Rebersburg.

Bruce Weber is ill at this writing. Dr. Baker, of Ingleby, visited relatives at this place last Sunday. Mrs. William Hubler fell on the ice one day this week and badly sprained her wrist. John Rupp who is employed in New York is at present visiting in this place. Polly Royer, an aged lady of this place, is at present confined to her bed with heart trouble. Lloyd Luse was at Centre Hall last Friday to attend the stock sale held by his brother, Perry H. Luse and E. M. Huyett.

On last Monday quite a number of the relatives of Mrs. Austin Gramley from this place attended her funeral at Millinburg.

Miss Flossie Luse, who is employed at the home of Perry Luse, near Centre Hall, is spending a week with her parents near this place.

Samuel Glantz and Wilson Rishel, both prominent men of Tylersville, transacted business in this place on Saturday.

Charles Harter, who resided in Illinois for several years, has returned to this place with his family and will make his future home in this valley.

On last Thursday all the Bell telephones were taken out in and about Wolf's Store, thus leaving that vicinity without 'phones for the time being.

Mrs. Rebecca Bressler, widow of the late John Bressler, deceased, died last Friday and was buried on Monday in the Evangelical cemetery at this place.

Curtis Bierly and wife, of Dents Run, are spending a week in this place. Mr. Bierly was called here on account of the feeble health of his father, R. D. Bierly.

The Reformed Sunday-schools of Rebersburg and Madisonburg observed Foreign Missionary Day and used the program prepared by the Board. The offering amounted to $18.53.

James Moyer, of Potters Mills, and son Millin, of Centre Hall, spent last Thursday night at the home of William Bair. They were on their way to Loganton to attend the funeral of William Moyer, a brother of the former.

The members of the Lutheran church at this place held a farewell social on Monday evening in recognition of their pastor and his wife, who will leave this place this week for Illinois, where they will make their future home.

The Reformed church of Rebersburg celebrated the Holy Communion last Sunday morning. The service was well attended and one member was received by letter. The offering for benevolence amounted to $36.41. Special services were held during the week previous in which the pastor was assisted by his brother, the Rev. J. J. Stauffer, of York.

The C. E. Society of the Reformed church at Rebersburg held a patriotic service in the Sunday-school room of the church, to which the veterans and their families were invited. The service was well attended and enjoyed by all. W. J. Kreider gave a biography of Washington and J. N. Moyer, of Lincoln. Prof. Stapleton and Col. Henry Meyer delivered addresses. The room was decorated with the national colors and everybody received a souvenir hatchet. Refreshments consisting of cake, cherries, and coffee were served.

Oak Hall.

Harold Wagner is selling the Grit. Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Eiters spent Thursday in Bellefonte.

Mrs. Jacob Meyer and Misses Lillie and Anna Dale, of Boalsburg, spent several days in town last week.

Mrs. Edward Seilers continues to improve from her recent illness and is now able to do her own housework.

Oscar Rishel is nursing a very sore finger, the result of an injury received while doing carpenter work at Le-mont.

Mrs. Phillip Dale, Mrs. N. B. Miller and daughter Ruth attended a quilting party given by Mrs. William Rocky at her home near Boalsburg.

Tuesday, A. W. Dale had sale of farm implements and stock. This was the first public sale ever held on that farm, although it was settled and has been occupied by the Dale family for more than a hundred years.

Brush Valley.

The sale of J. W. Beck was well attended. Quite a few attended the party at the home of N. A. Duck.

Allen Lambert, who is employed in Philadelphia as conductor on a trolley line, is visiting his parents.

The farm of J. C. Rossman was sold one day last week to William E. Musser, of Boise, Idaho. He will take possession April 1, 1913.

The children of Benjamin Lambert with their husbands and wives enjoyed a turkey dinner at the old home on Saturday. In the afternoon they all had their pictures taken by C. C. Beck.

Laundry will go out from this office Wednesday, March 20th.

Aaronsburg.

Mrs. Luther Wert's farm stock and implement sale amounted to $2896. George Weaver bought a cow at Emma Wert's sale for which he paid $72.

Mrs. Lane, of Tyrone, visited her mother Mrs. Sara Letzell a few days last week.

Mrs. Walter Orwig, who is employed at Altoona, came home sick last Thursday.

John Emerick, of Lock Haven, spent a few days pleasantly with his friend Alice Bright.

Mr. and Mrs. John Hosterman, of Penn Hall, visited at the home of John Haines one day last week.

Ex-Sheriff J. P. Condo, of York, spent a few days at the home of his daughter Mrs. Lizzie Bowersox.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Meyers, of Rebersburg, visited at the home of William Wolfe, one day last week.

Mrs. Caroline Mayes, who had spent the winter months with her daughters in New York City, returned to her home at this place last week.

William Wolfe, Jr., was agreeably surprised on the 7th inst., when there was handed to him at the post office some eighty birthday post cards, which were sent to him by his friends on his natal day.

Wilmer Stover took Rev. W. D. Donat and family to Bellefonte, on Sunday morning, in his automobile, where they took a train for Johnstown, at which place Miss Ella Miller, a sister of Mrs. Donat's, is very seriously ill.

Mrs. Nora Kreamer had quite an agreeable surprise awaiting her husband, Prof. C. E. Kreamer, on his return from Millheim last Thursday evening. She had invited a number of their friends to their home to help to celebrate his birthday. After spending the evening in a very pleasant manner all guests were invited to the dining room to be served with cake, ice cream, salted peanuts, potato chips, coffee, fruit, etc.

J. H. AND S. E. WEBER,

Centre Hall and Oak Hall.

The Huyett and Luse public sale footed up to a trifle over $2400, and the W. H. Baird sale to a trifle over $2500. Both were very good sales, and were largely attended.

Granite Telegraph Poles.

The great abundance of granite rocks and the lack of timber in the southern part of Switzerland have led to the employment of the former for purposes usually filled by the latter. Thus in many sections of the southern country the fences are of granite instead of wood, the supports for the grapevines are granite posts, and pavements, etc., are of granite. Perhaps the most striking departure from the ordinary, however, is the use of granite pillars in place of the usual wooden telegraph, telephone and electric power transmission poles. Near Lake Como and Lake Maggiore the old highroads originally constructed by the Romans are fringed with granite pillars eighteen feet high carrying telegraph wires.—Popular Mechanics.

Where Gannets Swarm.

One of the most remarkable sights in the world is Bird Island, in South Africa, for the reason that during some months of the year it is literally covered with gannets. Not a foot of ground is to be seen anywhere. Day after day thousands of gannets strut around, and they are so close to each other that the whole island seems actually alive. Those who have seen this sight say that it is one which can never be forgotten.

Pleasant For Him.

Blowe—But I asked you, my dear girl, to keep our little affair secret for the present. His intended—I couldn't help it. That hateful Miss Olden said the reason I wasn't married was because no fool had asked me, so I up and told her you had.—London Telegraph.

A Case of Arbitration.

A rat and a weasel found an egg. They arbitrated about it. A cat was the arbitrator. He promptly awarded the egg to the rat. The rat ate the egg. The cat then ate the rat. The cat believes in arbitration. The rat doesn't.—Japan Musashino.

Had It All Over Again.

"The other night I went to an amateur theatrical performance, and then I went home and had a terrible dream." "What did you dream?" "I dreamed that I went to it again."

A STORY OF THE SEA.

Ghostly Message That Saved Those on Board a Sinking Ship.

Robert Dale Owen is authority for the following story:

The mate of a bark which was sailing sou'westward across the banks of Newfoundland was in the cabin working out the vessel's course when he noticed a man sitting at the other end of the table busy writing on a slate. Thinking he was the captain, he paid no further attention, but presently, looking up from his calculation, he saw the man suddenly disappear.

Startled, he went across, picked up the slate and found written on it, "Steer to the nor'west."

He called the captain. The writing was certainly not that of any of the crew, and eventually it was decided to obey the strange order. The vessel was put in a nor'westerly course and a man stationed at the masthead to keep a sharp lookout.

In a few hours they sighted ice and among it, in an almost sinking condition, a big ship. They reached her just in time to save her people. Among them was a passenger whom the mate recognized as the stranger who had written the direction on the slate.

According to the other passengers, this man had been in a deep sleep or trance at the hour at which the incident had taken place.—Exchange.

COULDN'T PLEASE HER.

The Woman Whose Husband Never Had the Right Change.

A prominent broker remarked the other day that he thought his wife was the hardest woman to please in the wide world. She was always asking him for money when he was home. "John," she would say, "give me 47 cents. The grocery boy is here with a bill. 'I can't give you 47 cents,' he would reply, 'but here's half a dollar.'" "Oh, you're the funniest man; you never have the right change." A dozen times a day she would ask for a few odd pennies.

Finally the broker went into the subtreasury and obtained $100 worth of bright new pennies. There were 10,000 pennies, and he packed them in a suit case and lugged them home. Then he went to a blacksmith shop and had an iron tripod made, and upon this he hung the suit case filled with pennies.

The next day the butcher came with his bill. It amounted to $5.67. "John," said the wife, "give me $5.67." "You will find it on the tripod," he explained. The wife returned in a moment in a great rage. "Why, John," she cried, "I'm not going to count out 567 pennies for this man! I'd be ashamed it's a wonder you can never have the right change."—New York Herald.

Africa's Name.

The name Africa was given by the Roman conquerors after the third Punic war, B. C. 146, to the province which they formed to cover the territory of Carthage. It was most probably adopted from the word "Afr-gab," the Carthaginian term for a colony. This original Africa was limited in extent. Its borders reached, according to Pliny, from the river Tusca on the west, which divided it from Numidia, to the bottom of the Syrtis Minor on the southeast, though Ptolemy carries it as far east as the bottom of the Great Syrtis, making it include Numidia and Tripolitania. In later days the whole African continent took its name from this part, which in its narrower limits corresponded with the modern regency of Tunis and was called by the Greeks Lybia. Africus, the stormy southwest wind, was so called in Italy because it blew from Africa.

An Impressionist Picture.

They were doing a tour of the picture gallery and the country cousin was anxious to improve his knowledge. Frequently he asked questions concerning artistic phrases and phases, and always the city cynic explained clearly and lucidly.

"What do they mean exactly," queried the country one, "when they say it is an 'impressionist' picture?"

"Then the city cynic smiled.

"Well," said he, "an impressionist picture is one that leaves an impression in your mind that it is the picture of a cow and that same impression sticks there until you happen to look at the catalogue and find that really it's a picture of a famous statesman. See?"—London Answers.

The Test of Friendship.

In friendship, as in most matters, it is the little things that count. Not promises of eternal fidelity, but thoughtfulness about trifles assures us that our friend really cares for us. The one who knows instinctively what subjects of conversation may be unpleasant to us, what subject we do not like to hear jested about, who, knowing too when we wish to be silent, humors us in our wish—that is the one with whom we love to associate. We can never retain a friend long if we are not willing to take pains to find out his peculiarities and respect them.

Rough on His Rival.

"Is he really your rival?" "Yes." "Great Scott! If I had a rival that looked like that man, do you know what I would do?" "No."

"I'd give up the girl."—London Telegraph.

A Mean Retort.

"I want you to know that our people used to have money." "I accept that as an indication that some of them also used to have brains."—Detroit Free Press.

Thinking While Asleep.

It is rather startling to hear that man thinks as intelligently asleep as awake, but no less an authority than Sir Arthur Mitchell admits that thinking is essential to life, says the Chicago Tribune. Thinking when we sleep may be different from when we are awake, but the process goes on just the same. Man cannot think unless he is alive, and he cannot be alive without thinking. Dreams are not as confused as we think. They become confused from the standpoint of memory, but are not from the point of the dream organ. Memory half-blurred in trying to recall them makes dreaming seem confused. Dreams born under normal conditions are normal. It is only those that are created under abnormal conditions that are strange, for, as Cicero said: "It cannot be doubted the number of true dreams would be greater if we were to fall asleep in a better condition. Filling ourselves with wine and flesh obscures our dreams."

Mitch in the System.

A Boston tramp has begged reduced to a system. He has his regular customers. He knocked at the door of a house. The owner came out. As soon as he saw the tramp he said:

"Now, look here; last week I gave you a nickel to stay away for ten days, and here you are back again."

The tramp put his hand to his forehead and was lost in thought for several minutes. Then he said:

"You are right, colonel. Your assessment does not come due for a week yet. When I get back to my counting room I'll pay off my head bookkeeper and discharge him. He has neglected to give you the proper credit on the ledger."—New York American.

Ant Strength.

An English scientist weighed a small ant and a dead grasshopper which it was dragging to its nest. The weight of the grasshopper was found to be sixty times greater than that of the ant. The force exerted by the ant in dragging the grasshopper along the road was therefore proportionately equal to that of a man weighing 150 pounds pulling a load of four and one-half tons or a horse of 1,200 pounds a load of thirty-six tons.

A Pleasing Sight.

"Pop!" "Yes, my son."

"What is a popular uprising?" "Why, a popular uprising, my boy, is when every man in a street car gets up and offers his seat when one lone woman enters the car."—Yonkers Statesman.

Attraction.

"What do you suppose attracted that dove eyed girl to such a man?" "I don't know unless it was because he was pigeon toed."—Exchange.
