

THE WILSON RALLY.

Centre County Democrats Hear Southern Men Discuss Political Issues.

The Wilson rally in the court house, on Tuesday evening, was a real rally. It was not the noisy demonstration of years ago, but it was the gathering of Democrats from all points in the county to hear the issues of the campaign discussed in a dispassionate way. The occasion was not without enthusiasm, for the certainty of the victory of the Democratic standard bearer, Governor Woodrow Wilson, was expressed on all sides.

The able addresses of Governor Emmet O'Neal and Congressman J. Thomas Helfin, both of Alabama, were rehearsals of the political incidents during the past summer; a summary of blunders of the Taft administration; a ventilation of the false theories of Roosevelt.

The last address was by James Gleason, Esq., candidate for congress in this district, and the few sentences he spoke were fitting closing words to the occasion.

The meeting was called to order by D. Paul Fortney, president of the Woodrow Wilson League, who named Col. D. F. Fortney as presiding officer. The Colonel's remarks were brief, but to the point. It was with an air of satisfaction that Col. Fortney introduced the speakers, knowing full well that the audience believed victory will be ours on November 5th.

DEATHS.

At the age of seventy-three years, Mrs. Catharine Elizabeth Bartly died at her home in Bellefonte. She retired in the best of spirits, on the evening before her death, but in the morning was found cold in death in her bed. Her husband was the late William R. Bartley, who died last spring.

Most of their married life was spent in Buffalo Run Valley, and on the Bartly homestead near Jacksonville.

The surviving children are Howard, of Bellefonte; John I., of Chicago; James and Charles, living upon their farms along the Jacksonville road east of Bellefonte; Alice, wife of Albert Thompson, of Bellefonte; and Frank, at home. She also leaves four brothers and two sisters: Samuel, Martin and John Bingham, of Millinburg; Calvin, of Three Rivers, Michigan; Miss Jane and Mrs. Henry Walters, of Millinburg.

Thomas Abram Dewey, died Monday morning at his home in Tyrone of paralysis. He had been an invalid during the past five years, but most of the time was able to be up and around his home.

The deceased was born at Rock Forge, this county, and was aged sixty-two years, eleven months and seventeen days. Most of his life was spent in this county.

Besides his wife, who was Miss Catharine Dale Wertz, he leaves one son and one daughter, John I. Dewey, of Tyrone, and Mrs. Clyde E. Shuey, of State College. He also leaves one brother, Robert Dewey, of Tyrone, and three sisters, Mrs. Percy M. Hoyt, of Chester Hill; Mrs. Henry Fishel, of Lemont, and Mrs. Emanuel Roan, of State College.

Samuel Walker, of Salona, who suffered a stroke of paralysis died Wednesday morning of last week, aged almost eighty-one years.

Mr. Walker was born and raised at Rebersburg and in 1887 moved to Salona, where he has lived a retired life since he abandoned farming which was his occupation and in which he was most successful.

He leaves to survive a wife and four sons, viz: George, of Flemington; J. C., of Salona; Charles, of Johnstown, and W. Harrison, Esq., of Bellefonte.

Mr. Walker was a highly esteemed christian gentleman; a member of the Lutheran church all his life and was always interested in the church and community.

Funeral took place on Saturday morning. Interment in the Salona cemetery.

Mrs. Duck, widow of Henry James Duck, died at her home in Brush Valley, near Madisonburg, Wednesday of last week, at the age of seventy-seven years, eleven months and nine days. The funeral was held on Saturday morning, Rev. Fred W. Barry, pastor of the Lutheran church, of which denomination the deceased was also a member, being the officiating minister. Interment was made at the Union.

The maiden name of the deceased was Mary Ann Elizabeth Weaver, and was born in Gregg township. Her marriage to Mr. Duck took place February 17th, 1856.

The surviving children are these: Mrs. Ellen Burrell and Mrs. Annie Wert. Also eleven grandchildren and twenty-three great grandchildren survive.

After an illness of eight weeks from dropsy, Mrs. Rachel Lamsy died at the home of her only child, Mrs. Thomas Wolf, of Woodward, on Monday. Interment will be made this (Thursday) morning at Woodward, the pastor of the Evangelical Association church officiating.

There survive two sisters and one brother: Mrs. Caroline Hoover, Lock Haven; Mrs. (Dr.) Bowerox, Aaronsburg; Joseph Swenger, Millheim. Jefferson, a brother; and Mrs. Michael Fiedler, a sister, are deceased.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Clayton Wagner are mourning the loss of their little son, Glenn Samuel, whose death occurred on Monday just before midnight. The child had been ailing for several weeks, but the fond parents hoped that their son might be spared. He was aged ten months. Interment was made on Wednesday afternoon, at Zion Hill, Rev. S. A. Snyder officiating.

Mrs. Elizabeth T. Blanchard, died on Linn street, Bellefonte, aged almost seventy-four years. She was the daughter of Joseph and Jane Harris. Her husband was the late Evan Miles Blanchard. These children survive: John Blanchard, Esq., Elizabeth M. Blanchard, Mary Miles Blanchard, and Edmund Blanchard, Esq., all of Bellefonte.

Thomas Roop, a former resident of Half Moon valley, died on Saturday at the home of his son, Clarence, at Wilkinsburg, aged seventy-five years. His wife, who survives, was formerly Amy E. Way. The body was buried at Gray's cemetery, in Half Moon Valley, Tuesday afternoon.

SWEET REVENGE.

Mark Twain Proved That His Old Time Chum Was a Liar.

When the great man "arrives" the associates of his boyhood days who used to laugh at the idea of his ever "amounting to anything" retire unobtrusively to the background. But when the opportunity arises to make an example of some such skeptical old friend surely no one could rise to the occasion more effectively than did Mark Twain on the occasion described by Albert Bigelow Paine in Harper's Magazine.

He came to Keokuk to visit and was offered $5 a week and board to remain. He accepted. In the same building was a book store in which a young man named Edward Brownell clerked. He and Sam Clemens became great chums.

Sam read at odd moments, at night, in bed, voluminously—until very late sometimes. One night Ed Brownell, passing upstairs to his room on the fourth floor, poked his head in at the door.

"What are you reading, Sam?" he asked.

"Oh, nothing much—a so called funny book. One of these days I'll write a funnier book than that myself." Brownell laughed.

"No, you won't, Sam," he said. "You are too lazy ever to write a book."

A good many years later, when the name Mark Twain had begun to stand for American humor, the owner of it gave his "Sandwich Islands" lecture in Keokuk. Speaking of the unreliability of the islanders, he said:

"The king is, I believe, the greatest liar on the face of the earth except one, and I am very sorry to locate that one right here in the city of Keokuk in the person of Ed Brownell."

ROMANCES OF PORCELAIN.

The Climax to Pailissy's Sixteen Years of Misery.

The maker of porcelain and pottery has decidedly the most exciting and romantic trade in the world.

The great factories of Sevres and Dresden were founded by Bernard Pailissy. This man invented white enamel, but it took him sixteen years to make the invention—sixteen years of hunger, misery and persecution, which culminated in the episode, used in H. A. Jones' play of "The Middleman," wherein Pailissy maintained his furnace fire by burning all the furniture in his house and finally opened the furnace door to find within the glaze which he had sought throughout the best years of his life.

Bottger invented hard porcelain. He was an alchemist, and one day, chancing to discover that his powdered wig was unusually heavy, he inquired the cause and found that the weight was due to the kaolin with which the wig was powdered. This kaolin was the substance for lack of which Bottger's investigations had for years failed.

When Elers opened a porcelain factory at Burslem, England, he employed the most stupid and illiterate workmen, so that his secret processes might not become known. But Samuel Astbury resolved to learn the Elers method, and affecting ignorance and stupidity, he got a place in the factory, mastered all of Elers' secrets and eventually opened a plant of his own, wherein he duplicated in every detail the work of Elers.

Terms of Venery.

There are terms of venery which a good sportsman will still observe in his speech. Thus he finds a "pack" or a "covey" of grouse and likewise a "covey" of partridges, but a "nid" of pheasants, a "bevy" of quail, a "wisp" or a "walk" of snipe and a "fall" of woodcock. Having found them, he "springs" the grouse and the pheasants, but "flushes" the woodcock, snipe and partridges. Further, he will tell you that grouse are "challenged" and pheasants "chuckered," that partridges "jug," quails "pipe," woodcocks are "fallers" and snipe are "at walk." So the bishop was strictly correct who spoke of "some who jug themselves like partridges into small coveys."—London Chronicle.

Porter W. Burket, who is himself very ill, died on Friday evening at her home in Stormstown, aged seventy-five years. She was born in Warriors mark valley, and was the daughter of Benjamin Patton, an old pioneer of that section.

Dorothy Jane, the four years old daughter of Joseph Mingle, of State College, died suddenly Wednesday night of last week from a severe attack of croup. The little girl had been ill but two days. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. James McKelley, at the house, Saturday morning. Interment was made at Pine Hall.

Reducing a Pound to Nothing.

In what form is lead lightest on the scales? A British scientist has attempted to tell how to make the proof, but it isn't the easiest thing in the world either to prepare the pound of lead or place it in position for the proof. He says that making 1,000 small balls of the pound of lead the weight remains the same though the surface is greatly increased. Then reduce the small balls into 1,000,000 balls, with the surface enormously increased, but the balls still weigh the one pound in the scales. But this scientist says that if these 1,000,000 shot particles further are reduced to one twenty thousandth of an inch each, they will rest in the atmosphere just where they are placed. This for the reason that that pressure of light from the sun exactly overcomes the forces of gravitation. To make the lead bits smaller, however, the scientist says that the sunlight seizes them and hurries them into space.

Hindu Moon Lore.

According to the Hindus, a lunar eclipse is the contact between the moon and another planet called Rahoo, but the masses believe that, owing to the will of God, Rahoo, or the serpent-like planet, catches hold of the moon by its hideous mouth and releases it after a short time. At first contact the Hindus bathe in the sea and anxiously await the release. After the contact they take another bath. During the interval they are not allowed even to drink a cup of water, as their belief is that all things in the world get polluted during the contact.

Fakirs.

Fakirs is the name given to a celebrated class of fanatics found in many parts of the east, but more particularly in India. Some of them will make a vow to continue all their lives in one posture and adhere to it strictly. Others never lie down, but remain in a standing position all their lives, upheld only by sticks or ropes under the armpits. They pretend to have subdued every passion of mortality.
