

Smallpox in Bellefonte.

According to a report made by a member of the state board of health there are several cases of smallpox in Bellefonte. It appears that there are at least five cases in three families. Just where the first case originated cannot be determined, as it appears those afflicted had been without medical attention during the first stages of the disease, and that in some instances neighbors pronounced the disease chicken-pox. There is considerable agitation among the residents of the county seat, and, as usual under such conditions differences of opinion.

A visit to Bellefonte by one of the state board of health authorities has aroused the local board of health to action, and it is thought further spreading of the disease may be prevented.

Farmers' Bank Advances Salary.

The Farmers Mutual National Bank, at Millheim, held its annual meeting on Tuesday, and aside from having a very flattering report of the growth of the institution presented by Hon. C. L. Gramley, directors were elected and the organization effected by selecting these officers: President, Dr. G. S. Frank; first vice president, C. L. Gramley; second vice president, A. A. Frank; Secretary, H. E. Duck; cashier, J. T. Eby; assistant cashier, Lloyd Stover. The other directors are William Pealer, F. M. Fisher, John Roush, H. E. Crouse, Dr. J. W. Bright, L. E. Stover.

After the organization the directors voted Cashier Eby a handsome increase of salary and commended him further for his tact and ability in handling the business of the bank that came before him.

LOCALS.

Correct clothing—Kessler, the Millheim clothier.

Mrs. Samuel W. Moore will make sale on Saturday afternoon, 25th inst., of a large variety of personal property.

R. D. Killian, of Lewisburg, is located in Centre Hall, and is preparing walnut timber for shipment to Germany.

Two properties in Centre Hall are advertised for sale in this issue. They are the Moore home on Main street, and the Strunk place on Hofer street.

Keep in mind the supper to be served in Grange Arcadia on Saturday evening. The W. C. T. U. ladies will be glad to meet you there at that time.

The court proclamation for February session has been issued by President Judge Ellis L. Orvis, and is advertised in this issue by Sheriff A. B. Lee.

Mrs. Swartz, wife of Merchant C. W. Swartz, of Tusseyville, was quite ill for several days, but is now improving and expects to be able to be out of bed by the end of this week.

Henry Swab continues in a very delicate condition. At times it is thought he cannot live but for a few hours, then he rallies, and for a period is very much better.

Many men live as near you as they do some other town, and an invitation to patronize you might be the means of bringing him. One customer gained is worth the cost of your advertising campaign.

C. D. Bartholomew has decided to begin building operations about the first of March. The details of the structure he will erect have not yet been decided upon, but the building will be large and handsome, at least.

Andrew Zettle, who is building on the first lot above the creamery, has his building up and partly sheeted. The street on which he and his son are erecting homes is one of the nicest locations for residences of any in that locality.

On Tuesday Judge Orvis heard arguments for and against granting liquor license in Philipsburg. The testimony on both sides was gone over and the pleas of the attorneys heard. No disposition of the question was made.

Rev. J. A. Horner, who is located at Youngville, Warren county, writes the Reporter words of appreciation of the paper, and further states that although absent from the old home he has a great interest in Centre county and its people.

Who will succeed Postmaster Gowland is a question being discussed by the residents of Philipsburg, Mr. Gowland's commission expired a few days ago, but, of course, he will continue in office so long as no one is appointed to succeed him.

S. K. Emerick, of near Unionville, will retire from active farming operations and with his family move to Unionville. Mr. Emerick is a brother of M. L. Emerick, of Centre Hall, and is a native of Potter township, but has lived near Unionville for many years.

Meers, Elwood Brooks and James Rothrock, both of Pleasant Gap, completed the plastering of the Reporter's new building, and in a short time the interior wood trimmings will be put into place. The mechanics named are experts, and on completing the work here the former went to Niagara Falls to work on a building that will require several months to complete.

DEATHS.

Christian Lowery, a well known and highly respected resident of Benner township, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. C. Rockey, at Fillmore. Deceased was born near Rock Forge, in Benner township, on February 17th, 1836, so that at his death he was seventy-six years, ten months and eighteen days old. His early life was spent on the farm and when the war broke out he enlisted as a member of Company C, 148th regiment.

His wife died ten years ago but surviving him are the following children: William, of Marion township; Mrs. Isaac Tresler, of Benner township; Mrs. Harry Bressler, of Spring Creek, and Mrs. J. C. Rockey, of Fillmore. He also leaves two brothers and one sister: Jacob Lowery, of Benner township; Henry, of Bellefonte, and Mrs. Sarah Ann Markle, of Peru.

Henry Rishel died in the Danville hospital on Saturday, and Tuesday the remains were interred in the Evangelical cemetery at Rebersburg. He was aged seventy-five years, eleven months and eleven days.

Mr. Rishel was in the Danville institution for about two years, having been sent there by the Miles township authorities. He belonged to one of the old families in that township, and was the last of several brothers and sisters. He was unmarried.

James A. Hartline, father of H. G. Hartline, of Millheim, died of paralysis, at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Fry, in Pottstown. His age was sixty-nine years.

An infant son of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Stover, of Feldler, died last week. Funeral services were held Thursday.

A Wasp's Strategy.

A mud wasp was seen to alight within an inch or two of a spider's nest on the side opposite the opening. Creeping around toward the entrance to the nest, the wasp stopped a little short of it and for a moment remained perfectly quiet. Then, reaching out one of his antennae, he wriggled it before the opening. A moment later he withdrew the "feeler." This overture had the desired effect, inasmuch as the head of the household, a big spider, came out to see what was wrong and to set it to rights. No sooner had the spider emerged to that point at which it was at the worst disadvantage than the wasp with a quick movement thrust its sting into the body of its foe, killing it easily and almost instantly. The experiment was repeated by the wasp, and when there was no response from the inside he evidently became satisfied that he held the fort. At all events, he proceeded to enter the nest and slaughter the young spiders, which were lugged off one at a time.—Harper's Weekly.

Belgium's Curious Land Law.

One of the curious phases of the land law in Belgium is that the earth of a landowner beyond a certain depth does not belong to him. Should the owner of the surface discover a coal or gold deposit underlying his property he must first obtain a government concession before he can begin mining operations. The land beyond the prescribed depth in which wealth in the raw has been discovered may be conceded to a person other than the surface owner, who may operate under certain government regulations, one of which is that the owner of the surface is entitled to 3 per cent of the value extracted. The mine pays to the government an amount determined by the value and importance of the concession, after which it must pay to the government a sum proportional to the value of the total extraction.

Great Expectations.

Aunt Sallie came to the town's Lady Bountiful one day and asked for the loan of a dollar. "What do you want a dollar for, Aunt Sallie?" the Lady Bountiful inquired. "Please, ma'am," said Aunt Sallie, "I'm going to get married."

"But if your man hasn't even a dollar to pay for the marriage license how will the pair of you get along?"

"Well, ma'am," said Aunt Sallie, "tomorrow's your birthday, and we're both comin' to your picnic in the birch woods. You always give us something to take home from your birthday picnic, and the day after there's your usual free basket distribution for the unemployed. That'll keep us a week easy, and by that time Joe and me'll be on our feet, mebbe."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Curious Archipelago.

The Maldivé archipelago, lying in the Indian ocean, several hundred miles southwest of the southern point of Hindustan, is inhabited, but it rarely sees visitors from the civilized world. These islands, all composed of coral rock, are no fewer than 14,000 in number. Few of them rise more than seven or eight feet above the sea level, although they contain cocoanut palms and other forms of vegetation. Hundreds and hundreds of little islands, ranged round in a circle, with narrow and shallow channels between, form atolls or rings, having quiet waters within. Occasionally in this unique group an individual island is found in the form of a ring with a smooth lake inclosed in its coral embrace.

Handel's Pensions.

No other musician of his time was so fortunate in money matters as Handel. For a "Te Deum" composed to celebrate the peace of Utrecht he was given a pension of £200 a year until his death, making £9,000 in all. Another of his compositions secured a pension of a similar amount from George I., and for the last twenty years of his life he drew a further £200 a year from Queen Caroline. So, although he lost £10,000 in an unsuccessful attempt to run opera in London, Handel died possessed of £20,000, the largest fortune realized by any musical composer until the dawn of the nineteenth century.

The Dogcart.

A memory of the times when dogs worked for a living in England is seen in the "dogcart," which originally was literally drawn by dogs and, until prohibited in 1839 by act of parliament, was the workingman's usual means of taking a run into the country. Strong half bred mastiffs were usually employed, and these thought nothing of conveying their masters fifty or sixty miles in a day with no more sustenance than bread soaked in beer.

One Exception.

There are so many ways of offending a waiter at a big restaurant that it seems difficult to think up a new one, but a customer who lunched at a famous hostelry achieved it. Being in a sentimental, contemplative mood, the customer remarked, "I suppose people from every country under the sun dine here, eh?"

"It is depressing to reflect on the generations that have sat at these old tables," the customer resumed drearily. "Old and young, grave and gay, from far and near, rich and poor—"

At that point in the reverie the waiter stared up indignantly. "Not poor," he corrected. "It costs money to eat in this place."

Then he presented the bill, and the customer agreed that it did.—New York Press.

Queer Birds.

There are two rare species of birds in the Amazon forests of which no specimens, it is said, have ever been brought away—the "bellbird" and the "lost soul." These names are derived from the effects produced by the cries of the birds, the former having a voice likened to that of a silver bell and the latter possessing the eerie accomplishment of crooning in such a manner as to produce goose flesh on the unfortunate person who hears its song.

Lunar Athletics.

The "man in the moon" must surely regard with amused contempt our much vaunted athletic records. A good terrestrial athlete could cover about 120 feet on the moon in a running broad jump, while leaping over the barn would be a very commonplace feat. He would find no difficulty in carrying six times as much and running six times as fast as he could on earth, all because the moon attracts bodies with but one-sixth of the force of the earth.

At Sea.

"Isn't the ocean grand and majestic?" "Yes, and there is an indefinable something about it that impresses me strangely." "What is it?" "I was just trying to determine. I have it. It's the utter absence of billboards."—Washington Herald.

THE "GOBLIN FRIAR."

One of the Specters That Are Said to Haunt Newstead Abbey.

Newstead abbey, the home of Lord Byron, has the reputation of being haunted by more than one specter, and many curious noises and strange sights have been heard and seen by residents and visitors there. But the best known and most noted specter connected with the place and immortalized in Byron verse is the "Goblin Friar." The particular chamber which this specter is supposed especially to frequent and which is known par excellence as the "haunted chamber" adjoins Byron's bedroom. Lord Byron and many others not only believed in the existence of the Black Friar, but asserted that they had really seen it. It did not confine its visitations, however, to the "haunted chamber," but at night walked the cloisters and other portions of the abbey.

A monk arrayed in cowl and beads and dusky garb appeared. Now in the moonlight and now lapsed in shade, With steps that trod as heavy, yet unheard.

This apparition is the evil genius of the Byrons, and its appearance portends misfortune of some kind to the member of the family to whom it appears. Lord Byron fully believed that he beheld this apparition a short time before the greatest misfortune of his life, his ill starred union with Miss Milbanke. Alluding to his belief in these things, he said:

I merely mean to say what Johnson said— That in the course of some six thousand years All nations have believed that from the dead A visitant at intervals appears, And what is strangest upon this strange head Is that whatever bars the reason rears Gainest such beliefs there's something stronger still In its behalf, let those deny who will.

Victims of a False Prophet.

Just before the opening of the Kaffir rebellion in South Africa, about the middle of the last century, the sooth sayers bade the tribes kill their cattle and destroy their crops of grain. The spirits of their ancestors were to arise and help them to exterminate every white man in the country. The advice was solemnly accepted. When the day of the great uprising arrived many of the rebels were already starving. But there came no ghostly herds of cattle out of the earth, no crops not sown with hands. Grim, terrible famine swept over the land, and in the months which followed, although the authorities did everything in their power to mitigate its horrors, 30,000 victims of a false prophet starved to death.

Profaning Sacred Music.

There is not a church organist living who has not discovered the art of turning a ribald tune into a devotional voluntary by a slight change of time. Sullivan—himself church organist—turned the art to excellent account in the opening chorus of "Patience." For the first line of "Twenty Lovelock Maidens We!" is simply another composer's setting of "Hark, My Soul, It Is the Lord"—London Chronicle.

Two Kinds of Insomnia.

"When Nan was engaged to Jack she didn't get enough sleep because she had to lie awake and think how much she loved him." "Well?" "And now their engagement is broken, and now she doesn't get enough sleep because she has to lie awake to hate him."

Goethe's Mother.

The poet Goethe owed much of his greatness to his mother, a woman well made to bear such a son, a perfect mother and, better still, his intimate friend and confidant. Brought up in strictly bourgeois and limited circles, with very little education, such were her natural intelligence and sympathy that she afterward became the friend of princes, poets and philosophers and her house a rendezvous for the great minds of her day.
