

DEATHS

David O. Price was born at Centre Hill, September 7, 1827, and passed away at his home near Browntown, Wisconsin, on the third of this month making his age eighty-five years, four months, and twenty-six days. His wife, whose maiden name was Annie Weaver, died in 1874, but there survives four of their ten children, namely, Mrs. Sophia Yeager, Pringbar, Iowa; Mrs. Elizabeth Lapp, M. Carroll, Illinois; Mrs. Sarah Myers, Fort Lodge, Iowa, and Jeremiah Price, Waddams Grove, Illinois. One sister, Mrs. Charles Lauer, of McConnell, Illinois, also survives.

Mr. Price went west from Centre Hill in 1852, taking his family with him, and making the trip with a wagon and team. On reaching Chicago, which was then but a small place and the surrounding country nothing but frog ponds, his teams stalled, and he was obliged to call for assistance to haul out his wagon. A few years later he purchased a farm of 160 acres near Waddams Grove, Illinois, and here he lived until 1895, when he moved to a farm nearby where he died. His wife's sister, Mrs. Jane Kerr lived with him from the time of the death of his wife.

Mr. Price was the head of five generations; Mrs. Yeager, Mrs. Agnes Phillips, Mrs. Minnie Thompson, and baby Thompson. He was a man of kind disposition and had many friends. He will be recalled by many of the older inhabitants of Potter township.

Mrs. Ephraim Fisher died at her home in Milesburg, Monday afternoon, of infirmities due to old age. She was a patient at the Bellefonte hospital for a short time prior to her death. Interment was made at Pine Grove Mills, Wednesday afternoon. Rev. L. F. Spangler, of the Lutheran church, officiating. The husband and one daughter, Miss Ellis, survives. Mrs. Adam Krumrine, of Tusseyville, and Mrs. Emma Meek, of State College, are surviving sisters of the deceased.

Mrs. Fisher was a member of an old pioneer family about Pine Grove Mills, and was born on the old homestead eighty years ago. Most of her life was spent in that locality. She was a member of the Lutheran church.

Mrs. Mary Magdalene Krebs died at Rock Springs, aged eighty-six years. She was the widow of Henry Krebs, whom she married sixty years ago. Her death occurred at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Barbara Krebs. Her husband died eight years ago but surviving her are the following children: D. H. and Frank B. Krebs, both of Pine Grove Mills; Mrs. Kate Saucerman, of Kansas, and Miss Lizzie, of Altoona. She also leaves one brother, Adam Dock, of Bald Eagle.

Spring Mills.

Merchant John H. Rishel at this writing is not improving any. His condition is quite serious.

A. N. Finkle will about April 1st move his saw mill to near Rising Springs station, to a point east of Gramley's creamery, and will cut the timber on the Allison land.

The Continental Condensed Milk Company, of Mill Hall, claim that their pasteurizing plant at Spring Mills will necessitate the purchasing of three five-ton auto trucks to collect the milk daily from Brush and Penns Valleys. W. O. Gramley, who very satisfactorily represents the company here, informed the writer that a milk condensing plant would in the near future be built here.

Rev. Price, of the Evangelical charge of Spring Mills, is in attendance at the Evangelical Conference in session at Lewisburg. Each of his six congregations in the charge has sent a delegate instructed to secure his return. The delegates are: Mrs. Annie Immel, of Spring Mills; Mrs. Lydia Anna Dunlap, of the Mountain; Mrs. Sadie Weaver, Locust Grove; Mrs. John H. Bair, Swamp; N. W. Weaver, Green Grove; Perry Wingard, Paradise.

Beech

Mrs. W. W. Jamison is on the sick list.

A few of Dolon Decker's men have quit him to work for C. J. Finkle.

Emanuel Confer, living on the Decker farm, will move to Brush Valley this spring.

Mrs. Wm. Ripka and Mrs. Moyer Gentzell were pleasant callers at Solomon Lingle's one day last week.

Breon and Sheesley took the contract of sawing the staves for C. J. Finkle at the Gap, two miles south-east of Spring Mills.

The storm of last week blew down a barn located on George Gentzell's farm. E. Zettle says, "Gee, but I am glad that I wasn't in it then."

F. M. Ackerman, the famous fisherman, will soon be baiting up his hook. He says anybody can catch chubs, but it takes a person who knows how to catch suckers.

It is said that Ralph Ungard probably will be Dolon Decker's right hand man this summer, but it is hard to say who the cook will be. Ralph says he don't care who she is just so she can make those good custards.

TURKISH TITLES.

They Are Added to Persons' Names Instead of Being Prefixed.

Turkish names and titles are sometimes confusing to the ordinary reader, and this explanation from the Turkish embassy at Washington may be of interest. In the first place, our American prefixes "Mr." or "General" become suffixes in Turkish. The mayor of a Turkish city adds to his name Boledie Raisi. Therefore it would not be Mayor John Smith, but Smith Boledie Raisi.

A caliph is a prince of the royal line and "Mohammed's representative," ranking next to the sultan himself in importance. The next title of importance is sheik ul Islam, or head of the Mohammedan faith. Imam is the title by which a priest is originally addressed.

Pasha is the highest title within the gift of the sultan. It is conferred chiefly on men who achieve distinction in arts and letters or in commerce and is more or less common among the great merchants of Turkey or those who under the old regime had a hand in the collection of taxes. The word "bey" attached to the name of a person indicates that the bearer is distinguished for service of the country. The term "effendi" indicates that the man so addressed is higher in birth, breeding or education than the man speaking and is a variable title, depending on the rank of those carrying on a conversation.

The grand vizier, or sadorazam, is the premier of the cabinet and is the highest of government civil officials. The governor of a province is known as vali. This term is added to the name instead of being prefixed.—Indianapolis News.

SINGING MOTHERS.

Charm of the Music of Their Voices to Their Little Ones.

They came to me in a dream—those singing mothers. A long, slow procession of shadowy forms, beautiful as rainbows and as wonderful, singing a strange haunting melody full of mystery. First came troops of girl mothers, clasping their little babes with a tenderness that was half fear and with wide, inquiring eyes filled with holy light and the consciousness of the deepest realization of life. Then came strong mothers of youth, leading happy faced children and confident with a sense of power, buoyant with hope and radiant with promise. Last of all came silver mothers of men, leaning on their stalwart sons and, though bowed with years, yet gloriously young in spirit, hallowed by memories and glowing with the victory of achievement. And I, a mother, watching these pass by and listening to their haunting music, felt as never before the divine significance of motherhood and all the hidden meanings in the word "singing."

All this is music in a marvelous mood, but there is no music on earth more appealing or more far reaching than the voice of a mother singing to her little ones. No audience ever listened with keener rapture to any prima donna than that little group gathered in the twilight hour at a mother's knee. It is her dearest joy at that time to put into music all the sacredness of motherhood and the happiness of childhood, to teach and to charm and to tune the hearts of her children.—Anne P. L. Field in Craftsman.

Wide Apart.

It is told us that two old schoolmates met recently. It had been fifteen years since their last meeting, but the recognition was mutual. One was sleek, well fed, well shaven, well dressed. The other was rather thin, rather seedy.

"Well, well," exclaimed the prosperous one; "what are you doing now?"

"I am an actor."

"Indeed? Well, I'm a banker. And you are on the stage? Dear me! It's been ten years since I was in a theater."

"You've got nothing on me. It's been longer than that since I was in a bank."

Then they parted, each thinking a bit less of the other than he had thought before the meeting.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Solons in an Uproar.

Some years ago the Spanish cabinet decided to take legal proceedings against certain members of Parliament who were suspected of misusing public money. The opposition resolved at all costs to prevent this, and for forty hours on end they kept up a most amazing uproar. They cheered and shouted, and sang hymns in chorus. The effect of the latter performance was extraordinary. One deputy would loudly intone a verse, all his friends chanted the response, and so they went on for nearly two days and nights until a truce was proclaimed.—Pearson's Weekly.

Followed Instructions.

Mudge—This watch has been stopped for two or three days. Jeweler—Lend me see it. There is nothing the matter with it except that it has not been wound. Mudge—I thought maybe that was it. I remember you told me to wind it up just before I went to bed, and I haven't been to bed for three nights.

A Chatty Old Lady.

The following advertisement appears in a fashionable English newspaper: "Lonely lady wishes to exchange scandal with another. Replies required only from those in the best 'society.'"

Aaronsburg.

Luther E. Stover last week made a business trip to Union county.

Mrs. Emma Hess bought a house and lot from Zschariah Thomas.

Mr. and Mrs. Isaiah Boob spent the Sabbath with their children here.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Guisewitz, of Feldler, were the welcome guests at the home of George Weaver.

Harry Stover and family from Woodward spent a day with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stover.

Mrs. George Weaver is visiting her brother, Clymer Stover, at Lewistown, and brother-in-law, John Grenoble, at Yeagertown.

Mrs. T. C. Weaver and Mrs. William Wolfe spent a day last week at the Chapel, at the home of the former lady's parents, Dr. and Mrs. D. W. Bowersox.

Ray Stover and Nellie Burd, returned from Akron, Ohio, after a few weeks stay among their friends. They cannot get done praising the town and saying how nice a visit they had.

Messrs. Charles and Ray Musser, of Aaronsburg, both of whom are school teachers in Haines township, attended a meeting of the school directors held here on Saturday. County Superintendent D. O. Etters was also in attendance. The former Mr. Musser was accompanied to town by his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. William Guisewitz had a surprise birthday party for their daughter May, on her fifteenth birthday. The invited guests were as follows: Annie Eisenhauer, Helen Bower, Martha Bower, Rhoda Bower, Verna Stover, Florence Johnson, Martha Haines, Florence Mensch, Marion Eisenhauer, and Mary Jane Stricker. After enjoying several hours in games and music, refreshments consisting of various dainties and fruits were served. The entire evening was spent in a most enjoyable way.

You judge a man not by what he promises to do, but by what he has done. That is the only true test. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judged by this standard has no superior. People everywhere speak of it in the highest terms of praise. For sale by all dealers. adv.
