A law has been signed by the government that prohibits the killing of wild turkeys during the next two years.

From present appearances the material used to surface the new road through Centre Hall does not have good building qualities.

Representative Gramley voted against the measure which would have given unsuccessful applicants for liquor license a chance to appeal to the Superior Court. He did right.

Bellefonte is much agitated because too many young girls are running the streets and alleys, and a committee of citizens appeared before the council to argue for additional police force to remedy the evil.

Until better crossings are laid in some sections in Centre Hall, citizens are demanding that the poor ones remain. It is absolutely senseless to remove the few crossings we do have. What is needed here are more crossings, not less.

LOCALS.

C. C. Ramsey is back to his Pleasant Gap home.

Walter Bearick, the eldest son of Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Bearick, graduated from the Williamsburg High School.

The elk placed in the game preserve in the Paddy Mountain district are reported to be in fine trim. The herd consists of two males and eight females.

C. S. Thomas, of near Potters Mills, was a business visitor to Centre Hall on Saturday. Mr. Thomas is interested in the selection of the Loop route of the state road, and, of course, favors good roads everywhere.

A Nevin D-trich, editor of the Pennsylvania Grange News, has resigned that position to devote all his time to his work as secretary of the Washington Party of Pennsylvania and of the State Progressive League.

Frank W. Decker is preparing to build a large manure shed. Mr. Decker has one of the most productive farms in this section, but he realizes that to maintain soil fertility one must preserve all the elements in stable manure as nearly as possible.

Mrs. Nancy Michael, who makes her home with her son, George Michael, at Spring Mills, had the misfortune to fall while walking through the kitchen, and in doing so struck her arm in such a way as to break one of the bones in the wrist. Dr. H. F. Braucht reduced the fracture.

J. L. Tressler, of Linden Hall, who believes it is almost as profitable to farm by proxy as to do it himself, was an early caller on Tuesday. Not being able to secure help on the farm, Mr. Tressler just needed and planted as many acres as he handily could, and left the rest to his neighbor, Frank A. McClintic, to do for him.

The residence of the late William Gray, Esq., on Linn street, Bellefonte, occupied by his widow, was burned on Sunday forenoon. The fire originated from a defective flue. The upper portion of the frame structure was wholly consumed, and while a part of the lower frame work stands, it is an almost total loss. Much of the furniture, etc., was saved. There was $1900 insurance.

Mother's Day was celebrated throughout the country on Sunday in many churches, and the carnation, the emblem of the day, was worn by many who were fortunate enough to be able to secure one. At Centre Hall Rev. F. W. Barry, pastor of the Lutheran church, delivered a sermon especially fitted to the occasion, and there was also music adapted to the day. An Jarvis was responsible for inaugurating, first in a local way, and now world-wide.

Residents along the public road between Boalsburg and Potters Mills were frightened on Sunday by a young man who passed through that section carrying a revolver in his hand and muttering to himself. Word was sent to Sheriff Lee, and the college authorities were also notified, whereupon a number of the freshmen descended the country and raked in their classmates at Boalsburg. The young man was temporarily insane from overwork. He is now in the hands of friends and will be taken care of by them. The Reporter refrains from publishing the name of the unfortunate youth.

Fire Checked in Early Stage.

The dwelling house on the Brockerhoff farm, east of Centre Hall, tenanted by Henry Lingle, narrowly escaped destruction by fire on Sunday noon. Only the fact that the preparation of the noonday meal required Mrs. Lingle to be on the back porch, where the cook stove is located, accounts for as little destruction to the property as was done. A gust of wind brought to her feet a live ember which caused her to lose no time in making an investigation. She had but to step off the porch to discover the cause of the charred bits of shingles which were flying about. The roof of the dwelling was ablaze and was making good headway toward doing its work of destruction. A hurried call brought the men from the house and in a short time the fire was extinguished. A hole three feet square was burned in the roof. The cause of the fire is attributed to a defect in the flue.

Another Circular Barn.

The south side of Centre county will have its second circular barn. The structure contemplated by James Beck is completed, which will be not later than this fall. Mr. Beck for fifteen years has owned a farm just east of the Murray school house, in upper Brush Valley. The buildings were neither desirable nor suitably located, and Mr. Beck conceived the idea to build close to the Brush Valley road. A small tract of land lying nearby the Brock farm on which there is a good house was purchased from Mr. Herliker, of Sugar Valley, and this house will be moved to the site selected near the road. The barn will be built up new, and as stated above, will be cylindrical in form. The structural work will be done by Aaron Thomas, of Centre Hall, who built the Neff circular barn, the only one of the kind in Central Pennsylvania.

How Much for State?

The state's three big educational institutions, the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Pittsburgh and State College will receive in the neighborhood of $4,000,000 from the present legislature according to estimates made. These institutions asked for approximately $5,400,000 for extension of their work, the state to receive a large number of free scholarships in return. Just how the division will be made is one of the problems which the chairman of the senate and house appropriations committees must work out this week.

LOCALS.

The latest news received by the friends of Miss Bettie Kimpfort is that she is improving. It will be recalled that several weeks ago Miss Kimpfort underwent an operation in an Altoona Hospital, at which institution she is being cared for at present. The lady is a resident of Linden Hall, and sister of former Prothonotary A. B. Kimpfort, of Bellefonte.

The prospect for a first class wheat crop, the fine set of clover and grasses in nearly every field you see, and the oats coming up nicely, and corn rooting strongly, makes some of the farmers push their fingers through their hair and ask themselves whether they are not about as able to buy an automobile as many others who have done so. The question is being pondered in the affirmative.

Tuesday afternoon several civil engineers took measurements through Centre Hall and down the Brush Valley road toward Madisonburg. This gives rise to the belief that the Brush Valley road between Centre Hall and Millinburg will become a state road and will be one of the two new roads on the south side of Centre county to be accepted by the state, the other road being from State College via Boalsburg and Tusseyville to Potters Mills, intersecting a state road there.

Next November James H. Smetzer will have served continuously with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company for a period of thirty-five years, and has therefore been entitled to membership in the P. R. R. Veterans Association for fourteen years. Each year during the month of May this association is given a banquet by the railroad company some where on its lines, and this year the banqueters are at Harvey Lake, near Wilkes Barre. Mr. Smetzer is one of the number who is enjoying this occasion, as he has each year since arriving at the Veteran's age, which is twenty-one years service. Station Agent W. Frank Bradford is also a member of this association, but will not attend the gathering this week.

The lower house at Harrisburg passed a bill changing the method of executing condemned murderers from hanging to electrocuting. If the senate passes the same measure, all criminals of this type will be brought to the Pen pen and there electrocuted. The recent hangings made in hanging had much to do with the house taking action at this particular time.
