Accused of Hobbing Dead.

Oscar H. Oaman, an undertaker of Columbus, Ohio, who was arrested charged with taking money from the body of Mrs. Sarah Seville, a flood victim, was released on bond and was immediately rearrested for investigation. The charge does not admit of bail. The charge against Oaman was made by two members of the Ohio National Guard, who declared that Oaman promised to give them $25 or more apiece, for every body turned over to him. They said they witnessed the fluding by Oaman of $265, when Mrs. Seville's body was brought to Oaman's undertaking establishment. Silas Seville, son of the dead woman, said that he had reason to believe that his mother had $500 in her possession when she was drowned. On being questioned by Chief of Police Carter, Oaman admitted that he had found a sum of about $265 on one of the corpses brought to his establishment and that it might have belonged to Mrs. Seville.

Oaman is a native of Centre county, and was in the undertaking business at Port Matilda prior to going to Columbus.

WANTED MIXED TEA.

How the Iron Duke Ordered it Served to His Timid Guest.

The reports of a revival in the consumption of green tea in England recall a story of Wellington, told in Horsley's "Recollections of a Royal Academician."

"At Stratfieldsaye it was customary at breakfast time for the duke's favorite man servant to bring in a long tray with a number of small silver teapots, one for each guest. In those days people had their choice of black or green tea, and the duke, himself putting the tea into each pot, questioned his guests individually:

"What do you take, sir, black or green?" in stentorian tones. "On the particular occasion referred to his guests included the future Lord Denman, who had been consumed with nervousness ever since he had entered the house at the thought of converse with his distinguished host, and when the question was shouted at him as to black or green the poor youth hesitated, stammered, and when the question was put a second time with some impatience the reply came out with a rush at last:

"I take it mixed, your grace!" "The duke was taken aback at the unaccustomed answer, but in a moment roared out: "Take Mr. Denman two pots!"

PRESENCE OF MIND.

A Woman's Cool Nerve in a Moment of Deadly Peril.

An Englishman in traveling through Ceylon was the guest of a dockyard official at Trincomalee.

"The dinner was excellent," he says, "but when it was about half over I was startled by hearing the wife of my host tell the native servant to place a bowl of milk on a deer skin near her chair.

"Although she spoke as calmly as if giving an ordinary order, I knew at once there was a snake somewhere in the room, for they prefer milk to anything else. As a busy movement might have meant certain death, we all sat like statues; but, for all that, my eyes were inspecting every nook and corner, with a peep under the table. However, it was not until the milk was placed on the deer skin that the snake appeared. And then, to our amazement, a large cobra uncoiled itself from my hostess' ankle and glided toward the bowl, when, of course, it was immediately killed.

"But just fancy the nerve of the woman, though she fainted when the thing lay dead on the floor. How many could have remained motionless in such circumstances?"—London Tit-Bits.

Lincoln's Chin Fly Story.

A certain amount of trouble is a good thing. Lincoln used to illustrate the point with a story about a chin fly.

It seems that once a man was plowing with a very lazy mule. Suddenly the mule lifted its head, switched its stump of a tail and went across the field at a rapid walk and with most unusual energy.

Reaching the end of the row, there was a man on the fence. When the mule and man came up the fellow got down, walked over to the mule and bit him a slap on the jaw, at the same time remarking, "Well, I killed him that time!"

"Killed what?" "Why, that chin fly." "Well, you interfering fool, I wish you would mind your own business. That chin fly was the only thing that made this mule go."—Judge.

Wearing the Trousers.

Ancient Britons were among the people whose wearing of trousers was noted by the more civilized ancients who eschewed them. "Breeches" (breeches) seem to have impressed the Roman mind very much as Chinese pigtails did the modern west. Gaul, beyond the Alps, was at one time known as Gallia Brevicincta—Trousers-land—and Cicero taunts a man with having sprung from "trousered" ancestors. As Roman ways degenerated the use of trousers began to creep in, and it is recorded that Alexander Severus wore white ones, previous emperors' trousers having been crimson.

Rice Stealing Coolies.

Among Chinese coolies a favored method of stealing rice is to lean up against a pile of sacks and stick a tin tube through the sack, the rice, which is dry, flowing naturally through the tube into the coolie's clothing. Flour is also stolen in this manner, and a common punishment in this case is to let the thief obtain a large quantity and then pour water into his clothing, which makes matters rather uncomfortable for the culprit.

The Obstinate Cook.

Father—Cooking schools are of some use after all. This cake is delicious. Daughter—Is it? I thought it would be a terrible failure. Father—Why? Daughter—I told the cook exactly how to make it, and she went and made it some other way.

Cruel.

"Why do you encourage your husband to drink so much coffee?" "It's the one thing that will keep him awake nights, and that's the only chance I get to tell him what I really think of him!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

With or Without.

"Does she sing?" "Yes." "With or without?" "With or without what—her music?" "No. With or without coaxing."—Detroit Free Press.

Laundry will go out from this office Wednesday, Apr. 30.

Wagner-Brown.

On Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock at the Lutheran Parsonage, Centre Hall, Rev. Fred W. Barry performed the marriage ceremony which united as husband and wife Harry B. Wagner and Miss Cora M. Brown, both of Pottery Mills. Mr. Wagner has been employed by the Bell Telephone Company, installing a new system in Renovo, but will be transferred to Sunbury in a week, where he and Mrs. Wagner will most likely begin their new home. Best wishes and congratulations go with them from their many friends.

Why he was late.

"What made you so late?" "I met Smithson."

"Well, that is no reason why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."

"I know, but I asked him how he was feeling, and he insisted on telling me about his stomach trouble."

"Did you tell him to take Chamberlain's Tablets?"

"Sure, that is what he needs." Sold by all dealers. adv.
