in Centre county.

After the refreshments, which were altogether appetizing and abundant, were served, impromptu addresses were made by Dr. Schuyler and Mr. Rhone, and an original poem that elicited applause was read by the groom of fifty years.

The presents sent the couple are very pretty and many of them quite expensive. Besides these there were thirty dollars in hard cash.

Luse Planning Mill Sold.

The Luse planing mill, at Centre Hall railroad station, was recently sold by C. W. Luse, the surviving member of the firm, to the Zettle brothers—John and Archey Zettle—of Spring Mills.

This business was established twenty-five years ago by A. P. Luse and his son, C. W. Luse, who during these years did business under the firm name of A. P. Luse and Son. John and Milford Luse, also sons of A. P. Luse, and F. K. Carter, were also employed in this establishment much of the time.

Besides doing custom work of all kinds, the firm built a number of dwelling houses, in the southern section of town.

Mr. Luse has not given out his intentions for the future. He has some thought of going south.

The first dwelling house erected in Centre Hall by this firm was that built for J. W. Whitman; the farm house on the Henry Stoner farm came next. The W. H. Stiver property was then constructed and occupied by the elder Luse. The W. W. Spangler house was erected for the use of the junior member of the firm and occupied by him for some years. The property owned by Alfred Durst and occupied by D. W. Sweetwood was then built, and then the J. H. Weber house was put up and occupied by the junior member of the firm, and following the erection of the home the elder Luse last occupied. C. W. Luse's present home came next, the house on Hoffer street occupied by John Geary, the Milford Luse house, the Rhone house, the present home of John Luse were built in succession. The John Durst house was erected for P. H. Luse. A new house and barn were built on the Luse farm. The Grange Hall and all the buildings on Grange Park were erected by them, and also the wood work on the Dr. Hosterman house. Besides these and other buildings in Centre Hall, the firm furnished the greater part of the material and much of the mechanical work that entered into the erection of the greater part of the houses built in Centre Hall during the past twenty-five years, and also did considerable construction work in the country districts and in adjoining villages.

Surveyors at Spring Mills.

The surveyors doing work for the State Highway department, who have been working on the Lewisburg pike since the middle of December, have now reached Spring Mills, and are quartered at hotel Stover. H. Diemer, chainman; M. F. LaValle, chainman; H. Connelly, rodman; W. Shay, rodman; Ray Caldwell, rodman.

William Swab and Harry McClellan are making every possible effort to put the stock of the latter in condition for the sale on the 24th of this month. Mr. Swab has gained a reputation for this kind of work, and accomplishes his ends in other ways than by roasting himself back of the cook stove.

Last week it was generally understood that former Prothonotary A. B. Kimport would locate in Centre Hall and engage in the mercantile business in the Bartholomew stand purchased by him through Irvin Dreese. Later developments lead the Reporter to say that his coming here is very doubtful.

If the candidates for congress, state senate and general assembly expect to make their canvass during the season of free lunches, it is high time to get their names under the political announcement head. So far Charles E. Patton, of Clearfield county, has the whole political field to himself, being the first candidate to be rooted for at the April primary to announce.

Not Going That Way.

"Miss Adkins, there is something I desire very much to ask you." "Oh, Mr. Williston—I mean Fred—I'm sure I should be delighted to hear—that is, I mean what is there that you can possibly wish to ask me?" "Would you be willing to go on a long journey with me?" "A very, very long journey, Fred?" "Yes, a very, very long journey."

"Yes, I will go with you. Of course I—I suppose it is the journey that a man and a woman take together only once in a lifetime."

"Well, as a rule I suppose it would not be taken more than once. You see, my mother and I are thinking of taking a trip to Japan, and she thought it would be nice if I could find some one who would be willing to go as a sort of traveling companion and maid to her in return for having her expenses paid."

"Oh! Well, you just tell your homey ma that when I wish to hire out I'll look for some other kind of a job."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Father's Dilemma.

A parent's life is one long responsibility. It's a wonder that so many of the genus discharge their duties so acceptably. A writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer has discovered another parental problem, or perhaps he merely calls attention to one which many fathers have discovered for themselves.

"How's the family?" one inquired of a happily married west sider yesterday.

"Well, my children are at a difficult age now."

"Difficult? Why, they've all passed the measles and teething stage, have they not?"

"Long ago. But you don't know a father's troubles. My children are at the age where if I use slang my wife says I'm setting a bad example, and if I speak correctly the kids think I'm a back number. Which would you do?"

The Best You Have.

Always give of the best that is in you. Feel responsibility toward yourself and your work. Never be content with a compromise with work. Give an employer the best that you have in you to give.—Belvedere Brooks.

Mean Reply.

"Talk about man!" exclaimed the suffragist. "What has man ever done for woman?"

"He's furnished her with a model she's trying darned hard to imitate," came a voice from the rear of the hall.—Boston Transcript.

Remorse.

A chemist had made a mistake in his weights and poisoned a customer. When the fatal tidings were brought to him he exclaimed, "Wretch that I am—and my best customer too!"

It is the rule of rules and the general law of all laws that every person should observe those of the place where he is.—Montaigne.

The Cause of It.

"What's all this fuss about?" asked the policeman, stepping between the two young men.

The one that had got the worst of it and was wiping the blood from his nose pointed to the other fellow. "He can tell you her name if he wants to," he said. "I won't."—Exchange.

Had a Return Ticket Perhaps. "Been abroad, have you, Ruggles?" "Yep; six months."

"Have a good time?" "You bet I did. Ramage—best I ever had."

"H'mph! How did you get back?"—Chicago Tribune.

Two Ambitions.

"My ambition is to earn $5,000 a year."

"My ambition is to earn more money than my wife can spend."

Ready to Do Her Part.

Mother—May, that young man of yours is too forward. He must be sat upon. May—Leave that to me, mother. I'll see that he is.

As much of heaven is visible as we have eyes to see.—William Winter.

The Moors.

Morocco is not so hot as it is often supposed to be. The greater part of the country is near either the sea or the mountains, often both, and it is only about as far south as Georgia or Louisiana.

The sun is hot, of course, at midday, in a dry region where the sky is usually cloudless and the latitude is about like that of the gulf coast of the United States. But the temperature in the shade is seldom extreme—that is, in the parts of the country where the bulk of the people live.

South and east of the mountains, on the border of the Sahara desert, the conditions in respect to heat are altogether different, but there the population is small. The people of Morocco are fanatical Moslems, and they resent bitterly any kind of pressure to change old customs or give up old ways, but they are much less formidable than they used to be in the prime of Moorish power, especially in comparison with the conditions in the advanced countries of the earth.—Cleveland Leader.

Poor Hand in a Bible Class.

A woman of Louisville, Ky., who enjoys a game of cards, recently visited a friend in Indianapolis. Sunday morning came, and the hostess invited her visitor to accompany her to Sunday school. It is the practice of the teacher of the Bible class of which the hostess is a member to ask each member of the class to read a verse from the Bible and comment on it.

The visitor from Louisville had not been informed of the teacher's custom. However, the teacher seemed to think that visitors as well as regular members should participate, and when the member next to the visitor had read her verse and made her comment the teacher smilingly looked toward the visitor.

The visitor appeared to be disconcerted for a moment, and then she hastily said, "I pass."—Indianapolis News.

Roman Bricks.

When the preparations for rebuilding the Campanile, in Venice, were undertaken the archaeologists were afforded an opportunity to make some interesting studies of the bricks. It was found that they had been used in arches, fortifications, the tops of walls and in other ways before they were built into the campanile and that they were not Venetian but Roman bricks. These ancient bricks were made in slices, for in many the layers could be seen undisturbed. It is said that bricks made this way can bear a greater weight than modern bricks. The bricks examined were of the first century. One of them bore the imprint of a horseshoe, which may prove that Romans used a horseshoe like ours, although it is generally believed that their horseshoes were strapped on, not nailed.

Loss of Weight in Rowing.

A well known physician in New York city who has long been identified with aquatics, says that the average individual loss of weight in a four mile pull, whether in a race or a row against time, is two or three pounds. Under peculiarly trying conditions of heat the individual loss may reach five or six pounds. On the other hand, says this physician, many oarsmen go through a four mile pull with the loss of only about a pound in weight. This lost weight is fully recovered by the next day. Proper training is so arranged in these days that a four mile race comes only when the oarsmen are thoroughly rested and at the top of their training weight, so that the loss of weight rarely indicates that the individual is "stale," or below good training condition.

Goldsmith's Obituary Notice.

It would be difficult to find a more quaint announcement of death than that published in an old newspaper in 1774, at the time of Oliver Goldsmith's demise.

"1774, April 4. Died, Dr. Oliver Goldsmith. Deserted is the village. The traveler hath laid him down to rest; the good natured man is no more; he stooped but to conquer; the vicar hath performed his sad office; it is a mournful task from which the hermit may essay to meet the dread tyrant with more than Grecian or Roman fortitude."

Dead Leaves as Fertilizers.

According to tests made in France, dead leaves possess a high value as fertilizers. They are extensively used by the market gardeners about the city of Nantes. Pear leaves have the highest quantity of nitrogenous, oak leaves come next, and the leaves of vines stand lowest in value.

Kindness Misdirected.

"What has become of the meerschaum pipe?" inquired an inveterate smoker.

"Well, my dear," his wife replied, "it was getting awfully discolored, so I gave it a coat of white enamel, and it is not quite dry yet!"

Extravagant.
