Encouraged by the fine crop of apples grown last year, John C. Rossman again sprayed his orchard both for scale and twice for insects and diseases attacking the fruit. The work was done by former Sheriff Brungart, with an outfit owned by him. The Rossman orchard was also sprayed last year by Mr. Brungart, and the fruit was so much better than on trees not sprayed that there is now no question in his mind as to the efficiency of the spray pump from a point of quality of fruit or dollars and cents.
