LOCALS.

Miss Sarah Keller, of Boalsburg, is visiting friends in Centre Hall.
Mr. and Mrs. Ivin M. Burris, of Lewistown, were in Centre Hall during the beginning of this week.
The Bartholomew building is going up nicely, the rough construction work including the roof being almost completed.
W. H. Smith, of Milesburg, assisted by George E. Stright covered the dormers on the Reporter building with asbestos shingles.
C. A. Boyer, chief clerk in the P. R. R. freight office in Lock Haven, is off on a ten days' vacation to Elkhart, Indiana, to visit his parents.
Miss Besse Breon is off on a vacation trip to New York, where she is the guest of her brother, Maurice P. Breon, at Camden. She will be gone for several weeks.
As has been her custom during the past four years, Miss Flo R. Duck, one of the public school teachers in St. Louis, Missouri, is in New York for the summer months.
Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Huyett and daughter Miriam are visiting friends in the eastern part of the state. Before returning they will also visit Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Magee, in Philadelphia.
William Reish, last week, took the examination to enter the school of forestry at Mont Alto, and if he is successful in securing a scholarship he will enter as a pupil at the opening of the fall term in September.
Charles R. Kurtz, editor of the Centre Democrat, is now surveyor of the part of Philadelphia, having taken the oath of office last week. He has since been in the Philadelphia office getting acquainted with the work, which, of course, is all new to him, but in a short time he will be able to master it.
About two weeks ago a pawl from a stone hit Joshua Armstrong, of Pleasant Gap, in the eye. The wound was given attention, and Mr. Armstrong went to work again. In a few days the eye became so inflamed that he was obliged to go to the hospital, and on Tuesday the eye ball was removed.
Roy Miller and son Elmer Miller were callers at the Reporter's new quarters on Tuesday. The former Mr. Miller is in the lumber business in Leesville, Virginia, being a partner in the Kryder, McElfresh & Miller Lumber Co. He spent a short time at his home at Colyer, returning to Virginia on Wednesday. The latter Mr. Miller is one of Potter township's able young school teachers.
Attorney N. B. and Mrs. Spangler, of Bellefonte, spent Saturday and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Crawford, and Mrs. Spangler, who makes her home with her daughter. It is twenty-five years since Mr. Spangler left Potter township to become a law student. He has met with great success in his profession, and today is one of the leading attorneys at the bar. He is a product of Penns Valley of which the home people may well be and are proud. Politically Mr. Spangler is a Democrat, and is of a good brand.

SENATOR HEINLE DEAD.

Pneumonia Claims Centre County Attorney and Politician—Death Came in N. Y. Hospital.

The announcement of the death of Senator Heinle on Monday of this week was a real shock to this community. His death was the result of an attack of pneumonia and occurred at Bellevue hospital, New York about noon on Sunday. He was in the city on business when suddenly attacked by this dread disease, which in a few days resulted in his death.

Mr. Heinle was a native of Miles township, and was born November 30th, 1849, to Jacob Heinle and Catharine Friedle Heinle. His father was a native of Germany, a graduate of a German University, and quite a scholar, and his mother a native of Half moon township, this county, of quaker descent, and a devout christian woman.

The subject of this notice was a very stout vigorous lad of great energy and very good ability and was early in life thrown upon his own energies and resources and he made good. From his father, who was a finished scholar he received his early education. This was of course in German as his father's education was that given in the schools and colleges of Germany. His education commenced in this way was afterwards continued in the public schools, working on the farm in the summer and going to school in the winter. Later he attended various sessions of the Rebersburg normal school from which he graduated with honor, and then followed teaching school for a number of years. He taught the leading schools in various districts in the county. In 1872-1873 he was principal of the public schools of Phillipsburg and in 1875 he became principal of the public school of Bellefonte, and after this was for a time principal of the preparatory department of Pennsylvania State College.

Mr. Heinle read law with Col. J. L. Spangler and became a member of the bar of Centre county in 1878. In 1889 he was elected to the office of District Attorney, and re-elected in 1893, and closed his term as such on the first Monday of January, 1897. In the discharge of his duties as District Attorney he was most faithful and conscientious, and he became an able and influential member of the bar.

From the expiration of his term as district attorney to the close of Cleveland's administration he was internal revenue collector for this district. He served as chairman of the Democratic county committee in 1890 and 1891. He was an expert politician, and under his management the whole Democratic county ticket was elected in 1890 by a large majority. Governor Pattison's majority was over 1700.

In 1898 he became a candidate for state senator, received the endorsement of Centre county and was nominated at the district conference by the conferees of Centre and Clearfield counties, which, of course, was afterwards joined in by Clinton county and made unanimous. His capacity for successful political management resulted in his election. After the result of the election was known the Clearfield conferees wired him, "We are still satisfied that we nominated the right man."

As a senator the conduct of Mr. Heinle was most worthy and honorable. He served his constituents most faithfully. He secured the passage of the bill appropriating $10,000 toward the erection of the memorial in Bellefonte to Governor Andrew G. Curtin. It is very doubtful if any other man in the county could have secured such an appropriation at that time. Men who know are free to say, and do say, that at the very corrupt session of the legislature of 1901, in the effort of the bosses to secure the passage of the "ripper" bills, if Mr. Heinle had been corruptible and willing to follow the "gang," he would have been made wealthy. His integrity was incorruptible and his honor unimpeachable. In the discharge of his public duties as well as in private life he was thoroughly honest and reliable.

In private life Mr. Heinle was a sociable, pleasant, and companionable gentleman. There were members of his father's family that became unable to support themselves. Rather than that the public should do this, though under no obligation by law to do so, Mr. Heinle gave them christian burial. He was good to his kind.

No man has passed from the community in which he lived, in recent years, for whom there has been such a universal expression of sorrow. He was kind to everybody, and neighbors and friends feel that in his passing they have lost a real friend. He has left to survive him one son, J. Malcolm, and a daughter, Miss Elizabeth. His wife passed away about twelve years ago.

Mr. Heinle, as everybody knows, in politics was a Democrat; in religion a Presbyterian.
Interment was made at Bellefonte Wednesday morning, the funeral having been conducted according to Masonic rites. Dr. Hawes was the officiating minister.

Spring Mills.

Charles Neese is in the railroad station.

Miss Mollie Musser is visiting her sister, Mrs. Wm. Fredericks.
Mrs. S. E. Condo is spending the week at Millinburg among relatives.
James Herring, of Altoona, is spending some time with his niece, Mrs. Andrew Shook.

Mr. and Mrs. I. J. Zubler were to Yeagertown for a week, with their daughter, Mrs. Charles Grenoble.

Rufus Finkle, who graduated from State College, is home with his parents, A. N. Finkle. He expects to locate in Chicago.

Wm. H. Allison, of New York, spent Sunday with his father, Hon. Wm. M. Allison, who has been seriously ill but is now able to be about again.

Carl, a three year old son of John Myers, fell into a cistern at the Bibby house which fortunately had just been emptied to be concreted. Austin Long, who was near by, heard the little lad's cries and rescued him. Aside from a few bruises he was not hurt.

Rev. A. N. Warner, of St. Petersburg, Florida, who is in the north for the summer, spent a few days with his niece, Mrs. C. P. Long, and nephew, H. M. Allison. Rev. Warner will be remembered as pastor of the Pine Grove Lutheran congregation.

A. N. Finkle's mill is running on full time. He employs quite a number of men and teams. The Decker Brothers are also operating their mill to its full capacity and employ several men. These industries, beside the state and township road work, should boom the town.

R. G. Kennelly is operating C. P. Long's planing mill, and is busily engaged in getting out lumber for buildings at State College. He is assisted by E. P. Shook, who will build at State College; also Harvey Rauchau, who every one is glad to see at work again, as he had been ill all winter.

Potters Mills

Mrs. Ira Grossman spent Monday at the home of Clayton Wagner.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Auman spent Sunday with friends at Millheim.

Quite a number from this place were to State College on Farmers' Day.

Rev. J. Max Lantz and family, of Spring Mills, spent Thursday evening in town.

Miss Ruth Rover, of Altoona, is spending her vacation with friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ammon Rabb and three children, of Reedsville, were Sunday guests at the Wilkinson home.

Mrs. Catharine Carson, who has been visiting at State College the last two weeks, has been quite sick the last week, but at this writing is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Coldron and two sons, of Huntingdon, and Mrs. James Hanna have been visiting at the home of William Blausner the last week.
The guests in town on Sunday were: Mrs. Marcellus Sankey and children, and Miss Edith Sankey, of Millheim; Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lowder and several friends of Oak Hall; Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Jordan and two sons, of Colyer; and William Allison and son Charles, of Spring Mills.

River Stretches Where Fishermen Only Waste Their Time.

According to old fishermen, there is what might be called neutral ground, or, rather, neutral water, in rivers, where there is no use of trying to make a catch unless it be that some fool fish with a piscatorial brainstorm snatches bait as an insane man might grab a redhot stove.

This neutral water is the part of the river where its flow encounters the saline impregnation of the salt water of the bay or ocean into which it finally empties. With the ebb and the flow of the tide the salt water of the bay runs up into the river for miles, and on the reverse the fresh water descends several miles again to the bay leading into the salt sea.

There is a midway between the salt and fresh water points, however, that very seldom shifts. Around this midway shad and blue and other salt water fish, if they visit at all, will hover on the ocean side. On the fresh water fringe will loiter such fish as inhabit currents that are devoid of the saline ingredient. If the fisherman happens to cast bait in this neutral zone he is not likely to get either one kind or the other.—New York Sun.

Greenland's Glaciers.

Nearly all the Greenland glaciers and tongues from the internal ice cap terminate in vertical faces from 100 to 1,000 feet high, presenting facilities for investigation. The vertical faces reveal pronounced stratification on the basal ice, even earth materials in the bases carried by the ice being arranged in layers. Fine laminations were seen twelve or twenty to an inch. The layers are sometimes twisted and contorted and even "shoved" over each other. The glacier movement at the ice border is a foot per day to a foot per week.

His First Experience.

"So your boy Jim has decided to be a dentist, eh?" said Mr. Blithers, meeting Uncle Silas at the postoffice.
"Yess," said the old farmer.
"How did he ever discover that he had a liking for it?" asked Mr. Blithers.
"Oh, he useter help me pull'n' stumps out o' the cawer pasture," said the old man.—Harper's Weekly.

GAS METERS.

Sheepskins Play a Leading Role in the Work of the Registers.

Consumers of gas are usually so unfamiliar with the operation of a gas meter, simple as it is, that it will be surprising to many to learn that sheepskin plays an important part in the meter's work. It is used, according to Gas Logic, in connection with the diaphragm, or the two bellows from which the gas is drawn when the gas is lighted.

A flock of 40,000 sheep is required each year to repair the gas meters used in Manhattan and Bronx boroughs, New York city. These skins cost about $40,000 a year. To repair the meters used throughout the United States in a single year about 300,000 sheep are required. Great care has to be taken in the selection of perfect skins before they are put into use.

Each pet, before it is accepted, is examined in a dark closet by a man who passes it over a table in which there is a hole about four inches square, through which a light is thrown upward. By this means it can quickly be determined whether or not the sheep whose skin is being examined has ever had experience in bramble bushes. Thin places, made by pricking of the brambles or by the skin having been injured in the dressing process, render it unfit for use in a meter.

MIDDLE NAMES.

In England at One Time People Were Hanged For Having Them.

People have not always been allowed the pleasure of having as many names as they wish. Indeed, 400 years ago not even a middle name was allowed in England. It was illegal. The old English law was definite and admitted of no infraction of its ruling.

The only exception made to this ironclad regulation was in the case of persons of royal rank. If they really wished it they could boast a middle name, but were to the person of ordinary rank who was sufficiently unwise or obstinate to insist on having more than two appellations.

For the first offense he would very likely be tied to a whipping post and severely lashed. For a second offense he would endure some more lasting punishment, perhaps the removal of his thumbs or his ears. And if he still persisted in his stubbornness he would be hanged.

There is a case on record of a poor man, in all probability half demented, who insisted on signing four names every time he wrote his signature to any paper. Of course he passed through all the legal stages of punishment until he was finally hanged.—Chicago Tribune.

Mother of Invention.

John and Mary married impudently on $30 a week and went to live in a "walk up" apartment, two flights up. Then baby came and, besides adding to the family, added to the impudency. Ingeniously went far toward solving the problem of living for two in an inexpensive place. Baby strained that ingenuity further. At first it was no impossible task to carry him upstairs, but he grew, as babies will, and Mary's back became weary daily as she carried him up.
What was to be done? Oh, for an elevator!
The dumb waiter? Of course! Thereafter, when Mary and baby came in, baby was put in the dumb waiter. Then Mary walked upstairs and hoisted baby. Baby liked it, Mary liked it, and if you don't like it that doesn't matter.—New York Post.

Changes of Climate.

A scientist who recently investigated the causes of secular variations in temperature at the earth's surface thinks that they are more probably due to changes in the amount of carbonic acid in the atmosphere than to variations in the heat of the sun. If the amount of carbonic acid that the air now contains was diminished a little more than half the mean temperature all over the earth would, it is stated, drop about eight degrees, which would be sufficient to bring on another glacial period. On the other hand, an increase of carbonic acid between two and three times its present amount would raise the mean temperature fifteen degrees and renew the hot times of the eocene epoch.—Boston Post.

Evils of Betting.

Betting is not a crime, but it is not a virtue. It is an ineradicable blot of human nature. It is generally an unhealthy excitement and an expensive amusement. It is very seldom, I think, a real enjoyment to those who indulge in it. Legislation cannot stamp out this passion, but it need not foster it. I have never heard of any wise and affectionate parents who advised and encouraged their children to bet.—Lord Durham to Tuff Guadiana Society.

Wanted It All.

"No," replied the dear girl; "just read it to the waiter."—Milwaukee Daily News.

RATHER GREWSOME.

In Fact, the English Hunter Was Sure It Was Quite So.

In the Nairobi club I met a gentleman with one arm gone at the shoulder. He told his story in a slightly bored and drawing voice, picking his words very carefully and evidently most occupied with neither understanding nor oversteering the case. It seems he had been out and had killed some sort of a buck. While his men were occupied with this he strolled on alone to see what he could find. He found a rhinoceros that charged viciously and into which he emptied his gun.

"When I came to," he said, "it was just coming on dusk and the lions were beginning to grunt. My arm was completely crushed, and I was badly bruised and knocked about. As near as I could remember, I was fully ten miles from camp. A circle of caribou hides stood all about me and more than ten feet away, and a great many others were flapping over me and fighting in the air. These last were so close that I could feel the wind from their wings. It was rather growsome." He paused and thought a moment, as though weighing his words. "In fact," he added, with an air of final conviction, "it was quite growsome."—Stewart Edward White in American Magazine.

TURKISH STOICISM.

A Very Poor Shot and a Perfectly Good Natured Target.

An incident that occurred in the experience of an English officer is told by the London Spectator to illustrate the calmness and indifference to death and bodily danger characteristic of the Turkish soldier.

The officer, accompanied by a guard of Turkish soldiers, went to the edge of a cliff overlooking the sea to shoot at a seal that he saw disappearing itself in the water below.

He fired a good many times, and the last shot had gone very near the bobbing mark when one of the soldiers came to him and politely asked, "Do you not think, sir, that you have fired often enough at Sergeant Yussuf?"

The supposed seal was indeed the sergeant.
Presently the sergeant came ashore, put on his clothes and came up the cliff smilingly. The officer apologized handsomely and blamed himself freely. But Yussuf, like his companions did not think there was much to be concerned about. After all, the mark had been very small. It was natural to fire at it; it was unlikely that the officer would hit it, and he (Yussuf) had not minded it at all.

When You Are Weary.

Are you weary? Breathe more, rest less. Active exercise will not rest you from mental work.
"When you are tired with mental work," says a well known physician, "do not think you must take active exercise. That will make you more weary. All you need are rest and more air in your lungs. Sit down quietly and comfortably and breathe deeply twenty-five times. Rest a moment and repeat."
"This air forced into the body removes the waste material which makes you weary."
"Don't eat all you want."
"Food not needed for support of the system is so much extra work for the body and requires more air to dispose of it."
"This regimen will diminish your grocery bill and save your shoe leather."—Chicago Tribune.

Age of Westminster Hall.

Westminster Hall is quite five centuries old, possibly more, for Richard II, who is credited with its building, was really little more than a repairer of "Rufus' roaring hall," as Pope described it. The hall, so intimately interwoven with the history of England, has, according to Fuller, the distinction of possessing "cobwebbed beams." They were, so a popular tradition affirmed, of Irish oak, in which it was impossible for spiders to live and spin their webs. Cunningham tells us that the roof "is of chestnut and very fine, the finest of its kind in this country." It was the meshes of the law, if not spiders' webs, one might have looked for here of old, for during long centuries England's courts of law were held in Westminster hall.—London Chronicle.

Bigger the Steal, Smaller the Crime.

The Manx law of old times had many oddities, but none, surely, quantier than that to make the greater the crime the less, because of the impossibility within the narrow limits of the Isle of Man, that the bigger thief should be successful.
"If a man steal a horse or an ox," so ran the law, "it is no felony, for the offender cannot hide them, but if he steal a capon or a pig he shall be hanged."
