

DEATHS

Miss Elizabeth Stine died at the home of her half-sister, Mrs. William Bilger, at Pleasant Gap, with whom she made her home during the past two years, on Saturday afternoon. She had been falling for some months, and shortly before her death suffered a paralytic stroke. The funeral took place on Tuesday morning; interment at Zion. Rev. J. I. Sweeney, her pastor, was the officiating minister.

Miss Stine was the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Stine, both deceased. The mother, after the death of Mr. Stine, married his brother, Abraham Stine, and the deceased, Miss Stine, and these half brothers and sisters grew up together; Mrs. William Bilger, Mrs. Michael Spicher, deceased; Peter, in Kansas; Adam, in Oklahoma; Charles, David, and Edward, whereabouts unknown; Jacob and Washington, deceased.

Mrs. Henry Bollinger died at Bridge-water, South Dakota, aged eighty-two years and thirteen days. Her maiden name was Elizabeth Long, and she was born in Millheim. In 1881 she and her husband located in South Dakota, and began farming. Eight of her twelve children survive, as do also three sisters, namely, Mrs. Mary Royer, Mrs. Sarah Rishel, and Mrs. Catherine Wiser, of Millheim.

John Esterline, a well known retired farmer and who lived all his life in Sugar Valley, died at his home in Loganton. He was aged about seventy-four years, and was apparently in good health, when, after saying good bye to some of his friends he fell over dead.

USE OF WHO OR WHOM.

Where Grammar Bunks Up Against Idiom and Gets a Jolt.

The employment of the nominative "who" for the accusative in certain forms of interrogation has become so imbedded in common usage that resort, even now, to the strictly orthodox practice frequently requires, on the part of educated men, positive effort or prolonged training. It somehow does not seem natural. In the past assuredly this nominative form, where precise grammar would require the accusative, turns up with almost invariable regularity in works which set out to represent colloquial speech.

"Who is it from?" says the mother in Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice," to her daughter, who has just received a letter. "Who is it like?" says the heroine of "Jane Eyre" to St. John Rivers as she shows him the picture of Rosamund Oliver. Such examples could be multiplied by hundreds. There are cases, indeed, upon the use of "whom" would strike upon the ears of most of us as painfully pedantic.

"Who the devil is he talking to?" says Sir Lucius O'Trigger in Sheridan's "Rivals," as he notices Captain Absolute soliloquizing. To tolerate "whom" in place of "who" in such a sentence as the last would require the speaker to be so thoroughly steeped in grammar that the sense of traditional usage, which has been hardening into idiom, has at last been completely overcome. That height of linguistic virtue few of us there are who attain.—Thomas R. Lounsbury in Harper's Magazine.

FURY OF A SPIDER.

An Insect Tragedy as Seen Through a Magnifying Glass.

One day, rumaging in an old desk, I found a magnifying glass. It was September, and in a sunny, weed ridden corner of the garden I had discovered a big black and gold spider who had strung her web between two tall burdocks and was doing a thriving business in grasshoppers.

Seated on the ground, I now surveyed her through the glass for an hour as she hung in the middle of her engine of destruction. When I touched the net with my finger she swung frantically to and fro, prompted doubtless by some instinct of self preservation, but otherwise was as motionless as if carved in jet.

Grasshoppers were not very plentiful as yet, but at last a large green fellow flew plump into the toils, the spines on his legs that had so often dis-coursed sweet music becoming entangled. Instantly the crafty spider was all alive. Darting upon her victim, she took her station above him, and, hanging by two legs, seized him in her other six and rolled him round and round, unsuathing him in a band of silver silk until he was as helpless as a mummy, and then she bit him in a dozen places with fangs oozing with poison.

At the spectacle of her evil eyes glittering with the lust of killing, magnified as they were by the glass, I turned sick and rolled over on my face among the weeds and lay for a long time miserably inert.—Atlantic Monthly.

Strange Freak of Memory.

There is a strange story of how Sir Walter Scott, producing "The Bride of Lammermoor" during illness, was afterward found to have forgotten entirely what he had thus created. According to James Ballantyne, "the book was written and published before Mr. Scott was able to rise from his bed, and he assured me when it was first put into his hands in a complete shape that he did not recollect a single incident, character or conversation it contained. The original incidents of the story, which he had known from boyhood, he still remembered, but he knew no more about the story he had written than he did before he began to write or even think about writing it." These facts were corroborated by Mr. Lockhart, Sir Walter Scott's son-in-law and biographer, so that they are placed beyond question.

Founder of the Japanese Navy.

The founder of the Japanese navy was an Englishman named Will Adams, who went to the eastern seas as pilot of a Dutch fleet in 1598 and was cast away in Japan a couple of years later. He became a Japanese noble and constructor of the navy to the tycoon, but was never allowed to return to England. He died about twenty years afterward, very ingeniously leaving half his property to his wife and family in England and half his property to his wife and family in Japan. After his death he was deified.—Exchange.

Some Big Numbers.

If you fill a tiny vessel one centimeter cube with hydrogen corpuscles you can place therein, in round numbers five hundred and twenty five octillions of them. If these corpuscles are allowed to run out of the vessel at the rate of 1,000 per second it will require seven hundred and twenty five octillions of years to empty it.

One of the Ways.

"Who was that seedy individual I saw you give a dollar to?" "An old literary friend of mine; author of 'Ten Thousand Ways of Making Money.'"

From the Reporter's exchanges it is learned that the State Highway Department is working in many sections of the state. Besides the contract roads being built, many miles of road are being improved under the plan adopted in Pennsylvania, which work is superintended by J. Russell Gephart.

Hon. Leonard Rhoads, Capt. G. M. Bos and Dr. H. F. Ritter appeared before a legislative committee to argue the claims of a state road from Lemont to Old Port, via Linden Hall and Earlstown, then to intersect with the Lehigh and Lewisburg state lines. Harris township citizens are making an effort to have the road extended from Bousburg to Lemont, and from Bousburg to Potters Mills by what is known as the "Loop" route.

Gatesburg, in Ferguson township, an apartment of the Pine Grove Mills charge of which Rev. L. S. Spangler is the pastor, is to have a new church in style similar to the Lutheran church at Pine Hall. The edifice will be brick-wood, and handsomely decorated on the interior. The building committee is comprised of the pastor and Messrs. W. H. Barr, Isaac Rider, L. R. Lemon, Mathias Rider, and J. C. Gates.

ARTHUR B. LEE,

Sheriff's Office, Bellefonte, April 21, 1913.

Why he was late.

"What made you so late?"

"I met Smithson."

"Well, that is no reason why you should be an hour late getting home to supper."

"I know, but I asked him how he was feeling, and he insisted on telling me about his stomach trouble."

"Did you tell him to take Chamberlain's Tablets?"

"Sure, that is what he needs."

Not the Real Thing.

From a city apartment little Jack was going for the first time to spend Christmas at his grandfather's farm. As he ran up the steps of the old house his grandmother caught him up in her arms and put him down, rosy and laughing, before the great log fire in the living room.

"Isn't that fine, Jackie, boy?" she said. "You don't have big log fires like that in New York, do you?"

The boy looked with wide eyed delight at the huge logs as they blazed and crackled in the generous old fireplace, but he was stanchly loyal to his "six rooms and bath."

"It's nice, grandma, but it's only an imitation gas log, isn't it? We have real ones in my house."—Lippincott's.
