Cattle Dying

The city dailies have been giving considerable space to the cattle dying on the Allegheny mountains in the vicinity of Beaver Mills. A number of cattle pastured on the mountains and owned by farmers in Half Moon and Buffalo Run Valley have died, and this led the state to make an investigation. A few days ago Dr. Cooker, of the University of Pennsylvania, and Dr. W. H. Fry, of Pine Grove Mills, made an examination of the cattle and found they had been poisoned from eating germs on forage. The disease is commonly spoken of as Saturday. Everybody is invited. the "buffalo" disease, and is not contagious. Cattle in the Beaver meadsame cause.

It is recommended that all cattle be taken from the mountains and that none be returned for several years.

Concrete

Cheaper and more Lasting than Wood

I have just received another car of Portland Cement, thus assuring you a fresh article, which is so much appreciated by users of cement, as that stored in warehouse since early Spring is often partly set in the bags when purchased.

I have also two sizes of Crushed Lime Stone, and sharp river sand, especially adapted for cement work. Plans and specifications for concrete work on the farm, may be had free for the asking.

Might be well to look after your chimneys before cold weather sets in. A few brick and a bag of scement may save your home from destruction. I have two grades of brick suitable for the work.
