

WILD PARSNIPS KILL BOY

Brother and Sister Narrowly Escape Death—Hospital Physician Saves their Lives

Russel Price, the nine-year-old son of Charles Price, a railroader, died in the Bellefonte hospital, on Monday, from poisoning as the result of eating wild parsnips in mistake for artichokes.

The lives of the lad's twelve year old brother and seven year old sister were saved only by the efforts of the hospital physicians.

The children had been fishing along the banks of Spring creek, near Bellefonte, and when they tired of the sport began to dig for artichokes. They found some of the wild parsnips and, in ignorance, ate the roots.

In a short time all three were taken violently ill and were found by a workman lying on the ground, writhing in pain. He summoned a physician and the children were hurried to the hospital, where the smaller lad died in a few hours. The others were in a critical condition for some time.

LOCALS

The bill fixing the salary of election officers at $5.00 was passed finally.

Jesse Templeton, of Altoona, was a guest of friends in Centre Hall over Sunday.

"The Winning Girl," a new up-to-date musical comedy—Garman's, Bellefonte.

A regular meeting of Progress Grange will be held on Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The work of excavating for the foundation for the new Bartholomew office building is in progress.

China Hall, Bellefonte, Pa., is the local sales room of the Basket Shops. Special sale now on.

Mrs. Charles McVey, accompanied by her three children, of Altoona, is at the home of her mother, Mrs. Jane Bell, in Centre Hall.

The board of county commissioners is sitting today (Thursday) at the Centre Hall hotel, as a board of appeal. This is the triennial assessment year, assessors having newly assessed all real estate.

"Guarding the Border" is the title of a book lost from the Free Library, in Grange Arcadia. Any one knowing the whereabouts of the book is requested to make it known to members of Progress Grange.

Rev. F. H. Foss, pastor of the United Evangelical church, has become settled in his home and is very much pleased with his new field of labor. His appointments on the charge will hereafter appear under the regular head.

One of the busy plants in Centre Hall is the Zettle planing mill. The senior Mr. Zettle is occupying the new dwelling house he built, beginning the same last fall, and his son, Archy, has erected temporary quarters, and later will also build a dwelling house.

John C. Bible, of Centre Hill, was one of the business visitors to Centre Hall on Monday. Mr. Bible puts in most of his time assisting his son, J. Frank Bible, who conducts the W. H. Meyer farm, which, by the way, is one of the largest farms in Potter township.

Maurice M. Lustig, who was convicted of poisoning his wife and sentenced to be electrocuted, but managed on Thanksgiving Day to escape the electric chair, was arrested, in Philadelphia for burglary. His wife was Miss Rhoda Irene Mills, of Milroy.

Edward H. Ellsworth, who in 1868 founded the Philipsburg Weekly Journal, and later was interested in many business ventures in that town, died in Asheville, N. C., Monday evening. He was a native of Connecticut, and located in Philipsburg when but in his teens.

The wet weather from Friday until Tuesday kept farmers from doing field work. Little oats was sown before the middle of the week. There remains much plowing for corn, oats and barley to be done. But this does not indicate that the season is late, nor that much farm work has not been done, for the reverse is true.

The sporting page of Sunday's Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution was headed in forty-eight point type with Musser's name standing out prominently, all because he applied the whitewash brush to the Chattanooga nine last Saturday. He allowed only two scratch hits and fanned nine of his opponents. He has already idolized himself to the fans in the Southern league. Musser balls from Millheim and is a crack pitcher.

DEATHS

Mrs. John Rutter, a native of Gregg township, died at her home at Lorain, Ohio, on Friday morning. Interment was made on Sunday afternoon.

The deceased was a daughter of the late Daniel Luse, and is survived by her husband and four children: Mildred, Carrie, Naomi and Erma, all of Lorain. There also survives a brother, D. F. Luse, of Centre Hall, and a sister, Mrs. John W. Shook, of Spring Mills, and these half-brothers: P. H. Luse, Centre Hall; Malcolm Luse, Johnstown; and Lloyd Luse, Wolf's Store.

Mrs. Rutter was aged about sixty-eight years, and had lived in Ohio for thirty or more years.

While at Spring Mills canvassing for books, Joseph Stephenson, of near Millheim, was stricken with paralysis. He was taken to his home, and soon became unconscious, never recovering. Death came on Monday night.

Mr. Stephenson was aged some fifty years, and had been suffering from previous paralytic strokes. Interment will be made at Millheim, on Friday morning, Rev. J. Max Lantz to be the officiating minister. There survives his wife, nee Miss Anna Kerstetter, and two children, James, in Pittsburg, and Prudence, in Altoona.

John Watson, for many years a resident of Lamar, in Clinton county, died at the home of his daughter in Williamsport, aged seventy-two years. Interment was made at Lamar.

DEATHS OF CENTRE COUNTIANS

David Leroy, aged almost two years, son of D. W. Rider, in Buffalo Run Valley.

LETTER FROM J. H. KELLER

Dear Editor Reporter: Enclosed find $1 which place to my credit. I certainly enjoy the weekly visits of the Reporter and through its columns keep posted as to the news of my native community.

This finds me located at China Grove, N. C., as pastor of two churches with a membership of about 400. I preach once each Sunday morning. We will entertain N. C. Classis this year at Mt. Zion.

With kindest regards and best wishes to all my friends,
Very truly,
J. H. KELLER.
China Grove, N. C., April 12.

S. S. CONVENTION

A district Sunday-school convention will be held in the Reformed church, Centre Hall, Tuesday afternoon and evening of next week. The district covered is Centre Hall borough, Potter and Gregg townships. All Sunday-schools in the district are entitled to send delegates. Addresses will be by the local pastors and laymen, and Miss Martha Robinson, a state field worker, will speak at both sessions.

HYNES-BELL

On Wednesday of last week, at the Reformed parsonage, Boalsburg, by Rev. S. C. Stover, Thomas Hynes, of Toledo, Ohio, and Mrs. Lou D. Bell were quietly married. The same evening the calithumpian band gave them a good old fashioned serenade. As a reward for their good works the man received cigars and the boys candy.

RURAL EGYPT.

One of its Quaintest Spectacles is a Native Wedding.

However modernized Cairo is or will become, says a writer in the Wide World Magazine, rural Egypt remains the same today as it has been for countless generations. One of the quaintest sights out in the country is a native wedding. I was fortunate in seeing two of them, one from a train and the other while walking near the village of Heliopolis, which is the site of the ancient city of On, mentioned in the Bible.

The bride and bridegroom were completely screened from the public gaze by a canopied arrangement on the back of a camel. It looked like an immense ottoman adorned with a cover illuminated by gorgeous patterns. This camel was followed by the bridal party, all women, seated on a long train of camels, each camel supporting two women.

The great, clumsy creatures (the camels, not the women) were almost enveloped in immense rugs, on the top of which apparently a feather bed had been deposited, and on this the women squatted, giving vent every few moments to a prolonged shrill trill, which I gathered was intended for a festive song. Altogether the incongruity of the spectacle was exceedingly comical.

INGENUOUS PRISONERS.

They Won a Pardon For Their Daring Attempt to Escape.

Among the prisoners in the French convict settlement of New Caledonia were two marine engineers who not long ago received a pardon—strange as it may seem—for making a daring and ingenious attempt to escape.

Living together in the same hut these men were engaged for years in digging a secret tunnel from their hut to the beach. At the end of the tunnel they hollowed out a chamber in which, with pieces of driftwood and little bits of steel and iron smuggled into the hut, they fashioned a boat, the metal being at first used to make tools and afterward to form bolts and rivets.

Then with infinite pains they built an engine to propel the boat, and after laboring mightily for seven years they completed their task.

Everything was ready except the provisioning of the vessel, when they were betrayed by a fellow convict to whom they had confided their plan. But so impressed was the French commandant by their marvelous energy, skill and patience that he managed after a year to obtain a pardon for them.—Pearson's Weekly.

TANNING RABBIT SKINS.

To tan rabbit skins with the fur on lay the skin on a smooth board, the fur side undermost, and fasten it down with tacks. Wash it over first with a solution of salt and water, then dissolve two and a half ounces of alum in one pint of warm water and with a sponge dipped in the solution moisten the surface all over. Repeat this operation every four or five hours for three days. When the skin is quite dry take out the tacks and, rolling it loosely the long way, the hair inside, draw it quickly through a large smooth ring until it is quite soft, then roll it the contrary way of the skin and repeat the operation. Skins thus prepared are useful for many domestic purposes.—London Mail.

IN A PERFUME FACTORY.

Musk is perhaps the most valuable and delightful of all perfumes, yet the refiner, as he opens the musk pods, must wear thick cloths over mouth and nostrils, so repulsive is the odor that the pods emit. Indeed this odor inhaled for any length of time causes nosebleed.

Civet, karamulline and ambergris have in small quantities a delicious perfume, but in large quantities they smell so abominably as to give the worker nausea.

The hawthorn blossom is delicately sweet, and perfumers prize it highly, yet a roomful of hawthorn blossoms smells like a charnel house. This, too, is true of the tuberose.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

EXPLAINING WHAT A SNOB REALLY IS.

"Uncle Roy, what is a snob?"
"A snob, Eddie, is a person who inherits a great deal of money, goes abroad and buys himself a veneer of culture, returns home and poses as a connoisseur of something, and goes around calling his poor relations 'parvenus.' Why do you ask such a question, Eddie?"
"Because I heard Donald's big brother talking about you this afternoon and he said you were a snob."—Kansas City Star.

Unfeeling.
"My husband is a brute," said the excitable woman.
"Have you been scolding him?"
"Of course I have."
"Ah, I supposed he talked back and used harsh language."
"Worse than that! He yawned!"

Laundry will go out from this office Wednesday, Apr. 30.
