Highway neport Wanted.

Advocates of the fitty million dollar loan for the extension and building of good roads in Pennsylvania cannot do more to help the project, and to ease the minds of the objectors and those who mistrust the uses to which the loan will be put, than to bring every influence to bear on having a report made by the highway superintendent immediately. The astonishing thing is that a call for such a report is necessary. Under the act creating the state highway department section 4 specifically sets forth that the commissioner shail "each year submit to the governor a full report of the operations of the department, a report of materials, cost and character of roads built, rebuilt or maintained under its direction, detailed statements of the expense of the department and such other information concerning the condition of the public roads of the state, and particularly of the state-aid and state nighways, and the progress of their improvements, as may be proper or required." Delinquencies of this sort furnish arguments that are hard to comost, and heighten the impression siready too general that the loan would be dissipated in the payment of salaries to men who are incompetent and have nothing but a claim for political services as a reason for their incumbency of office. Get out the report as soon as possible, and make it an exhaustive one.

Pu: Prisoners On Roads.

One of the bills introduced for legislative consideration at Harrisburg that of Johnstown, would only be a which merits more than cursory attention by the lawmakers is the measure fathered by Representative Kuhns, of Lehigh, permitting county commissioners to employ prisoners for the repair and construction of public roads

There will doubtless be an outcry against the bill by those who think violators of the law should be treated for temperamental ills as a puysically sick patient would be treated by medical experts, and by some of the contracting interests which might be affected. Claims have been made that Pennsylvania prisoners are made to do contract labor, and Maurer, of Reading, has promised that he would prove such to be the case. If this is so it will be a good argument for the advocates of the road building bill. One thing that can be said for the measure is that it would give the prisoners outdoor exercise. In the interior counties, where stone is plentiful, the method would go far toward reducing the cost of road building and maintenance.

The Pennsylvania railroad company will invest sixteen million dollars in is worth anything to a corporation, it freight cars. This sum will buy about is worth something to the people. 12.300 cars.

Franchises.

Dale is a borough in Cambria county surrounded on three sides by parts of the city of Johnstown. It has a light, heat, and power company in operation, supplying the citizens with light at seven cents per thousand. This company desires to enter the city of Jonnstown to compete with the citizen's light, heat and power company, and asks for a fifty-years francaise, and will allow the city, after twenty-five years or at the end of any period of 5 years thereafter, to buy the plant at the actual cost of construction, and only charge the Johnstown people seven cents per thousand for electricity, which is 2 cents less than the Johnstown company charges.

The council has passed an ordinance giving toe Dale Co. the franchise. The Dale company agrees to pay down $3000 for the franchise, $300 the second year, $600 the third year, and $1,000 share of these amounts, comparing the population of Centre Hall with small amount, but it would be sufficient to fill up a half dozen of the chuck holes on Pennsylvania Avenue. I told your readers in a former article how the Myersdale light, heat and power company offered the borough of Myersdale, in Somerset county, $400 per year, or $40,000 for a ten year franchise of their streets, and that the council demanded $600 per year. Myeredale is a town about the size of Bellefonte. Some towns charge, telephone, telegraph, electric light and trolley lines from 50 cents to $1.00 per pole.
